When Japanese Swim. An Egg for Babe Ruth. Fidelity? What Kind? Two Bottles, 3 Deaths.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927.)

JAPAN prepares a flight from Tokio to Seattle and mark this: IF THE JAPANESE START FOR SEATTLE, THEY WILL FLY TO SEATTLE. They are thorough.

HAVE you ever seen sailors of Japan's navy swimming? Led by an officer they swim, in wedge shape formation, each man keeping his proper place in the water, all keeping time with even strokes, as in marching. And thus they swim, in the ocean, twenty miles at a time. Men of that sort will fly the Pacific, if they undertake to fly it.

AT Omaha, Babe Ruth received, as token of his greatness, an egg laid by Lady Norfolk, champion hen of the world.

It was the one hundred and seventieth egg laid or batted out by that hen, in 170 days. Ruth remarked: "A hen's egg by the river's brim, a simple hen's egg was to him, and nothing more," and went on with his batting. It would surprise the idol of America to know that such a hen as Lady Norfolk is more important to the country than all its baseball players.

MRS. ELINOR GLYN, who usually knows more about the human heart than the heart knows about itself, says physical fidelity is necessary in marriage.

The true woman requires, says she, "only mental and physical fidelity." Police court records do not support that theory. Marriage was designed to make men take care of their children and to make husbands more civilized through self-control.

Some mysterious wisdom tells wives that mere mental and physical fidelity is not sufficient insurance for children, or mother.

"EXPLANATION of our modern crime wave?" Nothing complicated about it, say Chicago policemen.

They mention Wilfred J. Winters, 21 years old; Margaret Martin, 18, and Catherine Stadler, 19, friends all their lives. After young Winters had shot both girls to death and killed himself in his automobile, the police held up two empty moonshine whisky bottles, saying: "There's your explanation."

SENATOR BORAH says he will keep after both political parties, and make them put a plank on prohibition in their parties.

They might include a plank on young Mr. Winters and the in-

Hunt Four Hit-Skip Drivers

A police dragnet was spread today for four hit-and-run motorists whose cars severely injured four men and menaced the lives of a score of other persons in the business district of the North Side early today. The license number of one of the machines was secured by a victim of the speeder, and police promise an arrest soon. In the other three cases there are no clues.

Joseph Pass, 55, of 516 Taylor avenue, was crossing Reddour street, near North avenue, at 6:45 o'clock when he was run down by an autoist who did not stop. Fireman Frank Shay, of Engine Company No. 46, rushed to Pass' aid, but failed to obtain the license number. Shay took Pass to the Presbyterian Hospital.

Less than two hours later James Doyle, 58, 1407 James street, was crossing North avenue, at Middle street, when a recklessly-driven car

Penn Ave. Fire Toll 2 Dead

The death toll in the fire in the 900 block of Penn avenue Sunday night and early Monday morning had risen to two today with the death of Capt. William H. Coslett, 54, of No. 5 Engine Company, in the Allegheny General Hospital. Coslett was injured by a falling wall while he was aiding in the direction of a squad of firemen in a blind alley off Garrison way. The 10 other victims were reported recovering today. Coslett lived at 911 Adelaide street.

NORTH SIDE ROLLINGPIN SLAYER GUILTY

Mrs. Roxie B. Mumford, 42, charged with killing her 54-year-old husband, Joseph B. Mumford, by fracturing his skull with a rolling pin during a drinking bout at their home, 1510 Metropolitan street, North Side, on Easter Sunday last, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in a verdict returned before visiting Judge William T. Darr in Criminal Court today.

The case was submitted to the jury late yesterday afternoon. The defendant, testifying in her own be-

Forbes To Talk Here

B. C. Forbes, one of the foremost business authorities of the United States, who articles appear daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will speak tomorrow noon at the monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, in the Chamber of Commerce dining room. Mr. Forbes will speak on "Business Today."

Mr. Forbes has interviewed probably more captains of industry than any other man now living. He is able to interview them because he knows them and they know him and, as the National Magazine recently remarked: "Grim-visaged captains of industry and cold-blooded financiers talk unreservedly before this small, black-eyed man with the Scotch burr on his tongue—because his absolute honesty and fairness have gained their fullest confidence."

Mr. Forbes rose from the type case of a little weekly paper of a small town in Scotland to the editorial desk

ICE PERIL IN STORM DESCRIBED BY RUTH

HORTA, The Azores Islands, Oct. 18.—(Special Cable Dispatch.)—Having left New York Tuesday night at 5 o'clock, we were now flying into Wednesday evening, our second night, and our flight into that second night is nothing more or less than a real nightmare.

The thoughts of that night came back to me and I believe will always come back throughout the rest of my life, whenever I hear the wind blow or the rain pattering against windows.

After seeing the danger spots of oil on our wings, we expected a very eventful night, but our strongest anticipations fell far short of what we really went through. Those hours and minutes and seconds can never be erased from my mind.

As we went into the night, we were

ORDERED TO QUIT TOWN, WOMAN SAYS

"I am here in the public interest. I am on the square. Golden told me I'd get more if I kept my mouth shut. If my husband is guilty, he should be tried also."

Mrs. Katherine Downey, of 219 Hemlock street, North Side, thus flung back to Attorney Charles B. Pritchard his intimation that "promises" had been made by the district attorney's office to her and her husband, John P. Downey, to have them testify for the state in the prosecution of election frauds charged against the election board of the Sixteenth District of the Twenty-second Ward at the spring primary of 1926. J. William Bolster, minority inspector, and Mrs. Anna Conklin, clerk, members of the board, with Fire Captain Charles Golden, are on trial in Criminal Court before Judge Harry H. Rowand and a jury locked up for the duration of the trial, charged with conspiracy.

DAMAGING TESTIMONY

Mrs. Downey had given damaging testimony that she said came from the mouths of defendants. Golden had ordered Bolster at the polls late the night of the primary, "Put the works on the ballots, kid," she said. Golden had called her on the phone and wanted her to tell her husband, "we would like to get along together and all tell the same story," and on another call had asked her "to go to her sister's or go away until this

FEAR HEAVY RAIN MAY CAUSE FLOOD

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 19.—High water is feared here as a result of a torrential rain for more than 24 hours, coupled with a snowstorm in the Allegheny Mountains. The snow was four to six inches deep at some points, especially in parts of Garrett county and in the Meyersdale (Pa.) territory.

KILLS WIFE IN HOTEL, SHOOTS SELF

After a morning of bickerings, Frank Jares, hotelkeeper, of 1119 Spring Garden avenue, shot and killed his wife, Sophie Jares, 45, in the cellar of the hotel shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon and then fired a bullet into his own brain. He is in Allegheny General Hospital, expected to die momentarily.

Although Fred Baker, 63, 1426 High street, was in the hotel at the time of the shooting, there were no witnesses to the tragedy, Baker furnishing the police with the information that the two had been quarreling all morning.

"I'm going to kill my wife and myself. You'll read about it in the papers," Jares told Mrs. Mary Muska, 1116 Spring Garden avenue, and Mrs. Mary Strauss, 804 Madison avenue, visiting at the Muska home, a few minutes before he had fired the fatal shot.

It was the first time Jares had ever been to the Muska house and Mrs. Muska, noticing that he had been drinking, paid little attention to the threat. Jares told her he found his wife with a man named "Nicholas" last night.

He had hardly returned to the hotel when Baker ran out and told pedestrians that Jares had shot his wife and then himself. Baker, according to his story, was reading a paper when he heard two shots in the cellar. Rushing to the foot of the stairs he found the bodies.

Mrs. Jares lay on the cellar floor, her feet resting on the first step. A bullet wound was in the forehead above the left eye. Jares was beside her, face downward, with a bullet wound in the right temple. A revolver with two empty chambers was nearby. Mrs. Jares died before aid could be summoned.

Jury Told of Sinclair Oil Leases

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—The taking of testimony was begun today in the criminal conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, with a promise by counsel for Sinclair that there would be no evidence to show the wealthy oil operator had any connection with the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, through whom Fall is accused of having received a large batch of Liberty bonds after the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Sinclair.

The two women and 10 men hearing the case were told by the defense that Sinclair never had a bond that the Continental Trading Company had and that he never passed a bond the company possessed, as the government contends in the indictment charging conspiracy in the lease of the reserve.

"It will be made clear Sinclair never had anything to do with a bond of the description given by the government," declared Martin W. Littleton, of New York, "and that he never passed a bond to Fall or anyone in behalf of Fall."

Littleton also disputed the government theory that the $25,000 of Liberty Bonds Sinclair gave Fall after the latter retired as interior secretary after the lease of Teapot Dome were of the same kind that passed through the Continental Trading Company and of which $200,500 came finally into possession of M. T. Everhart, Fall's son-in-law, and some of which went to Fall.

The attorney said the $25,000 payment was made to Fall when he was employed by Sinclair to go to Europe in connection with oil concessions the oil operator was seeking in Russia; that there was nothing secret about that transaction, the bonds being sent to a bank at El Paso for Fall, and that the

SHE WAS DIZZY.

JERRY SICK?

Just to look at him as he lay sick and alone made Margie dizzy. How near is pity to love? Are these emotions interchangeable? Can love answer for money? These and others were Margie's doubts as she watched him. Her answers may be found in an adventurous new serial which begins tomorrow in the Sun-Telegraph. Start "It Never Pays," it will startle you.

SOCIETY! TEARS!

MARGIE DISCOVERS

A few things about the society people of Newport—about their lives and flirtations and intrigues. She is beginning to discover that there isn't everything in wealth and position—that life holds a few things more valuable than yachts and fine clothes. How she learns? "It Never Pays," which begins tomorrow in the Sun-Telegraph, will tell you.

LOOK WHO'S HERE!

That's what Florence Clark yelled when Margie opened the door of the co-operative apartment in New York, where Margie and her friends had spent so many happy days, and whence Margie many a time since had wished to return. The girls—what were they doing? Why did Margie come back—read "It Never Pays," Gilbert Rogers' new serial, in the Sun-Telegraph.

HE PROPOSED!

But Margie disposed. Jerry was asking her something that demanded an answer. "Yes" hung in the balance. "No" was also on her tongue. Here, the crux of her life appeared, and because of a note—a strange note that was a deadly contract, she couldn't speak. The mystery of this serial, "It Never Pays," will tickle your sensibilities. It begins tomorrow in the Sun-Telegraph.

WIN FIGHT TO RETURN JAWORSKI

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—After hearing testimony of Allegheny county (Pa.) jail officers, Attorney General Emerson R. Boyles today announced he would recommend that the Governor of Michigan grant extradition papers for the return of Sam Jaworski to Pittsburgh.

The jail officers identified Jaworski, under arrest at Detroit, as the man who aided Paul Jaworski and John Vashinder, convicted murderers, in their sensational escape from the Allegheny county prison.

Mrs. Margaret Taylor, matron of the Allegheny jail; Theodore Steinbrenner, deputy warden, and Harry Riger, guard, were positive in their identification of Jaworski as the two-gun man who, after giving pistols to the convicts, aided them to shoot their way to freedom.

After hearing the testimony the Attorney General made his extradition recommendation to Gov. Fred W. G. Green.

whole transaction was 'entirely legitimate.'"

Defense counsel likewise promised that the testimony would show that it was not until the latter part of the celebrated Christmas, 1921, visit of Sinclair to Fall at Three Rivers, N. M., that the oil operator brought up the question of leasing Teapot Dome. Fall's reply, as given by Littleton, was that geologists then were investigating drainage in the reserve and he would make no determination until that inquiry was completed.

Littleton did not disclose by what witnesses all these matters would be presented and there was speculation as to whether Fall or Sinclair, or both, would take the stand. However, defense counsel said that had not yet been demanded.

George W. Holland, attorney in the geological survey, took the stand as the first witness after Littleton concluded and identified for the government the executive order of President Wilson creating naval oil reserve No. 3 on April 30, 1915, and produced all documents of the Interior Department referring to the case.

Stephen G. Quigley, clerk at the state department; Dr. George Otis Smith, chief of the geological survey; Lee F. Martin, of the comptroller general's office then produced documentary evidence in connection with the case, including the Teapot Dome lease, which Fall insisted on examining.

E. C. Finney, first assistant secretary of interior, the next witness, testified that Fall had asked him to recommend some one to look after the naval oil reserves and he suggested Dr. Mendenhall, of the geological survey, who was named. Later, Fall told the witness he was sorry he had designated Mendenhall, but gave no reason. Finney identified a chart dividing up the work in the department between Fall and his assistants under which oil lands were placed under Finney.

"Who did pass on naval oil leases for the department up to the time the chart was made?" asked Roberts.

William Leahy, for Fall, objected, but was overruled.

"With the exception of all leases except this one and naval oil No. 2 in California (Elk Hills) I passed on the leases," Finney replied.

"Did this lease ever come to you?"

"No."

inclosed in our little compartment on the faithful American Girl, perched up there in the skies at an altitude of 10,000 feet, battling the elements.

Maj. Kimble and Mr. Scarr, of the United States Weather Bureau in New York, had told us we would have difficulty, but little did we think that the sky ever could or ever would look so black as it did on that fateful night, as we looked out ahead of us and silently wondered what the end would be.

By all the indications I knew that George had prepared himself for the worst of conditions, but despite the thoughts that flickered through my mind, I was reluctant to admit that we could have any trouble.

We knew that it was better that we entered the low pressure area at as high an altitude as possible. And yet it takes gasoline to make high altitudes, and we had to consider the conservation of our gasoline supply for other eventualities after we might get through the storm area.

SKY WAS A STUDY

We worked the speed of the motor up to 1,675 R. P. M. and began climbing steadily. The sky was a study.

Back of us we were leaving a twilight with dim gray suggestions of color. We were leaving a stretch of sky and ocean that had been kindly to us. Ahead of us was a dark dismal stormy sky, with regular flashes of terrific lightning that came streaking down from a higher altitude than ours, and we knew that there ahead of us lay trouble.

I don't know what George's thoughts were as he looked ahead and I don't know that I could tell you exactly what mine were, except that the principal thought in my mind was that we were riding headlong into black trouble.

No one could write of the happenings of the next few hours and be able to convey a complete word picture of all the actual experiences. For the 12 hours preceding our approach to the storm area, George had been smiling most of the time and under all conditions had carried a happy expression. But now it was different. There was a set, determined look on his face. The corners of his mouth were down and his lips were thin. There was no fear on his face, but the battle look was there.

Ruth's Look Satisfies

I told him to remember that we had not expected smooth sailing all the way across the Atlantic and that the part of the flight which we were now coming to was the part which would try our mettle and show us what we were made of. He agreed with that and studied my face for a moment to see what I might betray. He finished his scrutiny with seeming satisfaction and again turned a cold, cool gaze on the blackness and the flashing lightning ahead.

The Weather Bureau of New York had advised us that if the low pressure area proved to be a storm we would make better headway by going to the south of it. We made a careful study of our weather chart, and believing ourselves to be heading into the center of the storm area, we changed our course to the south, figuring that we would fly a crescent shaped course from where we were. As we reckoned it, this would cause us to hit land possibly at about Finistere, Spain. This, we calculated, would carry us through winds for the next few hundred miles. The idea of this conclusion and plan was relieving to both of us.

Within the next hour's time, however, we found conditions very much worse than we had expected. There had been no real way of estimating just what was ahead of us and we had been more or less taking a chance.

We had gained an altitude of 7,500 feet at this time, because of our steady upward climb and we were still climbing—and we were still thinking of gasoline—and we were still thinking of oil.

9,500 Feet Above Sea

Suddenly we entered the tremendous rolling cumulus, nimbus cloud banks, and after we were out of sight of anything and everything in this world, we felt that in a very few seconds we would be above it all and the cloud banks would be below us and that we might have the moon or the stars, or something associated with the world to look at.

For another hour we flew on steadily, always climbing, slowly, but climbing surely, and at the end of this hour we were 2,000 feet more away from the earth and the instrument showed our altitude to be 9,500 feet.

The sky, clouds which had been just a dull, deadly gray, were growing increasingly darker. There was just one thing that was reassuring to me as we were up there in the cold majesty of the skies and that was the steady purr of the motor ahead of us—the motor that was pulling us toward Paris. It seemed almost human.

And then, to add to our trouble, it began to rain. It rained frightfully. And with the rain, the thermometer on the wings strut which George looked at, calmly and anxiously, every so often, was squalling. On glancing over his shoulder, I saw that it read 28 degrees. It was now about 7:30 p. m. Wednesday and I realized that there must be some danger with the thermometer that low.

I knew I was right about this because I suddenly became conscious of the fact that ice was forming on the windshild around the wing struts. It came to my mind that before leaving New York I had read Commander Byrd's article in the National Geographic Magazine and also talking with Capt. Guy Caldwell and others who were familiar with cold weather in the skies, that when the temperature went below 32 degrees trouble might be expected.

Paris Prepares to Greet Ruth

By International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—This city thrilled with expectancy today, anticipating the arrival of Miss Ruth Elder and Capt. George Haldeman, who are on board the Portuguese mail steamer Lima, bound for Lisbon.

The daring girl flier, whose personality charmed her hosts at Horta, will not arrive here for more than a week, but Paris is already acquainted with Ruth through news dispatches and is anxious to pay homage to her.

Miss Elder originally set out for Paris in a plane, and, according to latest information, she will arrive in one — although not the same one in which she started out. But Paris looks upon her as an aviatrix and will receive her as one.

At Lisbon Ruth and Haldeman will be accorded a great welcome by Portuguese officials and will then board a plane and fly here.

Ice on Windshield

I took the smaller of our two flashlights and threw it on the thermometer. I was a bit worried by what I saw. The thermometer read 27 degrees. I hoped against hope and wondered if the thermometer could be correct, as it was only an inexpensive alcohol one which I had purchased in a hardware store in Mineola, L. I.

After switching off the flashlight I knew just what we were facing. That flashlight had told me two things. The first was the 27 degree reading and the second was confirmation of the correctness of the thermometer. The flash had shown that the windshield was lined with a streaky ice formation.

George suddenly asked me to take the controls and told me emphatically to keep the indicator, which showed the rate of climbing at zero. This was because he wanted to avoid any possibility of further freezing by going any higher.

I was somewhat concerned at his leaving the controls to me when things looked so dark ahead, but he returned in a very few seconds and took the seat that had been mines.

I saw that he had put his gloves on and had placed the signal pistols, several parachute flares and smoke bombs between us.

I asked him to take the controls, but he refused and informed me that he was determining our remaining gasoline supply.

While doing this he left the seat again, while I remained at the controls and it seemed an hour before he finished the gasoline investigations. When he took the controls and I moved over to my regular seat, I asked him how everything was and he told me that all the wing tanks were full and we still had 10 to 15 gallons in the fusilage tank. George drew a very heavy line on our map and told me we were nearing a spot which he indicated. He also informed me that our gasoline supply would take us to Paris, even though we had to buck head winds.

Confidence Dispelled

A look of satisfaction had come on his face that was very reassuring, but it did not last for long.

In a very few moments great gusts of wind seemed to overtake us and our plane was being tossed about in the rough air. And the sky was blacker then ever and the lightning flashed streaks through the blackness. George showed much concern about keeping the plane on a true course.

The next few hours are almost impossible to write about. I would much prefer to put this part of the story in my private diary where it could never be referred to by anyone except myself in case I wanted to live that experience over again.

I noticed by the altimeter that we were now 10,500 feet high and were still climbing steadily up there toward more blackness and more lightning flashes.

The sounds that smote our ears were the winds and the motor's roar.

George again asked me to take the controls and he opened the window and put his head as far out as he could reach.

After he had resumed his position he looked really worried and called my attention to the fact that the oil pressure had dropped down from 65 to 55 pounds. Those dangerous spots of oil had meant something after all. In some way our oil was going wrong and the drop to 55 pounds meant that something serious was the trouble.

I wondered at George's reason for decreasing the motor revolutions to 1,500, as George had changed his mind about not going higher, and we were still trying to climb, and I knew that we needed more revolutions and more power to go above the storm we were in.

George closed his window and took the controls. He told me that we would not try to go any higher, but would go straight on through the heart of the storm, hoping that in a short time we might be out of it.

But it continued to rain and sleet, even harder than before. At times the motor was almost invisible from our sight. The earth inductor compass indicator would show hard over to the right and then to the left. The sound of the motor was very uneven at this time and often George turned on the dashlights and was looking only at the instruments.

Tossed, Whipped About

We were having a real battle. We tossed and whipped about.

When George did turn the lights off, all was dark and the rain and sleet, being blown against our windows, sounded terrific.

I would not admit even to myself that I was petrified at the dark angry sky. After all, I am only a girl and I could not let George know my feelings. I hate being just a girl with only a girl's foresight and I had to fight with myself for a few moments to get back into that same happy, carefree state of mind which it had been my fortune to have since the very beginning.

I cannot express, it is impossible to convey, the tremendous effort it was to smile when George asked me how I felt. Nevertheless, I did smile and reply:

"Fine! George, we will get through it soon." His answer was:

"You are courageous, old dear, when we cannot see outside. But don't worry, as we will be up where the moon is shining soon."

I think he believed that, because he continually attempted to keep the plane climbing. I knew the elements were against us, because we could not see ahead and the ship was being constantly tossed violently about. What a night it was! More blackness. More lightning flashes and the wind screamed around the plane.

George was no longer watching the earth inductor compass indicator ahead of us, but was closely watching the aperiodic compass which hung between us. I will always have the utmost respect for the aperiodic compass, because later, after we had passed through the storm, George patted the compass and told me that it was the most important of the ship's instruments.

George's face had hardened again, and he was working frantically at the controls as it was beyond my strength or ability to be of assistance at this time.

I believe I must have asked him 50 times if everything was all right and always his answer was the same. It was always a snappy:

"Everything O. K."

George was working the ailorons continuously and I could not understand this. After a while I asked him the reason for working them so much.

He informed me with cold impatience to try the ailorons myself.

I did so and found that all of the controls had gotten extremely hard to move. This was a new trouble—a new danger. I again asked him the reason and he answered by throwing the flashlight on the wings. I SAW ICE ON THE WINGS.

We fought this condition for the next two hours and to me it was apparent finally that we were getting nowhere. I concluded this because the compass was swinging in every direction and the ship was tossing.

George called my attention to the altimeter. When I looked at it I saw that it had dropped from 10,500 feet to 9,500 feet.

FROM THIS WE REALIZED THAT THE PLANE WAS BEING SLOWLY BUT SURELY FORCED DOWN BY THE ICE.

I had no more than realized this condition and wondered what might be ahead when George suddenly turned to me and told me that we could not remain aloft any longer.

There we were up in the sky—whipped by the winds—something wrong with the oil—ice covering the plane gradually and around it all that black storm with its lightning flashes.

Prepare for Worst

George came to his decision suddenly. He turned to me and in short snappy tones said:

"Go back and put on your life suit, Ruth. We don't know what we will find underneath us. We are certainly getting nowhere up here."

I knew George was right and I climbed over the gas tank to put on my suit.

As I did so I offered up a prayer that we would come to no disaster.

I still had a strong conviction that we would be saved. And after the prayer it seemed stronger.

Even though facing a graver danger than I had ever experienced before I still had this conviction. I was not sorry that we had started. I was no longer afraid.

My mind was made up to the fact that even if we were forced to land in the ocean we would soon be picked up by a passing boat. Maybe that is youth and it's sometimes unreasoning power, yet it predominated all other thoughts.

And this thought prevailed as I reached for my life suit up there in the black flashing night.

[The next and fourth chapter of Ruth Elder's remarkable flight, as told by herself, will appear tomorrow.]

ability of the government to keep whisky away from him. Prohibition in the Constitution does not mean much, unless you can have it in the automobile, also.

THE American Federation of Labor favors a five-day week, giving the worker two days out of seven.

Russia's government, exercising all powers, establishes a seven-hour work day, a long step from the serf slavery of old Russia.

Henry Ford, who started the five-day week, wants men to have one day in which to spend what they earn in five days. Spending is as important to the country as earning, says Ford.

THE value to workers of a seven-hour day, or five-day week, depends on what they do with the extra day or hour of freedom.

If they read and think more, they will go ahead. If not, they will stay in the same place, but in any case, the greater leisure will improve their health. That will make a better next generation, inclined to thought.

ROBERT A. MILLIKAN, brilliant scientist of California Institute of Technology, tells students that science "will free human slaves," meaning, presumably, that science will free men from hard labor.

Pray that it may not happen too soon. Free men today from the necessity that drives them, and 99 in 100 would become worthless. If you doubt it, contemplate those that inherit wealth, in so-called society.

THE American Public Health Association, gathered at Cleveland, is told that today's greatest cause of death is heart disease, and repeated infections such as "common colds," to which so little attention is paid, cause heart disease. The trouble starts often in childhood, with childhood's diseases, all of which might be avoided. This should interest parents of the dark ages type who think "the children might as well have measles and such little things first as last and get them over with."

BASIL STEWART, solemn and British, predicts a great war, to begin in May, 1928, ending in 1936.

Fortunately, he bases his prediction on "the symbolism of the Great Pyramid" and "prophetic forecasts of the Bible." When the Bible was written, modern war methods were unknown, and forecasts of that period could not apply to airplane, TNT and gas bomb warfare.

thing is over." Bolster had come to her house, she testified, and made the statement before her husband, 'We threw the ballots into a sewer.'"

On cross-examination, Prichard asked if she and her husband had been promised anything or any leniency to testify for the prosecution. Mrs. Downey denied it and First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park jumped to his feet and heatedly demanded, if Prichard was hinting at any bribery by the district attorney's office, to name the individual involved. Prichard did not continue the inquiry.

Downey followed his wife on the stand as a witness for the state. As majority inspector of the board, he was indicted with the others for conspiracy, but was not placed on trial. Shown the return sheets and the pay certificates signed "Patrick J. Downey," he declared that he had not signed them or any other election records, that his signature is "John P. Downey" and that he did not know who signed his name. He said he has not seen Alvin Miller, judge of election, since the day after the primary, and that he never saw Charles Carr, recorded as a clerk of the board, alleged to have been registered from a vacant lot. He said addresses given by several voters were vacant lots.

"THROWN IN SEWER"

Downey said he heard Bolster say the ballots were thrown into a sewer. He testified that Bolster came to him and said, "We're up against it and better go down to see Golden to get this straightened out," and Golden told him when they went to him, "You don't know anything about the ballot box." He said they went to Golden because "he looked after things in the district." On cross-examination by Attorney Ben Lencher he said that a constable and two watchers were in the polling place when the count was made and that a storm put out the lights and late voters and board worked by candle light.

Park placed in evidence, after prolonged legal wrangling which has continuously marked the trial, the decision of the late Judge John D. Shafer which reduced the vote of Dan Malie from 183 to 160 in the district and thereby gave the nomination for the Legislature to Frank J. Zak. This record showed more votes cast than ballots issued.

ran him down. He crawled to the sidewalk and a pedestrian summoned a police patrol, which took him to the Allegheny General Hospital. He was cut on the head.

While the police were investigating the cases of Pass and Doyle a third case was reported. Henry Schroepfel, 2011 Ley street, was run down by a speeding car at East Ohio and East streets. He had his injuries dressed at a nearby physician's office.

William Harick, 40, of 373½ Spring Garden road, suffered a fractured rib when run down in Spring Garden road near his home at 9 o'clock last night by a motorist who did not stop. After having his injuries dressed at Allegheny General Hospital he was taken home.

half, declared that she had struck her husband in self-defense, without intent to kill or hurt him, when he threatened to attack her in their bedroom, where she found him with Mrs. Ruth Kelly of 116 Stockton avenue. He had mistreated her for some time, Mrs. Mumford testified.

Mrs. Kelly, the star witness for the state, who was arrested by police to insure her testimony, testified that Mrs. Mumford went for the rolling pin when her husband had insistently offered her drinks in the bedroom after the three had become intoxicated earlier in the kitchen, and that she entered the bedroom and struck her husband with the rolling pin without uttering a word.

A statement given to the police by the defendant, according to witnesses, was read to the jury by Assistant District Attorney Roy Clunk, similar in substance with the defense testimony. Attorney J. Howard Devlin represented the defendant.

CARROLL'S PAROLE WILL BEGIN' TOMORROW

By International News Service.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 19.—Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer, who was paroled after serving a little more than four months of his year-and-a-day sentence at the Federal prison for perjury, will be released tomorrow if official papers arrive ffrom Washington that soon, Warden John W. Snook stated today.

"The papers, mailed last night, can hardly arrive in time for Carroll to leave today," he said.

"Carroll and I will have to sign the official papers and that's all. He walks out a free man, subject to the conditions of the parole, as soon as that's done."

Release of Carroll will end a celebrated case marked by bitter court battles, vain efforts to obtain clemency from Washington and the collapse of the convicted man while en route from New York to the prison here.

Taken from the train at Greenville, S. C., Carroll lingered in the city hospital there seven weeks, the earlier days of which were marked by anxiety for his life by relatives and friends.

Apparently broken in health, Carroll was brought here June 8 and taken immediately to the prison hospital for treatment by Dr. C. T. Nellans, prison physician. He responded remarkably to prison hospital treatment and in a short time was sent to the prison honor farm where he worked as clerk in the library.

Tanned by the wind and sun, Carroll gained in health, color and weight, and now is considered in better physical condition than he has been for years.

Dr. Nellans said there is no likelihood of any further nervous reaction because of his incarceration. He will be more subdued and not as spontaneous in his actions as before, the doctor thinks.

Carroll's wife and his brothers, Norman and James Carroll, who remained beside the producer throughout his illness in Greenville and in Atlanta for sevegal days after he was imprisoned, still were in New York today and no reservations had been received at the local hotel where they were accustomed to stop. It is not known whether they will come here to escort Carroll from the prison tomorrow.

of the leading business journal in America and from that to his present proprietorship of a popular and successful magazine.

In addition to hearing the address on "Business Today" by Mr. Forbes the chamber will receive and take action upon the following reports already approved by the board of directors:

Engineer's council—Recommendation that the chamber request the county commissioners and city council to make an appropriation annually to cover the topographical survey of city and county until completed.

Merchants' council—Recommending that the Chamber of Commerce approve the organization of a Better Business Bureau in Pittsburgh and authorize the merchants' council to proceed with its organization.

General traffic committee—Recommending that the traffic division be authorized to participate in the new proceedings on the lake cargo coal rate case.

Aviation field enlargement—Recommending the appointment of a special committee to arrange a complete survey of practicable aviation sites in Allegheny county; to enlist the support of other organizations and public officials; to urge proper officials to acquire and develop such airport and to aid, as far as possible, in the establishing of aircraft and allied industries.

PORTER DESCENDANTS FORM ASSOCIATION

Eighty-four descendants of Robert Porter, who was born in Pittsburgh in 1773, organized the Porter Family Association in the Rittenhouse last night and elected Dr. C. C. Taggart president; D. J. Brown, secretary, and Andrew Hare, treasurer.

NEW KENSINGTON BOND ISSUE SOLD FROM HERE

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Oct. 19.—A $22,500 bond issue, for fire apparatus, was sold by council last night to S. M. Vockel & Co., of Pittsburgh, for $23,210.33.

WIFE WRITES "GOING FOR GOOD"—KEEPS HER WORD

"Good bye, Joe. I feel sorry for you, but this time I am going for good."

That was the last message Mrs. Betty Ulrich penned to her husband, Joseph Ulrich, 2420 Eighteenth street, says Ulrich, who is suing for divorce. The testimony came out in court before Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

The couple first separated six weeks after their marriage in 1924, went back to live together for a short time and then Mrs. Ulrich left for New York. Her husband has not seen or heard of her for a year.

AARON SAPIRO WILL ADDRESS LOCAL JEWRY

Aaron Sapiro, co-operative organizer and attorney, whose suit for $1,000,000 libel against Henry Ford recently was settled while the trial was in progress, will speak to Pittsbury Jewry tonight on the issues involved in the case and its settlement.

While declaring his utter faith in Mr. Ford's sincerity, Mr. Sapiro would not discuss the case today at a luncheon tendered him in the William Penn Hotel by Leo Lehman. He said he would reserve his remarks on the case until tonight when he speaks in the Y. M. & Y. W. H. A. in Bellefield avenue, Oakland.

After his lecture tonight Mr. Sapiro will go to New York, where he has opened offices, and will engage in the practice of law after establishing six months' residence. He will specialize in industrial co-operation and continue as consultant to marketing organizations.

SEEKS FREEDOM AFTER 8 YEARS

Joe Sarappo, Mt. Pleasant, who has served eight of a 10 to 12-year sentence in the Western Penitentiary, believes that he should have been at liberty long ago. Today, through Attorney Paul K. McCormick, Greensburg, he filed habeas corpus proceedings before Judge A. B. Reid in Common Pleas Court.

In his petition he claims that under the act of 1893 the maximum sentence for being an accessory after the fact in a murder case is but two years. He was sentenced September 5, 1919, upon conviction of being an accessory to the murder of Fannie Cardello, killed by Black Handers in Mt. Pleasant.

REPORTS UNION OF MT. OLIVER ASSURED

A majority of the voters of Mt. Oliver have signed the petition for union with Pittsburgh, making annexation a foregone conclusion, J. Fred Sexauer, chairman of the committee heading the plan, announced last night. More than 1,800 persons have signed the petition Mr. Sexauer said, and it is still being circulated.

It will be filed and presented to court within a few days and a special election on the matter may be held within the next two months. The annexation move was started quietly several weeks ago.

ENGLISH SCORES M'GOVERN BOLTING

County Controller C. C. McGovern was criticized by Councilman W. Y. English, speaker at the noonday meeting in Hotel Henry today of the Regular Republican organization, for becoming a candidate for county commissioner after being defeated in the primaries for the controller nomination.

"The Republican party is a responsible organization. If it, in Pittsburgh and Allegheny county, elects men to office who are incompetent and who are not a credit to the party, the party itself should—and would—purge itself of those persons," he said.

"I know the Republican party is big enough to insist on its nominees giving the people real service, else I would not support them myself.

"The candidates on the Republican ticket are men who respect party regularity and the will of the people of the party.

"They are not chronic office seekers, rejected by the people through the regular primary ballot for one post, allow their political desires to prompt them to run for another at the general election in defiance to the already expressed wishes of the party members."

DRIVER FREED IN DAMAGE SUIT

A verdict for the defendant was rendered in the case of Raymond Cavanaugh, 11, against Paul Kress for injuries received in a motor accident. Young Cavanaugh was playing in a North Side street, when a truck owned by Krauss tore ligaments in the boy's foot as the lad stepped in front of the car. The boy was playing ball in the street and did not see the truck approaching. The case was heard before Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court.

BIBLE CONFERENCE HEARS LONDON DOCTOR

Jesus Christ is the center of all history, the center of all scripture revelation and the center of the attractions in heaven, Dr. Cortland Myers, of London, England, said last night at an interdenominational Bible conference meeting in East Liberty Presbyterian Church. "You have a great Saviour," he said. "Do not minimize him nor permit anyone to do it for you."

TWO OF A KIND

Betty and Peggy Nussbaum, "University Twins," of Ambridge, Pa., declare that they are not nearly so studious as the picture suggests. They intend to become school teachers, they declare.

WED FOR "SPITE"

Frank X. Dixon, crippled North Side World War veteran, whose wife married him to spite another man, Dixon says, declared he would sooner face the devastating shell fire which robbed him of his leg and left him nearly speechless, than go through the red tape of getting a divorce, which he has asked. Dixon says his wife never lived with him. They were married while he was convalescing from an operation in the West Penn hospital. Mrs. Dixon is not contesting her husband's action.

FRANK DIXON

Sooner Face Fire Than Divorce, Veteran Says

"I'd sooner be up in the Argonne facing hell fire than have to go through this red tape of getting a divorce," declared Frank X. Dixon, crippled North Side World War veteran, who testified before Judge Ambrose B. Reid in his divorce action against his wife, Dorothy Moor Dixon.

"She married me just for spite," Dixon said bitterly. The former doughboy, a veteran of the Ninth Infantry, Second Division, can barely speak above a whisper, a German machine gun bullet having torn away part of his windpipe just before shrapnel shattered his right leg.

"We were friends before the war," he continued. "I got hit in the Argonne on November 3, 1918, and had to stay in the hospital almost continually up until last July. I had just come back from the Naval Hospital at Philadelphia in March, 1925, and was convalescing in West Penn Hospital, when Dorothy agreed to marry me.

"She did it for spite," he declared bitterly. "We never lived together and I soon found out she didn't care for me at all. She married me to spite another man whose love she had lost."

Dixon, without his wounds, would be a perfect specimen of manhood. He is over six feet tall, and despite the handicap of his crutches, he still is an imposing figure. He has undergone 15 operations and now is under government physicians' care.

Government regulations on compensation matters made a divorce necessary, he said, or he would never have sought severance of his marital ties.

Mrs. Dixon lives with her mother and a sister at 1700 Buena Vista street. She is a telephone operator at the Presbyterian Hospital, where she has worked since her marriage. She refused to discuss the marriage, saying that if she had not wished to be divorced, she would have contested the proceedings.

"GAS" EXPLODES AS MAN FILLS TANK BY LAMPLIGHT

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—While Frank McCormick was pouring gasoline into an automobile tank by the light of a lamp last night the gasoline exploded and set fire to the barn of George Price near here. Barn and automobile were destroyed, causing loss of $4,000. McCormick suffered slight burns.

FALL-SINCLAIR -:- TRIAL OPENS -:- AT WASHINGTON

TWO WOMEN ON JURY

Miss Bernice Heaton and Mrs. Annella L. Bailey, of Washington, occupy chairs No. 1 and 2 on the jury selected for the trial of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior, and Harry F. Sinclair on charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States in the leasing of the naval oil reserve in Wyoming.

SINCLAIR CONFIDENT

Harry F. Sinclair (on right) with his mother and Martin Littleton, his attorney, leaving the District of Columbia Supreme Court, where Sinclair and Fall are standing trial. Note the confident bearing of Sinclair. He is many times a millionaire, proprietor of the Rancocas racing stables, and once in his varied career was offered the throne of Albania.

Thrills, Intrigue, Joy All Margie's Until—

The freest of all women is the American woman. She can think, work, play, act, pretty much as she wishes. But sometimes she arrives at the point where she wants to play with the serious things, the dangerous things of life—

At this point, Gilbert Rogers started his story of Margie Marsh, the story "It Never Pays," that begins tomorrow in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

And Margie, performing with the daring and adventurous in life, did quite a few things to make a story. For instance, she was told by her financial backer to meet Mr. Tubby Wells, symbol of wealth and the catch of the social whirl at Newport. Tubby was just about bowled over when he began to talk too much, told Margie too much, and . . .

Then there came Adrien Martin, considerable of a gay young blade, one of the "Who's Who" of American society, one of those fellows whose names creep into the society columns now and then.

And then the parade of American royalty continued. A yacht party, a marvelous house party, a wine party, a tea party—Margie was part and parcel of them all until. . . .

This thrilling story of high society is a tale of high lights—a story that many will enjoy. Begin it tomorrow and you'll continue it in the Sun-Telegraph.

BOY KING HURRIED AWAY FROM PARALYSIS PLAGUE

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Fearing that 5-year-old King Michael might be exposed to infantile paralysis, prevalent in Rumania, his mother has taken him hurriedly to a resort in the Carpathian Mountains, according to a dispatch from the Telegraph Union's Bucharest correspondent.

The dispatch said a case of the disease had been diagnosed in the royal palace.

TEACHERS AND PARENTS HEAR EDUCATORS

Addresses by Miss Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Thomas Walton Galloway, department of educational measures, American Social Hygiene Association, and Dr. Roswell H. Johnson, president of the American Eugenic Association, were special features of today's sessions of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers. Tonight the pupils of the Andrews school will give a safety pageant, and Dr. Fadra Holmes Wilson, of State Normal School, California, will speak on "A Forward Look in Education."

More than 400 teachers, parents and educators were present last night at the banquet in the Hotel Schenley, which formally opened the convention. Dr. James N. Rule, deputy superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction, was the chief speaker and his subject, "Pennsylvania's Service to Her Children." He pointed out that from an educational viewpoint the state has an interest in every child of the commonwealth, regardless of race, color, age or habitation, 1,700,000 of them receiving basic instruction in the public elementary schools.

DOUBTS IN-LAW MARRIAGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Just when everyone thought the Carrington case disposed of with Col. Edward and his wife divorced and brother Campbell, one time co-respondent, safely married to his former sister-in-law, Col. Edward C. Carrington, millionaire lawyer, announced that he didn't believe it. He said an investigation sponsored by him had failed to reveal any trace of the reported marriage of Campbell Carrington to Mrs. Anna Walsh Carrington.

The marriage was announced here last week by George I. Schein, a Chicago attorney. Schein said he had obtained the license, later presiding at a wedding breakfast at the Ritz Carlton and then intimated that the newlyweds had begun a honeymoon trip to Europe.

Col. Edward, wanting to be sure that he was free "from any further legal or moral obligations to the lady," was skeptical. He employed a detective—the same one who was with him when he caned Brother Campbell last winter outside Mrs. Carrington's apartment—and the detective learned nothing.

The colonel then notified the press that no record of a marriage license could be found here, no trace of a marriage ceremony could be uncovered, no wedding breakfast had been held at the Ritz Carlton and the State Department had issued no passports to the Campbell Carringtons.

C. OF C. CREATES BUREAU TO GET CONVENTIONS

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday announced establishment of a convention and visitors' service. The action was declared to be the result of a conviction that Pittsburgh can obtain a much larger number of conventions provided that not only the work of securing them but the responsibility for their proper accommodation and entertainment be looked after in a systematic manner by a service division of the Chamber of Commerce doing nothing else.

Raymond M. Kenny has been appointed secretary of the new division, and President Gaylord has been authorized by the board of directors to appoint three new standing committees: 1, securing conventions; 2, convention entertainment; 3, visitors.

Thomas C. Foley, for two years secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Ellwood City, Pa., has been appointed secretary of the natural resources division of the Pittsburgh Chamber to succeed A. S. Keller, promoted to the secretaryship of the council organization.

"The Lion and the Mouse," Old Stage Success, Will Be Made Into Stage Drama by Warners

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19.

THEY say a good play never dies. Warner Brothers evidently believe in that old saying, for out of moth balls, camphor and many wrappings, they have taken "The Lion and the Mouse," Charles Kleine's once famous play, and made plans to produce it—as a special, if you please, with Vitaphone trimmings.

Warners came into possession of the film rights to this drama of another day when they bought the output of the Vitagraph Company. Vitagraph once produced it with Alice Joyce as the secretary.

Leila Hyams plays the secretary in the modern version of the mouse, so to speak, while Alec Francis has been cast as the lion. Buster Collier, who has been vacationing in New York, will return in time to play the juvenile lead.

I am curious to see how this play will go with modern audiences. While it was a tremendous hit as a stage play years ago, today it may seem old-fashioned. Perhaps Robert Lord will overcome that fault by making some changes in the script. Lloyd Bacon will direct.

No short story in years has aroused as much attention as "Mother Knows Best." Edna Ferber wrote it in her best style and after it appeared in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, everyone said, "Ah! Elsie Janis." It is the story of a girl whose mother planned and ran her career as Mrs. Bierbower has managed Elsie Janis. Miss Ferber has never said that she meant Elsie Janis, of course. Frank Borzage will direct this story, which is dramatic enough to make either the best picture in the world or the worst.

To be or not to be—that is the subject that is bothering the executives at Paramount-Famous Lasky at the moment. Whether it were better to release Eric Von Stroheim's drama, "The Wedding March," with its sequel, "The Honeymooners," as two distinct pictures, or to present it in its expurgated form as a single movie. Josef Von Sternberg, the director, who cut and edited it, pleased some of the Paramount executives and others were not so pleased. Pat Powers is one who insists that the two pictures be shown. Famous have compromised by sending both versions cast with B. P. Schulberg to be shown to the executives in New York.

Walter Morosco, who preceded his wife, Corinne Griffith, to New York, is said to be there for the sole purpose of buying plays for Miss Griffith's next picture and incidentally her first independent production. Yes—Corinne is about to branch out as a producer. From now on she will only release her pictures through United Artists. She will be responsible for story, cast and direction. Dr. A. G. Giannini, whose faith in the film people never wavers, is said to have furnished the capital. Dr. Giannini, who is head of the Bowery and East River National, a branch of the Bank of Italy here, once told me he had never lost a nickel through his dealings with film people.

Mary Duncan, who created "Poppy" in the "Shanghai Gesture," is to have the big chance she has longed for in the movies. Lucky Mary Duncan. She has been told in confidence, of course, since the story is being kept very quiet that she will play the leading feminine role in "Four Devils," F. W. Murnau's next picture.

A report that Pola Negri was seen walking along the Rue de Paix seems to be a case of mistaken identity. Also the report that she had gone to Europe to find a suitable director. Pola starts in about a month with Josef von Sternberg directing. That is as soon as he finishes the Jannings picture, "The General." Emil Jannings, by the way, looks very handsome in his Russian uniform. In his delightful broken English yesterday he told me that he plays a Russian general who comes to Hollywood and plays as an extra the very part he played in real life. "I play," says Mr. Jannings, "a 'lousy' extra." Honest, that's what he said. He had no idea he had said anything out of the way. You see, his English is somewhat limited.

The Chicago Board of Censors has passed "Underworld." That's a matter of great satisfaction, because Paramount was afraid that it would never reach Chicago. It is supposed to deal with the underworld of that city and was written by Ben Hecht about that phase of life he knows so much about. I should like to know what "Scar Face" Caponi's set thinks of it.

Players Coming -:- To Pittsburgh Stage -:- Next Week

HELEN DOYLE will bestow her smiles in "My Maryland," an operetta booked for the Alvin.

BEATRICE THOMSON is an English actress, coming in "The Constant Nymph," Nixon attraction.

GERTRUDE EDERLE, among stage attractions scheduled for the Penn Theater.

Largest Natural Bridge Seen in News Reel

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The current issue of International Newsreel contains the first motion pictures ever made of the world's largest natural bridge. In 1909, it was first revealed to white men by Jasja Begay, a Navajo Indian.

Three weeks ago an expedition set out to place a bronze tablet to commemorate the discovery of the bridge. In the party that made the long hazardous trip was an International cameraman, who filmed this natural wonder. The bridge is in an isolated part of the Navajo Mountains, Ariz.

DRAMATIC PLAYS IN BILLS

"The Constant Nymph," coming to the Nixon next week, played five months in New York and it has been produced in London, Berlin and Vienna. The sale of seats opens tomorrow.

Sidney Howard's "The Silver Cord" will be seen in the Pitt for one week, beginning Monday evening, and playing matinees Thursday and Saturday. The seat sale opens tomorrow. Laura Hope Crews of the original Theater Guild production last season, will head the cast.

"My Maryland," a new American operetta, will come to the Alvin next Monday night. It has received the indorsement of the Church and Drama Association of which the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman is president. Tickets will be placed on sale tomorrow.

The Keith-Albee vaudeville program booked for next week in the Davis features Healy and Cross, character song artists. On the screen will be "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" with May Robson, Phyllis Haver and Harrison Ford.

MUSIC SHOW FEATURE IS COMING TO KLEMAN'S

Red Tracey's "Rounders," a late feature of a musical show now running in New York, will furnish the music at Kleman's East Liberty night club, beginning tomorrow. A floor show comprising Helene Miller, Rhea Mae and Red Tracy, in songs and dances, will be presented at 11 o'clock each evening.

Marion Davies Has Niece in Cast of New Film

In "The Fair Co-Ed," Marion Davies' now starring production, Pepi Lederer realizes her life's ambition.

Pepi, young school girl and niece of Miss Davies, makes her screen debut in this Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer picture directed by Sam Wood. Miss Lederer was spending her vacation in California when she reminded Marion of a promise to let her have a tryout in pictures. True to her word the star assigned her niece to a minor role in the hilarious college farce.

Johnny Mack Brown has the leading male role and proves he is equally good in films as he was in football a couple of years ago when he was star halfback for Alabama University's gridiron team.

GIGLI TO SING HERE IN FRIDAY NIGHT CONCERT

The concert season opens Friday night, when Beniamino Gigli, celebrated Metropolitan Opera tenor, makes his first appearance in Pittsburgh in the opening May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque. Gigli's program will include the Italian arias from "Martha," "L'Africaine," "Pagliacci," "Rigoletto," and other favorite operas. He will be assisted by Anne Tyson, contralto.

FEAR!
Often Ruins Health
Destroys Beauty!
Even a falling hair on a bare shoulder will cause some women to shudder—imagine things! And being constantly apprehensive soon ruins one's health and beauty. Yet few women suspect the underlying cause of their nervousness and disturbed state of mind. Fear is usually accompanied by slight ills, any of which may be a symptom of System Poisoning, professionally called "TOXEMIA". Such women should always keep Partola handy, the mild pleasant laxative and internal antiseptic, because ordinary laxative pills and waters do not cleanse the bowels and system of the poisonous toxins that keep them nervous and apprehensive. When Partola is taken at night, next day mind is clear, nerves steadier, bowels move gently—and that's the real secret of womanly strength, beauty, and freedom from sickness and fear. All good druggists sell Partola. Regular box 30¢, double size box 50¢.

PRESERVATIVES OPPOSED BY BOTTLERS

Although Dr. James W. Kellogg, director and chief chemist of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, informed the Keystone State Bottlers' Protective Association that the use of infinitesimal amounts of certain harmless chemicals for preserving beverages was not illegal, the organization today went on record as opposed to the use of any preservatives.

The association, which has 465 members, is holding its tenth annual convention at the William Penn.

An address by Prof. J. C. Fetterman, director of the National Certification Laboratory, formerly professor of biology and dean of the college of liberal arts of the University of Pittsburgh, on "Invisible Enemies of the Bottling Industry," was a feature of today's session. Prof. Fetterman announced that the secret of preserving pineapple juice, without chemicals, on which one company alone had vainly spent $750,000, had been solved. He exhibited a sample. He did not explain the process except to mention that the juice had been subjected to a temperature of 147 degrees Fahrenheit. He also showed samples of orange juice and sweet cider, similarly preserved, and said that the new discovery made it possible to distribute throughout the world fresh fruit juices, a thing which has not been practical heretofore.

SEES M'GOVERN AS G. O. P. TOOL

The "McGovern-Shields movement" for county commissioner is "nothing but a veiled attempt to elect three Republicans to the Board of County Commissioners," Commissioner James Houlahen, Democratic incumbent, declared in a plea for re-election to Democratic county leaders assembled in the Democratic headquarters, 411 Grant street.

Commissioner Houlahen cited the state constitution provision that the minority party must be represented on the commission and asserted that to elect either McGovern or Shields would be to defeat the intention of the constitutional provision. He further declared that this is "the regular effort made every four years" to elect three Republicans and pointed in substantiation of his argument to the fact that the "so-called independents" are not contesting any portion of the Republican slate other than the County Commissioners.

NEGRO KILLER GETS 6 YEARS

Ben Shaffer, a Negro of Moon Run, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by a verdict returned today in Criminal Court before Judge Richard W. Martin. He was sentenced to from three to six years in the penitentiary. The case was given to the jury late yesterday afternoon.

Shaffer was charged with shooting James Lawrence, also a Negro of Moon Run, following a quarrel over a dollar in a crap game at a house of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, where both lived, August 11. Shaffer claimed that he had shot in self-defense when Lawrence attacked him outside the house after the quarrel had apparently ended.

Wear Weave Coats

1200 . . . of Sturdy Qualities . . . Remarkably Priced

FOR "all-service" purposes—travel, shopping, motoring, business, school and general wear.

They are the type of coat that should have a place in every smart wardrobe. Suited admirably to general wear and sports requirements, they may be worn many, many times when one wishes to save a dressy cloth or fur garment.

They are so versatile that one answers the coat demands of most women.

Fur, the distinguishing feature of this year's coats, is effectively used in large collars.

* * * *

All of these coats were made to order. They are worthy of a place in regular stocks. Features especially to be noted are the hand-stitched silk crepe lining, wide single-piece facings, and general finish throughout.

THIS event emphasizes more than low price. It stresses quality and style as well. The value-giving powers and the fashion leadership of this store have co-ordinated in such a manner as to bring the most commanding coat offering of this important coat season!

Fabrics are fine grade woolens, the majority from England and Scotland. Fur trimmings are in the front rank of the mode. Styles are of today . . . and tomorrow!

SECOND FLOOR

A Splash of Color in the Splash of Rain

Rainy-day fashions are smart as can be this season, and an ensemble to wear in the rain should be planned just as thoughtfully as any other outfit, with just as much attention to details.

The choice of a slicker should be simple enough, considering the gay array of conservative and bright-colored leatherized and rubberized fabrics being used in them. A particularly attractive style is of alligator-printed rubberized material, made with raglan sleeves, pouch pockets and a swagger belt. In smart shades of brown, blue, green and red. Sizes 14 to 20 years. $8.95. (Second Floor.)

The sturdy little felt hats that stand the rain as well as anything, come in all colors and are priced from $5.00 up.

Basque Berets are coming into popular favor, and although they could hardly be called rain-proof, they at least will weather the storm without damage to themselves. $1.50 and $2.00. (Fourth Floor.)

An umbrella will be needed if you choose to wear a better hat. The color should be one that will look well with both your rainy-day ensemble and your regular street and afternoon clothes. The Nu-Shape is a popular type, smart in every respect. Wanted shades. $5.00 to $15.00. (Main Floor.)

Washable capeskin gloves that won't spot, are a practical choice for rainy-day wear. They come in shades of beige and gray that will harmonize with fall wardrobes, and they may be had in slip-ons and more dressy novelty styles. $3.00 to $4.50. (Main Floor.)

Dust or Gunmetal Hose—choose them to wear on wet pavements. These won't show the splashes as much as other shades, and they are obtainable in almost all weights and qualities of stockings. (Main Floor.)

CORONER HOLDS WOMAN AS HUSBAND'S SLAYER

TAUNTS DROVE WIFE TO FIRE SHOT

Angeline Bove, 22, who police testified, shot her husband, Alphonse Bove, 26, when he told her he was going out with "another person," was held today for the grand jury on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury.

Bove was shot in his home at 7014 Agnew street on September 29 after he is said to have taunted his young wife, who suspected him of associating with other women. Mrs. Bove fired the single shot contained in a revolver she had concealed under an apron. Bove died after being removed to a hospital.

Approve Electrical Traffic Signals

Pittsburgh's $15,000 traffic survey, which has been in progress since last March, today had brought a recommendation that co-ordinated electric traffic controls be installed at 100 points in the downtown section at a cost of $114,200.

The report containing the recommendation was submitted to Mayor Charles H. Kline and City Council yesterday by John M. Rice, chairman of the special survey committee of the Better Traffic Committee of Pittsburgh.

The argument for the electric control system holds that it would save from 30 to 40 per cent in time in crossing the signalized area, that it would save some $16,800 yearly in traffic control, at the same time providing a 16-hour traffic service instead of the eight-hour service now in vogue. The lights, it is said, would materially reduce accidents, expedite street car service, make pedestrian street crossing easier, and postpone the day when a major plan will have to be developed to avoid traffic saturation of Pittsburgh's narrow streets.

WILSON'S WIDOW LEGION GUEST

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will be the Armistice Day honor guest of the American Legion, November 11, it was disclosed by Attorney William H. McNaugher yesterday when he asked Council to appropriate $2,000 to help defray expenses incident to the dedication of a Woodrow Wilson memorial plaque in the City-County Building.

The plaque will be of bronze and will be placed in the main foyer of the building. Because of the condition of the city's finances, Council members agreed to guarantee the appropriation of the money about January 15 out of next year's revenues and individual members of Council offered to indorse the bills.

GLASSPORT MAN'S SUIT OVER CASH BOND HEARD

The case of Joseph Gribshaw of 615 Delaware avenue, Glassport, against the City Builders' Corporation of America, in which the plaintiff claims that the cash bond which he deposited on a promise of employment was used as a first installment on one of the corporation's lots in the South Hills, was argued before Alderman G. J. Anderson yesterday. A decision was reserved until tomorrow.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON

As guest of the American Legion, she will attend ceremonies here Armistice Day, when a plaque in memory of her husband is to be placed in the City-County building.

FAMILY ABSENT, HOME LOOTED

Thieves last night ransacked the residence of George W. Pusey, 515 Sherman avenue, police discovered this morning. The family is in Orlando, Fla., and the value of the loot could not be ascertained. This morning a patrolman found a cellar window broken and investigating found the house had been thoroughly searched.

Grave "Ghouls" Only Frat Candidates

Police armed with riot guns who went in search of ghouls in St. Michael's Cemetery, South Eighteenth street extension, early this morning, found one youth crawling on his hands and knees through the wet grass and another painstakingly copying the names on grave markers.

Both were released when they proved to the satisfaction of the police that they were Carnegie Tech fraternity candidates going through their paces. Neither knew the other was in the place until they were rounded up. In answer to a telephone call received by Sergt. Andrew Pietazrak, at South Side police station, Lieut. John Joyce and Motorcycle Patrolman Louis Foster rushed to the cemetery.

SECRETARY DAVIS ON MISSISSIPPI INSPECTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Secretary of War Davis left here for a tour of inspection of the Mississippi Warrior River Barge Line and the flood control area of the Lower Mississippi. Before leaving he announced that he had asked the Department of Commerce to submit a commercial survey of the business possibilities of the barge line. That most of the breaks in the levee system as a result of the flood disaster of this summer have been repaired.

THE NEW ERA IN TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION

SPEED AND MORE SPEED

IT takes less than half as long to make an out-of-town call today as it did seven years ago.

The average time required in 1920 was four minutes. Today, it is less than two minutes.

If you called a point over 200 miles away in 1920, you waited about fifteen minutes for the connection.

Today very few such calls require as much as ten minutes, and most of them go through in less than five minutes.

An outstanding accomplishment!

Greater speed has brought a tremendous increase in the use of out-of-town service.

This new-era art is making neighbors of a whole nation —and already has brought within the sound of your voice practically the entire English-speaking world.

Explaining the Peoples Insured Savings Plan

¶ The Peoples Insured Savings Plan is a 4% Savings Account with the Peoples Savings and Trust Company of Pittsburgh combined with Life Insurance in the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

¶ You deposit a small fixed sum of money each month regularly for a period of 120 months, at the end of which time you receive $1,000 or more in cash.

The plan is distinctly a "live to win" idea.

¶ Your monthly deposit is $7.45 if you are between the ages of 18 and 40; $7.59 between the ages 41 and 45; and $7.84 between 46 and 50.

¶ If you do not live to carry out your program, at your death, the full amount of money which you intended to save is paid at once by the Peoples Savings and Trust Company and The Equitable Life to any person you have named to receive it, provided that you have made your deposits regularly.

¶ For example, if you are saving $1,000 for yourself, but die after having saved only $200 of it, The Equitable Life makes up the $800 difference, and the entire $1,000 goes to your children, wife, mother or whoever you have named to receive it. The insurance feature costs about 2 cents a day.

¶ The deposits which go to the credit of those who join the Plan receive 4% compound interest from the Peoples Savings and Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

¶ Any healthy person, between the ages of 18 and 50, may join. Those engaged in extra hazardous business may not join.

she just won't eat

Countless children victims of cachexia (run-down condition)

When children refuse to eat or develop strange appetite disorders, and consequently become nervous, anaemic and run down, the trouble may often be traced to the lack of a vital substance which is abundant in yeast.

As a tonic, regulator, stimulant and corrective for appetite and digestive troubles, give dried yeast to your children. Give it freely and for your protection give Yeast Foam Tablets.

They are an absolutely pure food; they don't ferment; they help build healthy tissue and good strong normal bodies. And this is the only yeast that is easy to eat and has a delicious taste.

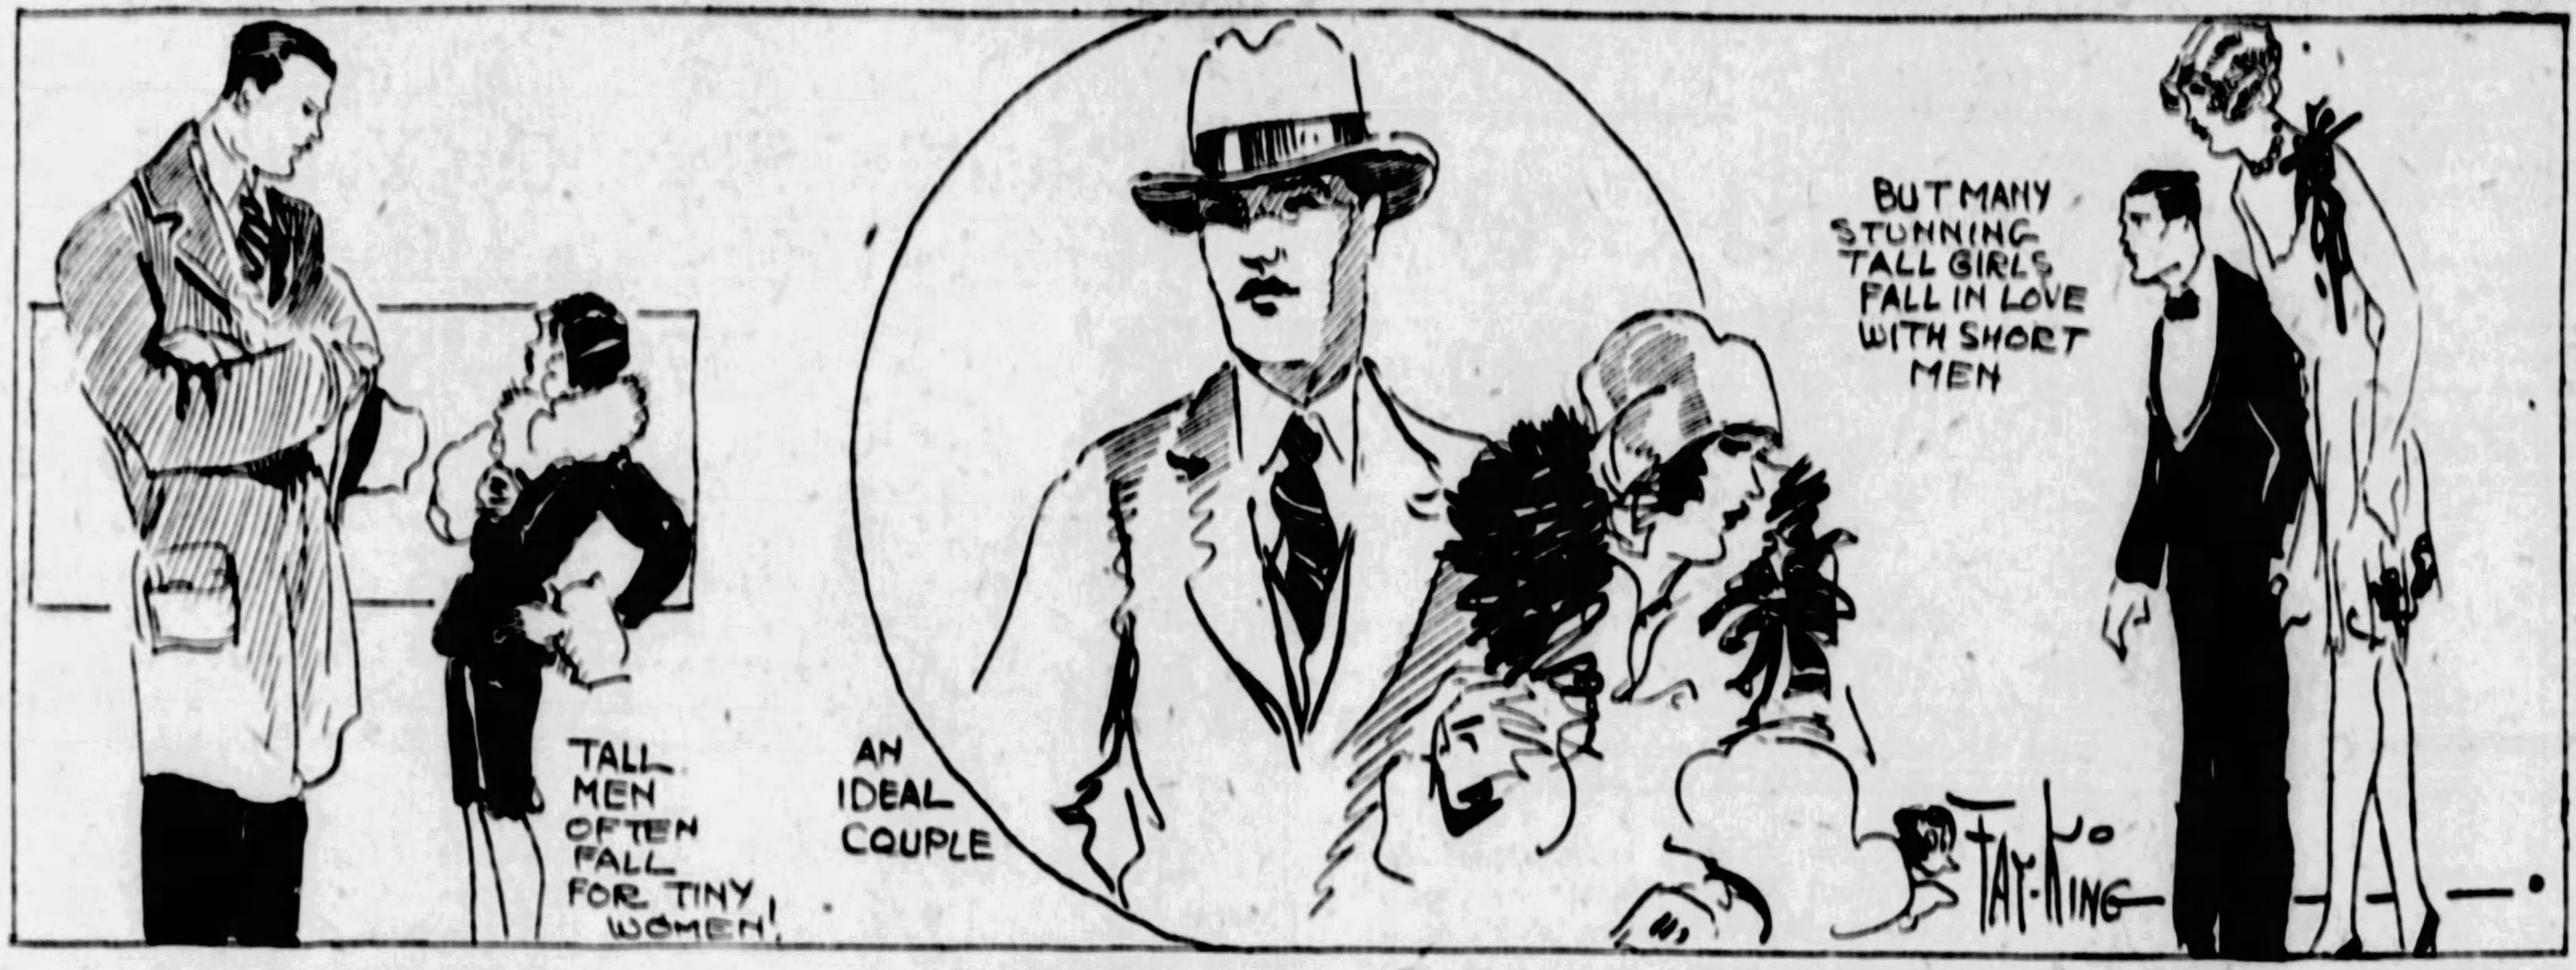
Dancing Reveals Ideal Couples, Says Fay King



TALL MEN OFTEN FALL FOR TINY WOMEN!
AN IDEAL COUPLE
BUT MANY STUNNING TALL GIRLS FALL IN LOVE WITH SHORT MEN FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

I DERIVE as much pleasure in watching others dance as I do in dancing myself.

Nothing is more lovely than to see a graceful couple on the dance floor.

The other evening I watched a young pair enough alike in looks to be brother and sister, which I think they were. They were both very tall. He must have been over six feet and she was at least five feet eight or nine, but they were grace personified and looked wonderful together.

From an artistic standpoint a man should be about a head taller than the girl he is with, but love and friendship do not always stop to figure artistic lines.

One sees very tall men head over heels in love with tiny girls and they do not care how they look when dancing.

And why should they?

Again one sees some beautiful goddess head and shoulders taller than some man she adores and they are perfectly happy.

The dance floor seems to be a place where all types get together and have a fine time. No one thinks of smiling at the fat man who cavorts around with a damsel of skeleton dimensions.

Over-plump ladies gallop about with mere shadows in a dinner suit.

The tall and the short, thin and the fat, all seem to be nimble on their feet and to be having a glorious time, perfectly satisfied with their own dancing partners.

No wonder dancing is the most popular indoor sport!

When Headache Affects Women on One Side

FROM time to time I have told you about headache, its forms and how to overcome it. Today I want to refer briefly to a special and very annoying type of headache.

We ought not to have headache. We should not be conscious of our various parts and organs. It is only when there is something wrong that we have them forced upon our attention.

What a wonderful day it is when you get up in the morning "feeling like a million dollars"—not an ache or a pain and no worry of any sort, except the desire for a big breakfast! As we grow older such days are rare, and yet they ought not to be.

The sad thing about it is that we lay the foundation for most of our troubles before we have learned how to live. That is the reason why parents and teachers should begin early to teach the child the why and wherefore of good health. Many a painful ailment of later life would have been avoided had its victim begun early to observe the rules of right living.

We do have symptoms which are pretty obscure as to their origin. They are terribly painful things, but it is difficult to find the reason for their appearance.

The symptom I shall mention today is of that sort. It is a one-sided headache. The doctors call it "hemicrania." One side of the head feels perfectly normal. That is, there is not a single suspicion of discomfort, while exactly one-half of the head feels as if it would break open. One of my patients described it as if she "had a sore throat from the part of the hair to the bottom of the ear."

Most of the sufferers from one-sided headaches are women. They are women between the ages of 18 and 45. When they get older the sypmtoms disappear.

Not only does hemicrania appear during the active portion of a woman's life, but also it is very likely to be associated with her menstrual periods. If it appears before the period begins the pain is apt to disappear when the flow starts.

If the flow is scanty there may be an attack during the period. There appears to be a definite relationship between the two sypmtoms. If the menstrual function is well carried on there is not so much prospect of headache.

The hemicrania may not be observed until just at the end of the period. When it does come it lasts all day, disappears at nightfall, or it may continue for two or three days.

It is not uncommon for this symptom to run in a family. The victim tells us that her mother had it. Her daughter may inherit it.

The best thing I can tell you about this trouble is that it is no more serious than the temporary suffering. The kind of headache I am talking about does not mean brain disease or any other really serious trouble.

Temporary relief of the pain may be had by using hot and cold applications to the back of the neck. First apply a towel wrung out in water hot as can be borne. Immediately afterward dash cold water on the neck.

It may be that cold applications to the forehead and at the same time a hot towel to the back of the neck will be a combination that is helpful. It is worth while to try.

The bowels should be opened and the diet restricted.

Answers to Health Queries

J. B. M. Q.—I have a baby two months old and she will not take any water. What shall I do?

A.—Water is not absolutely necessary at this age if the child refuses it, but it should be encouraged to take water.

A. C. C. Q.—What causes sties? What do you suggest in regard to treatment?

A.—Indiscretion in diet is often the cause. Sometimes the eyes need to be examined. Correct your diet and have your eyes examined to see if glasses are needed. For other information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

J. M. T. Q.—What is the cause of gritting the teeth while sleeping?

A.—Very often this is a symptom of intestinal worms. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE HE-VAMP

VERILY, verily, my Daughter, not ALL the vamps wear knee-length skirts and rolled stockings!

Nay, some of them wear trousers and mustaches and silk opera hats and snappy top-coats. And unto these every woman is a new GAME and every damsel another "experiment."

I charge thee, be not deceived by the He-Vamp. For his words are full of honey and caution; but his ways are full of guile. And his heart is as a transient hotel wherein there is room for all and where no woman abideth for more than a day.

HELEN ROWLAND

Lo, one damsel leadeth him to a secret trysting place. And upon the next evening he leadeth another damsel thither and telleth her the same sweet fairy tale.

One woman quoteth him tender verses from her favorite poet. And upon the following night he murmureth the same tender verses into the ear of the next woman.

One damsel guideth him unto her pet restaurant. And, within the week, he had led another thither.

One woman teacheth him a new line and within the day he hath sprung it upon another damsel as his OWN.

For all women are as ONE woman unto him—and that one a new addition to his "collection."

All his "fascinating ways" are but parlor tricks and stale "stunts" culled from the garden of Experience; all his "lines" are second-hand and all his love-making but a cheap edition! And originality is not IN him!

Go to. Some men collect jewels, and some men collect books and some collect butterflies. And unto these, each treasure in his collection is a beloved possession.

But, the He-Vamp collecteth only WOMEN—and each of these is but a passing amusement.

Then, beware lest thou fall for one of these! For every damsel saith in her heart, "Lo, he may have only PLAYED with others; but, with ME, he is serious!"

But I shall answer her, "Ha-ha. Do not jolly thyself!"

For, save his own vanity, the He-Vamp taketh nothing in all the world seriously—not even a FUNERAL!

SELAH.

Five Circles

Which of these five circles has the greatest area?

Notice first the outer circle. To find its area you must subtract the circles that it contains.

The same is true of all the others, with the exception of the innermost circle—five—which has all of its own area.

This means that you must compare the stripes formed between the circles themselves.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, October 20

Difficulties are things that show what men are made of.—EPICTETUS.

A DAY of conflicting interests is foreshown by the contradictory influences vibrating from powerful stellar activities.

While those in employment are under excellent auspices for recognition or advancement, and while Mars lends a vivifying ray to most activities, other aspects portend setback and disappointment, as well as treachery and underhand methods. It may be that the lowered state of health may contribute to postponements or make one subject to loss through treachery.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of conflicting interests. There may be benefits in employment, but see that the health be not a contributing factor to delays or intrigue. With care, all difficulties may be surmounted.

A child born on this day may have a degree of energy and initiative and should do well in employment, but it may also have difficulties to contend with and be subject to treachery and intrigue.

Notable Nativity: Emma Calve, prima donna.

What's the Answer?

1. Why is man's brain better than the brains of animals?
2. Where in the British Isles is snail-racing a popular sport?
3. What father and son were court painters to Francis I of France?
4. What is the Kremlin?
5. Why can parrots talk?
6. Are men growing taller or shorter?
7. Where are babies sometimes born with green eyes?
8. Why do so many flowers have bright colors?
9. What famous general in the War of 1812 later became President of the United States?
10. Why is it that an ostrich cannot fly?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions.

1. George Sand is said to have had a great influence on the compositions of Chopin.
2. In China, Western education is blamed for the upheaval of the nation.
3. The Delian League was a league of Greek city-states, religious in origin.
4. Marshal Foch is reported as having predicted that there will be a great war in the next 15 or 20 years.
5. Queen Elizabeth died of bitter remorse because the jealous Countess of Nottingham did not give her the ring that was intrusted to her by the Earl of Essex until after his execution. The Earl would have been pardoned had the ring been given her in time.
6. The name of a small town in Arizona is called "Total Wreck."
7. The opening three lines of John Milton's "Paradise Lost" are

"Of Man's first disobedience, and the fruit
Of that forbidden tree whose mortal taste
Brought death into the world, and all our woe."

8. In some kinds of plants this is caused by the fall of temperature at night; in others it is caused by lack of light.
9. The term "hair's breadth," now used to denote an infinitesimal space, was at one time an actual measure. It was the width of 16 hairs laid side by side.
10. The average body contains about two gallons of blood.

Cold weather outside Paint weather inside

PRACTICAL painters will tell you that late fall and winter is the best time to paint inside the house. Floors, doors, walls and woodwork of all kinds are best protected during the cold season and the cost is much less. Then when spring creeps around your housecleaning is made lighter, for painted surfaces are easiest to keep clean.

Look to the quality of the paint to give your surfaces utmost beauty and lasting protection. For more than a third century Lawrence Paints and Varnishes have proven their superiority. There is a Lawrence paint for every painting job, in a range of colors to suit every individual taste.

Ask your paint dealer for a free copy of the Lawrence Paint Book and Color Charts for any particular painting job.

"Do you realize the cost of 'Home Selection' Helen?"

"YOU'RE sending them all back? Aren't going to keep even one, Helen? What's wrong with them, is it material, color, style or what? Just don't like them, eh! But, Helen, didn't you have the feeling when you saw them in the store that you wouldn't like them? And what about the merchant's stock for tomorrow's customers if five or fifteen or fifty women have three or four dresses out 'on approval' tonight? Somebody pays for 'home selections,' Helen, for wrapping, delivery, checking, inspection and all the processes necessary before those dresses are ready to show to another customer."

Every merchant wants customers to be completely satisfied. He knows that it is not always possible for a woman to make a final selection in the store. He will send merchandise "on approval" provided a reasonably prompt decision is reached and returns are made without delay—within seven days at the outside. He never forgets, too, that merchandise in the home or in transit may be the very thing some other customer will want tomorrow morning. All he asks is that you select carefully in the store, thereby doing your part to correct an abuse that is increasing out of proportion to sales. If the present volume of unnecessarily returned merchandise can be materially reduced, it is inevitable that savings will be reflected in the lowered cost of goods.

This advertisement is published by The Merchants Council of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh in the interest of better and more economical buying.

Judge Lindsey Denies Urging Free Love

By Universal Service.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 19.—Bitterly complaining that his companionate marriage proposals had been misunderstood, Judge Ben Lindsey, famous Juvenile Court authority here on a lecture tour, stated that he did not advocate free love.

Asserting that parenthood in the United States is "going to pieces," he stated that "anyone can have children. Savage tribes have more restrictions than the so-called civilized peoples."

Judge Lindsey said that companionate marriage was the form of wedded life existing in a great percentage of legalized unions. In other words, marriage did not mean solely the union of a man and woman for the purpose of producing children.

BOYS PUNCTURE AUTOS BY SPREADING RAZOR BLADES

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 19.—Something else for motorists to worry about! Boys have inserted old razor blades between street bricks and waited for irate autoists to moan over punctures. Three boys, under 14, were arrested, but were released upon promises to quit the prank.

Body odor is so unpardonable

Why risk it—when it's so easy to banish?

WE notice body odor instantly in others, yet cannot always tell when we offend.

For even when we aren't conscious of perspiring, the pores give off odor-causing moisture.

Don't take chances—use Lifebuoy! Millions bathe with it daily, for it is so refreshing—and brings freedom from embarrassing odor.

Lifebuoy's mild, antiseptic lather keeps complexions glowing with health because it purifies the skin.

Then, too, it removes germs from hands, as well as dirt—safeguards health against germ diseases.

Get the Health Soap habit

You'll learn to like Lifebuoy's clean, hygienic scent—so wholesome, so assuring of greater safety, yet so quickly vanishing.

Lifebuoy gives extra protection, yet costs no more than other soaps. "Use it a week and you'll use it for life." Get some today.

The Witches Are Coming—

On Halloween night,
And woe to the one who makes light of their flight
From the regions of spirits to earth.
For they'll sure cast a spell
If you don't treat them well,
With costumes, and pumpkins and carnival mirth.

So Hurry With Your Costume—

And you can walk with the witches in their weird black robes . . . or laugh at their terror in gay clown clothes . . . or dance the night away as the dainty Pierrette. Just see the fascinating costumes in our Butterick, Pictorial or McCall patterns on the Second Floor. And the costume cambric comes in every bright and cheerful shade—25 inches wide. 14c yard.

Or you can make yourself into the jolliest pumpkin or what not, from our Dennison materials.

And Get Ready for Your Party—

For when the witch shadows peer at your windows, they wish gay revelry within. And you can have such fun with costumes and ghostly decorations and deafening noisemakers. And such party things as are here for you!

There's a witch on her broom, flying to a golden moon . . . but she'll never, never get there: for she is just a place card. And a fat, yellow pumpkin on a card opens his plump body to show an invitation to your party. And fierce looking black cats follow each other in stealthy procession . . . but they walk on crepe paper, and will make any room deliciously spooky. And pumpkins that, lighted, shed a ghostly glow. And funny little cats to hold the nuts at the dinner.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Parents Plan Numerous Parties When School Set Returns for Holidays

AT SCHOOL IN EAST

MISS NANCY ALLDERDICE

Miss Nancy Allderdice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, of Wilkins avenue, is a student at Miss Wright's School, Bryn Mawr.

BOYS AND GIRLS who are busy at school all winter—and who are just at that "between" age when children's parties are no longer interesting and grownups' balls are not permitted—have their gayest time of the year during the Christmas holidays, and a number of parents are planning various sorts of entertainment for them. One of the most interesting of these will be a dance to be given Tuesday night, December 27, by the George J. Willocks, of Solway street, in the Twentieth Century Club, of which Mrs. Willock is a member. They will have as their guests young people of the school age, with their attractive daughter, Florence, and their son, George, Jr., as assistant hosts. Florence, I believe, attends the Winchester School and her brother is a pupil at Shady Side Academy.

From reports that come drifting in—and from sources that certainly should know—Pittsburgh society is to have a most charming and pretty new member in the bride whom Graham McCargo will bring back from the East after his wedding Saturday. As his friends know, of course, her name is Mary Margaret Remington and she is a daughter of the Philip H. Remingtons of Springfield, Mass., where the wedding will take place. Mrs. McCargo already has gone East to attend the festivities that precede all weddings, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bailey Meyer, intend to go later in the week.

Mrs. Haines Allen Machesney has been busily at work for several weeks on preparations for the Civic Club's anniversary dinner which is scheduled for tomorrow night in the Hotel Schenley, after having been postponed from October 7. The Civic Club is just one of Mrs. Machesney's interests, but it would appear to be a favorite, judging from the time and thought she has given to arranging the program and seeing that no possible hitch will come up at the last moment.

This dinner is to celebrate the club's thirty-second year of activity in municipal betterment, and plans have been made to show its accomplishments in motion pictures, the bright, particular feature of the evening. Then there is to be a demonstration of a voting machine, conducted by Dr. Ralph S. Boots, of the University of Pittsburgh, department of political science.

Mrs. Machesney's assistants in arranging the dinner have included Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, Horace Forbes Baker, Francis S. Guthrie, Warren I. Bickford, W. B. Rodgers, Jr., A. H. Smith, Alexander Murdoch, Alexander Lappe, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., and Mrs. Enoch Rauh. The guests will be ushered to their seats by Miss Josephine Nicola, a bud of last season; Miss Esther Ely, Miss Helen W. Murdoch and Miss Madeleine McClintock.

Mrs. Walter Chess, of Bennington avenue, Squirrel Hill, has made known the engagement of her daughter, Miss Dorothea D. Chess, to Robert Markham Marshall, of this city. No wedding date has been set.

The twenty-first annual production of the Sewickley Valley Hospital Cot Club was held last night in Guildhall, Sewickley, with "The Haunted House" as the attraction. Proceeds from the production are to be used for the benefit of the Sewickley Hospital. C. Frederick Steen directed the cast and Mrs. George Phelps Rose was general director.

Long, full skirts, pancake hats and bustles will be charming features of the costumes worn at the "Gay Nineties Ball" to be held December 27 in the William Penn Hotel by the Federation of Girls' School Societies. The committee, headed by Mrs. Charles N. Snowden, with Mrs. Herbert May as her assistant, is planning a number of novelties in keeping with the period, among them being an old-fashioned country fair with a booth where tin types will be taken. Mrs. Philip Chess is in charge of publicity.

The Carrick Cliquot Club, which is giving a series of Saturday night dances in the Carrick Eagles' Club auditorium, is planning to hold a masquerade party October 21. H. W. Fiedler is chairman of the committee in charge of the dances.

The annual ball and bridge party of the Pittsburgh Chapter, National Park Seminary Alumnae, will be held November 17 in the Hotel Schenley, for the benefit of the Children's Home Society of Edgewood. Mrs. John G. Klinginsmith is president.

Miss Ina C. Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Campbell, of Oak Hill Farms, Wildwood, a Carnegie Tech art student, entertained the Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority at dinner in her home last Saturday, together with an equal number of Carnegie Tech men. There were 60 guests.

Mrs. Robert B. Bright of the East End will give a luncheon tomorrow in the Ruskin in honor of Mrs. Lillian M. Jones of Los Angeles. Mrs. Jones is spending some time with Mrs. Christine Ireland of Aspinwall.

500 HONOR NEW TUESDAY MUSICAL CLUB PRESIDENT

Fair weather or foul, it makes no difference to Tuesday Musical Club members who turned out nearly 500 strong yesterday to do honor to their new president, Mrs. Will Earhart. The president's reception was held in Upper Memorial Hall, which was transformed into a beautiful drawing room for the occasion. Oriental rugs, many softly shaded lamps and a profusion of exquisite decorations accomplished the transformation. The low stage in the hall was outlined with a solid bank of autumn leaves and smilax and in the center was a graceful arrangements of screens, draped with velvet and broad ribbons. Baskets of dahlias stood everywhere and chrysanthemums in baskets were grouped about a central table. The doors leading to the tea room were covered by a lattice work trailed over with smilax and the tea tables had centerpieces of yellow chrysanthemums, both large and small, combined with yellow tapers. Music for the afternoon was furnished by a trio composed of Miss Jean Wessner, cello; Gregorio Scalzo, violin, and John Koenig, piano.

Mrs. Earhart, looking particularly lovely in a black velvet gown with rhinestone trimmings and a black velvet hat, received with the other officers, the directors and chairmen of departments. A number of the most prominent members presided at the tea tables.

The extension department of the Congress of Clubs, which is never inactive for any length of time, is making extensive preparations for new ventures. A benefit card party and a rummage sale are now on the books, the former to be held next Monday at the home of Mrs. Laura Z. Charlton, North Lincoln avenue, North Side, both afternoon and evening. The evening affair has been planned to interest the men who will be among the guests. The rummage sale will be held in Homestead, November 8 to 12, under the general chairmanship of Mrs. J. S. Corbett, chairman of the department, with Mrs. Ada McWhinney as assistant. Donations for the sale may be left with Mrs. S. B. Heppenstall, of Heberton avenue; Mrs. Corbett, Dawson avenue, Bellevue; Mrs. James MacNeil, Fleming avenue, North Side, or at the Congress clubhouse. Goods will be collected by truck if the committee members are notified.

Mrs. John H. Roney, Mrs. M. A. Bittner and Mrs. George J. Rudolph will be hostesses for a card party to be held in the Oppenheim-Collins auditorium November 3, as a benefit for the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women's burn-the-mortgage fund. A musicale and card party will be held at the Council House Wednesday night, November 9, at which Mrs. Frank L. Steele will be hostess. The proceeds will again be for the benefit of the burn-the-mortgage fund.

The Housekeepers will visit Utility Hall Thursday afternoon and will be addressed by Miss Karen Fladoes on "Party Menus." A week from Thursday the club will visit the Rieck-McJunkin plant in charge of Mrs. J. C. Heckman and Mrs. Orville Armstrong. Mrs. David Lewis, of West View, will entertain the club at a card party in her home October 29.

A tea will be given by the women's department of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches in the rooms of the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street, November 15. The honor guests will be the "key women" from the affiliated churches. Speakers will be Mrs. Harry G. Samson and Judge A. D. Brandon.

The Tourists' next activity will be an all-day meeting in the Congress of Clubs next Monday, when the members will prepare work for the blind. November 7 is the date set for the club's visit to the International Art Exhibit, through which the women will be given gallery guidance by Mrs. Anna Marshall McCracken.

Arrangements are being made for a card party to be held by the Pittsburgh Girls' Club next Tuesday at the Congress of Clubs. Miss Alice Wolfe has been appointed chairman and has selected as aids Miss Mary Agnes Rettinger and Miss Clara Miller. The modern book class will begin Friday, November 4, with Miss Marguerite Spilman in charge. Registrations are being taken for gymnasium and swimming classes also, and several entertainments are being given to finance the classes. Miss Mary Ruber will entertain Friday night at her home in Rossmore avenue.

Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell will sing tomorrow night at the joint meeting of the Congress department of literature and the Bookfellows' Library Guild in the Congress clubhouse.

THE LIFE AND LETTERS OF WOODROW WILSON

Wilson's Powerful Influence on Student Body

His Lectures at Princeton Always Had Large Attendance and Personally He Was Popular, Though Aloof

The selection of Wilson to the Princeton faculty was told about yesterday in the Sun-Telegraph. He had important influence working for him but it was his own demonstrated ability that made his candidacy successful. It was a time of shifting tendencies in the educational world and Wilson, though he knew it not, was on the verge of playing a great part in shaping their ultimate course.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

The College Teacher

MEN become great by going their own way, thinking their own thoughts, doing with sincerity and intensity their own work. And this is what Wilson did in the early smooth years at Princeton. Everything was serene, everything interesting. A brilliant group of men were in the faculty. William M. Sloane was professor of history and political science; Henry F. Osborn, who became afterward the creative genius of the American Museum of Natural History, was professor of comparative anatomy; Henry B. Fine, since for many years dean of the university and one of Wilson's most intimate and devoted friends through all the years, was professor of mathematics, and Andrew F. West, afterward dean of the graduate school, himself a Scotchman by origin, and in later years one of Wilson's bitterest opponents, was professor of Latin.

Wilson lectured on American constitutional law, international law, English common law and administration, but the subjects in which he himself took the keenest interest were the courses in public law, "its historical derivation, its practical sanctions, its typical outward form, its evidence as to the nature of the state and as to the character and scope of political sovereignty" and general jurisprudence, "the philosophy of law and of personal rights." These courses—all of them—dealt with the subjects which represented his deepest and most passionate interest—how mankind acts politically.

Wilson's method as a teacher was to read slowly from a memorandum four or five general statements so that they could be taken down easily by the students. After that he would develop, embroider and elaborate the subject at length in a lecture full of wit, vivid bits of description, graphic characterization, to the fascination of his hearers. He would often comment with spice and penetration on current politics and political leaders, with the clear understanding, which was never violated, that he was not to be reported to the press. His lecture room, one of the largest in the university, accommodated over 400 students, and in some of his courses in the later years of his professorship every seat was taken. A large correspondence by the author with former Princeton students who sat under Wilson reveals an almost unvarying testimony to his power.

"One of the most inspiring teachers a student ever had—a tremendous influence," says Raymond B. Fosdick.

Influence on Students

He had the power of making an imprint upon the minds of students, certain students, that was to influence their whole lives and bind them to him as the scholar, in the old sense, was bound to the master. Roland Morris, of the class of '96, relates that he first met Wilson when he was a student at Lawrenceville School in 1890. He was then only sixteen years old and he walked to Princeton to invite the young Professor Wilson to talk to the Calliopean Society. He remembers the profound impression the interview made upon him, and still more the talk on Burke which Wilson gave in response to the invitation. A year later Wilson came to Lawrenceville again to speak at the Sunday vesper service. Morris said he could forget neither the topic nor the substance of the address. His text was: "Whereupon, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."

His theme was the value of vision in life and the necessity that every man should shape his career upon that vision.

Morris said that he had planned to go to Yale, but that these contacts with Wilson irresistibly drew him to Princeton. While he was there he took all of Wilson's courses that it was possible to take and got more out of them than anything else at the university.

In later years Morris, like so many other Princeton men who had become devoted to Wilson, was his strong political supporter; and Wilson later appointed him Ambassador to Japan.

Another of his students, Breckinridge Long, speaks of him as an "absolutely inspired" teacher.

"These lectures lasted an hour," says Peyton Cochran, "were delivered from a rostrum, and they were brilliant political addresses. I heard Mr. Wilson make a number of speeches after he entered political life, but many of his lectures at Princeton were equally interesting. The students would frequently burst into spontaneous applause and cheer his remarks." . . .

And one of his fellow professors, John H. Finley, has said of his teachings:

"Young men were seized with a thrill of expectancy when he entered to begin a lecture."

Such was the impression that Wilson made that when he came years later upon the national stage former students of his who had become convinced that "Wilson was both relatively and absolutely great" were among his stoutest supporters.

A Preacher, Too

Wilson was more of a lecturer than a teacher and there is weight in the remark of one of his former students that he often gave too much, demanded too little. He was not too anxious to "find out afterwards how many of his facts had penetrated. He was not indeed interested in facts at all, as facts—but in what the facts meant in terms of life and action. Always while he was trying to make his students visualize the organic life of society, the significance of political institutions, he was on fire with the purpose of inspiring them to apply his teachings to the problems immediately before the country—as he himself was doing. He was always challenging their latent idealism. He was always like his forebears, a preacher as well as a teacher.

He was thus, from the very beginning, to take a powerful hold upon the student body. Year after year he was to be voted the most popular of professors, in spite of the fact that he seemed to have certain characteristics that ordinarily militate against popular leadership. Something about him—a dignity, a distinction, a power—held him, in spite of his courtesy, always somewhat aloof. He had an extremely fastidious mind—a high level of exactitude in thought and expression to adjust to the careless vernacular of the student body. Prof. Winthrop M. Daniels writes to the author:

"It was a real grief to him to see a verbal arrow sent 'slackly to the mark;' and when inexactness or slovenliness of expression was united to a tenuous or mistaken apprehension of fact, he was sometimes almost revolted. I have heard him declare: 'I positively am not able to read and correct more than 10 or 12 papers a day.' As there were often more than 200 pupils in a single one of his classes, it may be imagined that the torture was sometimes prolonged."

For the same reason he dreaded to listen to intercollegiate debates. It was not that he was not thoroughly interested in debating. He was always ready to assist in coaching the Princeton team, but his intense interest made him impatient of the ineptitude in statement or rejoinder of those whom he had assisted in training. He was embarrassed by them, says Prof. Daniels.

"I have seen him pacing back and forth through the ambulatory of the Commencement Hall when a debate was in progress, unable to keep away, and still less able to sustain the verbal affront which the crudeness and immaturity of his proteges were almost certain to inflict."

In spite of all these things, however, he was popular. He was one of that rare type of men who could be popular without stooping to be familiar.

Courteous, But Just

From the very beginning of his service as a Princeton professor he was class officer for the seniors and later a member of the committee on discipline. Many a student remembers going to his home for a talk, and the courtesy and humor of his reception. He had an extremely strong sense of the law, of discipline, of duty. It was inherent in his Scotch blood, implicit in his Presbyterian training—but he was just.

In other and apparently quite contradictory ways he took a swift hold upon student life. His fame as a football enthusiast at Wesleyan had naturally preceded him and he was immediately in demand to help with the Princeton team.

"Those were dark days for football at Princeton; graduation had left only three members of the championship eleven of 1889," says Parke H. Davis. "One of these was the captain, Edgar Allen Poe. But if players were scarce, coaches were scarcer. It was, therefore, a particularly welcome sight, one afternoon in October, to see Woodrow Wilson come striding out upon the field, take his place behind the eleven with Capt. Poe, and proceed to whip the team up and down the sward, a function which Woodrow Wilson continued daily to discharge through the long grind of 10 weeks that desperate fall."

While his active participation was brief—his interests did not really lie in that direction—he was all his life extremely fond of football, and to an even greater degree of baseball. He served as a member of the faculty committee on outdoor sports.

"Cousin Woodrow was very keen about games," writes Mary W. Hoyt. "I shall never forget my amazement when, at a Yale-Princeton baseball game, he—usually so controlled—sprang to his feet, waved his umbrella and yelled like a madman!

"'I beg your pardon, Cousin Mary; that was a Princeton play.'"

We had a picture of him at another time, standing throughout a Princeton-Harvard game on top of a fence-post, not being able to get a seat; and he refers repeatedly in his letters to the triumphs and defeats of Princeton. There was something in the stern struggle of strong men that set his blood to going.

Critical Years

The years from 1896 to 1902, when he was elected president of Princeton University, were among the most critical of Wilson's entire life. They seem to have been even more critical inwardly than the years of the Princeton controversy of 1909 and 1910. He was 40 years old in 1896. While he appeared brilliantly successful to outward view, while his influence both at Princeton and throughout the academic world was widening and deepening, he was secretly beginning to doubt the value of what he was doing. Secondary successes. His old political aspirations, his thwarted powers of leadership, harried him with unrest.

"I am so tired of a merely talking profession!" he cried out to his intimate friend, Stockton Axson. "I want to do something!"

He burned still to travel the great main road of affairs—and there seemed no way to do it.

"I should think you would like to go to the United States Senate," Stockton Axson remembers saying to him.

"Indeed I would, but that is impossible. In this country men do not go from the academic world into politics."

It was a time when serious men were concerned for the integrity of American institutions. Vast new economic and industrial problems were crowding upon the attention of the nation. A spectacular uprising in the West had followed the panic of 1893. There had been strikes and riots in Chicago; Coxey's weird "army" had marched Eastward across the mountains, a vivid symbol of unrest, to present its "petition in boots" at the Capitol in Washington.

A new sectionalism, the West and the South against the East, was developing. Wild new proposals regarding the national currency, and other easy curealls, were being advanced as remedies for the evident economic maladjustments. Cleveland had come in again as President in 1893, and Wilson had followed his vigorous and independent, yet conservative, course with strong approval. The disturbances had set him to thinking more deeply than ever upon American principles and American politics. He had already made the startling discovery that there was a West, and that American history had been dominated largely by the pioneer movement, the spirit of the frontier.

Tomorrow will be related Wilson's interest in the sudden political rise of William Jennings Bryan, of whom the Princeton professor had a poor opinion from the beginning. As a writer and lecturer Wilson becomes an important figure at Princeton, but as in earlier years he overworks, falls ill, and must rest at intervals.

UNVEIL MEMORIAL TO GEN. MEADE

PENNSYLVANIANS ARE AT CAPITAL FOR FETE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Pennsylvanians of the National Capital, augmented by an official delegation from the state, gathered in the Botanic Garden here this afternoon to witness President Coolidge accept on behalf of the Federal government the memorial to Maj. Gen. George Gordon Meade, commander of the Army of the Potomac and of the Union forces at Gettysburg during the Civil War. The memorial was presented by the State of Pennsylvania, an honored tribute to a native son.

Preparatory to the unveiling, Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, accompanied by his staff and officials of the Federal Meade Memorial Commission, arrived in Washington at noon and established quarters at the Mayflower Hotel.

The exercises started at 2:30 o'clock, eastern standard time. Just before that hour Gov. Fisher and his party, escorted by a troop of the United States cavalery from Fort Myer, left his hotel for the Botanic Garden, located at the foot of Capitol Hill.

Although heavy skies and a chilling drizzle of rain greeted the official party upon its arrival in Washington, the unveiling exercises will go along as planned.

The program as arranged by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant III, grandson of the Civil War commander, is as follows:

Call to order by Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the Senate Committee on Library and acting chairman of the Federal Meade Memorial Commission; invocation by the Rev. Hugh K. Fulton, chaplain in the Army Reserve Corps; presentation of the memorial by Governor Fisher; unveiling of the memorial by Miss Henrietta Meade, daughter of Gen. Meade; firing of a 13-gun salute; acceptance on behalf of the government by President Coolidge; music; reminiscences of Gen. Meade by H. H. Spayd, past commander, Department of Pennsylvania Grand Army of the Republic; music; presentation of the sculptor, Charles Grafly, of Philadelphia; presentation of the architects, Edward P. and Grant M. Simon, both of Philadelphia, and dedicatory prayer by the Rev. J. H. Pershing, chaplain, Department of Pennsylvania G. A. R.

ALLEGORIAL SCENE

Most of the statues erected in Washington to those who distinguished themselves in the time of war have been of the equestrian type. The Meade monument presents a contrast to these old statues. It is an allegorical scene, revealing not only the sterling military qualities possessed by Gen. Meade, but exemplifying also his hope for peace and progress when the war was over.

From the top of a round pedestal Gen. Meade is shown in uniform with the cloak of battle dropping from his shoulders as he looks forward with hope for a future peace and progress. Back of him and facing in the opposite direction is a formidable figure symbolizing war. Grouped around the hero of Gettysburg are six other symbolic figures representing courage, chivalry, loyalty, fame, energy and progress. These figures are turning away from war and looking toward the future with Meade.

The figures that make up the group are approximately nine feet in height and the pedestal on which they are mounted rests on a base 50 feet square.

In accepting the statue, President Coolidge said, in part:

"On behalf of the government of the nation which he helped to save, I accept this memorial erected by the commonwealth which was his home and the home of his ancestors. The conflict in which he took such an important part has long since passed away. The peace which he loved has come. The reconciliation which he sought is complete. The loyalty to the flag which he followed is universal. Through all of this shines his immortal fame.

"The more we study the history of the war in which he fought, the more Gen. Meade stands out as a responsible and reliable commander. Others may have had more dash, though none surpassed him in courage. He did not engage himself in leading hopeless charges. He was, rather, a general who kept himself sufficiently informed as to the movements of the enemy and made such preparation and wise disposition of his own troops that hopeless charges were not necessary.

"It cannot be said that he always won, but he experienced very little of defeat. His personality was well rounded out. If it appeared to possess no lofty peak, it was not marred by any deep depressions. If he was sometimes quick of temper, he was eminently sound of judgment. He was a solid, substantial man, one who inspired confidence, one who could be trusted."

BETTER AIRPORT DRIVE STARTS TOMORROW

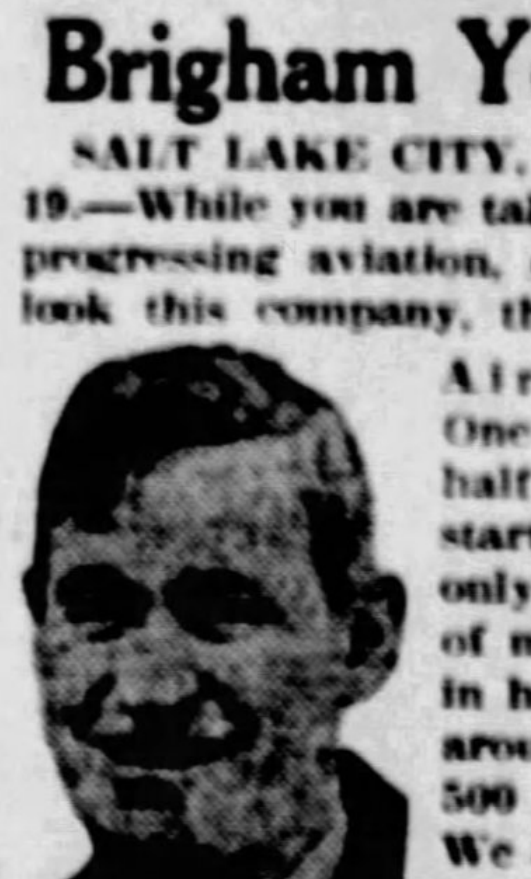
The movement for an adequate municipal airport for Pittsburgh will get under way tomorrow at the weekly Chamber of Commerce meeting, with the appointment of a committee to survey available sites in Allegheny county.

President T. P. Gaylord will announce the personnel of the committee, authorized by the Chamber board of directors last week, after a special report urging a "new and better" airport had been submitted by a special committee composed of A. L. Humphrey, president Westinghouse Airbrake Company; William L. Munro, president American Window Glass Company, and Arthur E. Braun, president Farmers' Deposit National Bank.

The Chamber also will consider new proceedings in the lake cargo rate case, after which B. C. Forbes, financial writer, will speak on "Business Today."

Flying Will Sees More Utah Than Brigham Young

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 19.—While you are talking about progressing aviation, don't overlook this company, the Western Air Express. One year and a half ago they started with only 20 pounds of mail; today, in here packed around me, are 500 pounds. We are coming into Salt Lake—only been six hours from Los Angeles. They have flown 650,000 miles with only four forced landings and no one hurt.



WILL ROGERS

Brigham Young might have seen more women than I have, but I have seen more of Utah today than he ever saw. Who said this country was all settled up?

Tonight we will see how it feels to fly at night.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Mabel Decides to Reform "Beau" and Succeeds; Nye Is Discussed

"WHAT do you think, Sally?" she asked, turning to her pretty sister-in-law.

"I think Aunt Em is right," answered Sally, promptly.

But while she spoke she was thinking that Mrs. Jerome had always been a clinging vine, and that Beau's father had not taken care of her very well. In his way, he had been more neglectful than Beau.

After Mabel was gone, taking a large basket filled with cold fried chicken and grape-jam turnovers with her, she spoke to Aunt Emily about it.

"My mother did just the thing you're advising Mabel to do," she said uncertainly. "She clung—and my father left her. Suppose Beau leaves Mabel?"

Aunt Em gave a bark of laughter that was not real laughter at all.

"He won't!" she said with spirit. "He's crazy about Mabel, and she's smarter than he'll ever be. If she only uses her head she can keep Beau all her life—tied to her like a life preserver!"

The next morning a very cheerful Mabel drove up in the red car once more. She left the baby, rolled up in blankets on the seat, and ran into the house for a minute.

"It worked!" she cried triumphantly to Aunt Em. "Beau and I ate all the lovely food you gave us for supper—and then we took the baby to a picture show. It slept straight through! And I'm not going to let Beau touch the car any more unless I'm with him! I told him I needed it to give the baby its airing every day!" She smiled so broadly that [illegible] liquid powder on her skin [illegible] crack.

"[illegible] way, Sally, I've [illegible] John Nye's office," [illegible] g back when she was ha[illegible] down the porch steps. "So if you want a good job—"

"I don't!" Sally sang out instantly. "And I wouldn't take a job with him, Mabsy, if it were the last job in the merry old town, and I was living on crusts in a garret."

"I don't see why you're so bitter against him," observed Mabel. "He always speaks so well of your work."

"My work, yes," pondered Sally, when she was alone in the dining room that no longer was a dining room, but an antique shop. "But what he thinks of my work and what he thinks of me are two very different things!" She polished a bright blue vase of Bristol glass and tried to forget him.

But all she could think of was the night when he had shaken her by her shoulders and told her how shameless she was to display herself to a roadhouse crowd in a "Savannah Stomp" dance that was more of a "shimmy" than a stomp.

She was glad when Aunt Em called from upstairs to ask her to come up and look at Great-grandmother Jerome's yellow Venetian mirror. Glad of her aunt's harsh-voiced chatter, as they worked together side by side all day long.

It took her mind away from herself and John Nye.

On a rainy November day two weeks later, Sally came downstairs at twilight to put the kettle on for tea.

Aunt Em had decided that it would be nice to serve tea to any customers who dropped in to buy antiques. So far there had been no customers, although the shop had been open for business for a week.

But this afternoon, as Sally reached the bottom of the well-carpeted stairs, she heard a man's voice in the big, shadowy room where the heirlooms of the Jerome family were set out to be sold.

"That's a fine old piece," the voice was saying, and it was the voice that had been echoing in Sally's ears for many, many months. It was John Nye's voice.

Without a sound, Sally crept down into the hall and peeped into the room from behind the crimson velvet curtains that hung across the doorway.

John was standing in a far corner, looking at Great-grandmother Jerome's old spinning wheel, and Aunt Em was looking up at him with a mocking light in her eyes.

"Now, what on earth would you do with a spinning wheel? A bachelor like you?" she asked snappily, while Sally listened.

John's deep voice murmured something that Sally could not catch, and Aunt Em laughed again.

"Well, I'll tell Sally that you were here when she comes in," she said then, and Sally's hyacinth-blue eyes opened wide with astonishment. Why in the world had Aunt Em told John Nye she was not at home?

"All right. Thanks, very much," John answered. "I may drop in again to take another look at that spinning wheel. It's very nice."

He picked up his hat and started for the door.

Sally had just time to fade into the pantry before he came out into the hall, passed so close to her that she could have reached out and touched him, and went out through the side door.

Then she emerged from her hiding place.

"Why did you tell him I wasn't at home?" she asked Aunt Em when he had vanished through the gateposts in his brown car.

"Why did I?" echoed Aunt Em. "Why, because you told the other day that you wouldn't work for him if he were the last man on earth! And besides, I think he came to ask you to work for him, and I was afraid that if you saw him you might go! I don't want you to go. I don't want you to leave me!"

"I don't want to go!" declared Sally, her face flaming. "I'm nothing to him but a human typewriter! That's his only interest in me—to have me work for him because I work faster than anybody else he ever had! I hope I never see him again!"

But she kept remembering what he had said—that he might drop in again to look at the old spinning wheel. Such a funny thing for a man to want—an old spinning wheel. No wonder Aunt Em had laughed in his face!

A week went by. Two weeks. Three.

It was December first. But he had not come.

CHAPTER LXV.

SALLY'S life, during this time, was a most unnatural life for a very beautiful girl who was only 21 years old, and full of high spirits, besides. A girl who looked as if Nature had formed her for life at its best—for love and laughter.

She spent her days in the silent old house polishing glass and mahogany, making tea for the few customers who dropped in every now and then to buy antiques at "Ye Shoppe of Mistress Emily Jerome."

At night she washed up the dishes, set the kitchen to rights, and settled down before the coal fire with Aunt Em to read the papers. All around them the old house was very quiet on these early winter nights. The only sounds were the creaking of boards, coals dropping in the grate, and the funny little scratching sound of mice between the walls.

Once in a while Aunt Em would glance up from her magazine or paper to see if it was time to go to bed. The evenings were longer than the days to Sally—and those were long enough.

All her life she had been so busy with her own family, and later with Mr. Peevey and Aunt Em, that she had had no girl chum. She never had had time for one.

There came an evening when she was so lonely that she actually got as far as the telephone to call up Ted Sloan and ask him to take her to a moving picture show. Anything to break the awful monotony. Anything.

But, after she had given his number, she hung up the receiver. What was the use of starting things all over again with Ted? He was probably forgetting her, and taking some other girl out with him to dance the "kinkajou" or the Palm Beach walk.

On the fifteenth of December a letter came from Millie. A thick letter in a pale-pink perfumed envelope with Sally's address written in violet ink.

"News from Bermuda!" Sally called to Aunt Emily, and carried it into the big display room, where her aunt was having hot toast and tea while she read a magazine on interior decorating.

She tore open the envelope and began to read the letter aloud to Aunt Em. Stranded in the old house, as they were, they shared all their small excitements.

"My dear darling sister," she read. "Here's a piece of news for you that will certainly knock you for at least a wedding present. Your little sister is married, and is—listen to this!—the wife of Don Luis Pablo Vara, of Buenos Aires! He is the best-looking thing you ever saw. Ramon Novarro is nowhere in it with him, and he has MONEY besides. He came here on business the same day I arrived with Mother and Papa, and it was just Fate that led us here, we are sure—"

At this point Aunt Em let out a loud and scornful laugh. "Fate!" she scoffed. "He'll probably curse his fate when he really begins to know Miss Millie! When he begins to see through her, and some of her bills come in."

"He's rich," Sally began.

Miss Lincoln Greatly Disturbed, but Makes Effort to Appear Calm

FOR an instant I was uneasy at Dicky's failure to return with us to the veranda of The Larches. Then I realized the reason for his staying behind. He already had received from me a sufficient account of the oddity and suspicious actions of the men occupying the Grimsey shack back of the farm, to make him wary of the men. No doubt he had lingered to see that the red-haired and red-bearded giant who had brought a mysterious "message" for Miss Lincoln had obeyed that young woman's imperious command to get off the place.

That Miss Lincoln did not notice his absence at first, I saw. The girl was under a tense strain, that was patent, making a tremendous effort to appear calm and unconcerned when all the time I knew her brain was circling fearfully round and round the dirty brown envelope which the red-headed man had proffered her, and which she had commanded him with such imperious contempt to lay upon the sun-dial.

Mary and Noel, younger and far less accustomed to the sinister subcurrents of life, were plainly embarrassed under the attempt to act as if nothing out of the way had happened. It was a relief to all of us when Dicky strolled in, his manner as nonchalant as if red-bearded ruffians with mysterious messages were natural concomitants of every afternoon tea drinking.

"Taking your permission for granted, Miss Lincoln, I saw that ruddy gentleman safely off the place," he said easily. "I also retrieved this." He laid the brown envelope on the top of a low bookcase and set a vase upon it. "From what I could pick up from the man's queer talk, I think it is only a begging letter. He seems to have it in his head that your uncle belongs to the same country as himself, and you know what peasants are."

The color which had come back into Miss Lincoln's face at Dicky's first words receded again.

"What—what—country is this man's?" she asked at last.

"Transvania," Dicky replied, and I wondered if it were my imagination, or was he watching her intently, waiting for her comment?

"Transvania?" she repeated slowly. "Now why should he think my uncle was Transvanian? He never saw that country. I have gone through it but he never. No, my uncle is Bohemian, not Transvanian."

That she was not telling the truth was patent to all of us. She was naturally too straightforward to be a convincing liar. But of course no one of us could contradict her.

"At any rate I don't think he will trouble you again," Dicky said. "He said over and over again some gibberish which I finally found to be a request that if you wished to answer the message you would put a letter in the hollow under the right gatepost at midnight tonight and that in the morning it would be gone. But I told him I was sure there would be no message for him, and I think I finally convinced him. But he surely was a melodramatic beggar."

Hurriedly, as if she did not quite know what she was doing, Miss Lincoln poured him a cup of tea, made the perfunctory queries as to lemon or cream and sugar, and gave it to him.

"I suppose that's what he wanted," she agreed. "But how queer to mention the gatepost. I wonder what he meant."

"It's a queer thing about that," Dicky said when he had finished his tea. "There really is a hollow under the right gatepost. I was curious enough to look at it as I came past. He must have been snooping around here for some time."

But Miss Lincoln was on her feet, almost upsetting the tea-wagon.

"Will you show me that gatepost?" she asked tensely.

The Two Pals

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two pals and have been for many years. We are coming to you for advice. We have never written to you before, but have read a great deal of your column daily. We agree on the smoking and petting and drinking parties. We do not drink nor smoke and we are both fairly good-looking. Now here is the question, Miss Gale: We both have a "steady," as we are in our middle twenties. And it's time to think about our future. Now, Miss Gale, my pal has been turned down by his girl friend and I am going to ditch my girl for that one reason. Miss Gale, do you think I am doing the right thing? I have been going with my girl friend a little better than a year. Please tell me what to do, as I think a great deal of both of them. I am trying to please one and hurt the other. Now, which one of these two shall I let go? Thanking you in advance, THE TWO PALS.

Why in the world should you stop going with this girl just because your friend has been turned down? That doesn't seem very logical to me. However, I don't believe you are very much in love with this girl or you couldn't even consider such a thing.

A Lonesome Girl

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a girl 16 years old; do not smoke or drink and very seldom pet; not considered good-looking but have a pleasing personality and I am in love with a fellow who is 18. I went with him for about two months; then we had a fall out as I had to spend time with my studies as it was near graduation time. I would like to get going with him again as I like him so well and every time I meet him he makes a great fuss over me and I imagine he likes me very well but does not want to show it. And I never show that I like him. I treat him just the same as I treat the rest of the fellows and I have a good many but am tired of all of them but him. I never go out with any fellows as I think I am kind of young but not too young for him. I would like to have your advice on how to gain his friendship again as we both like each other. Tell me what you think I should do, and I want to know your opinion of me.

A LONESOME GIRL.

You are too young to be worrying about any one boy, my dear. However, be friendly when you see this boy and if he still likes you, he will be encouraged to ask to come to see you again.

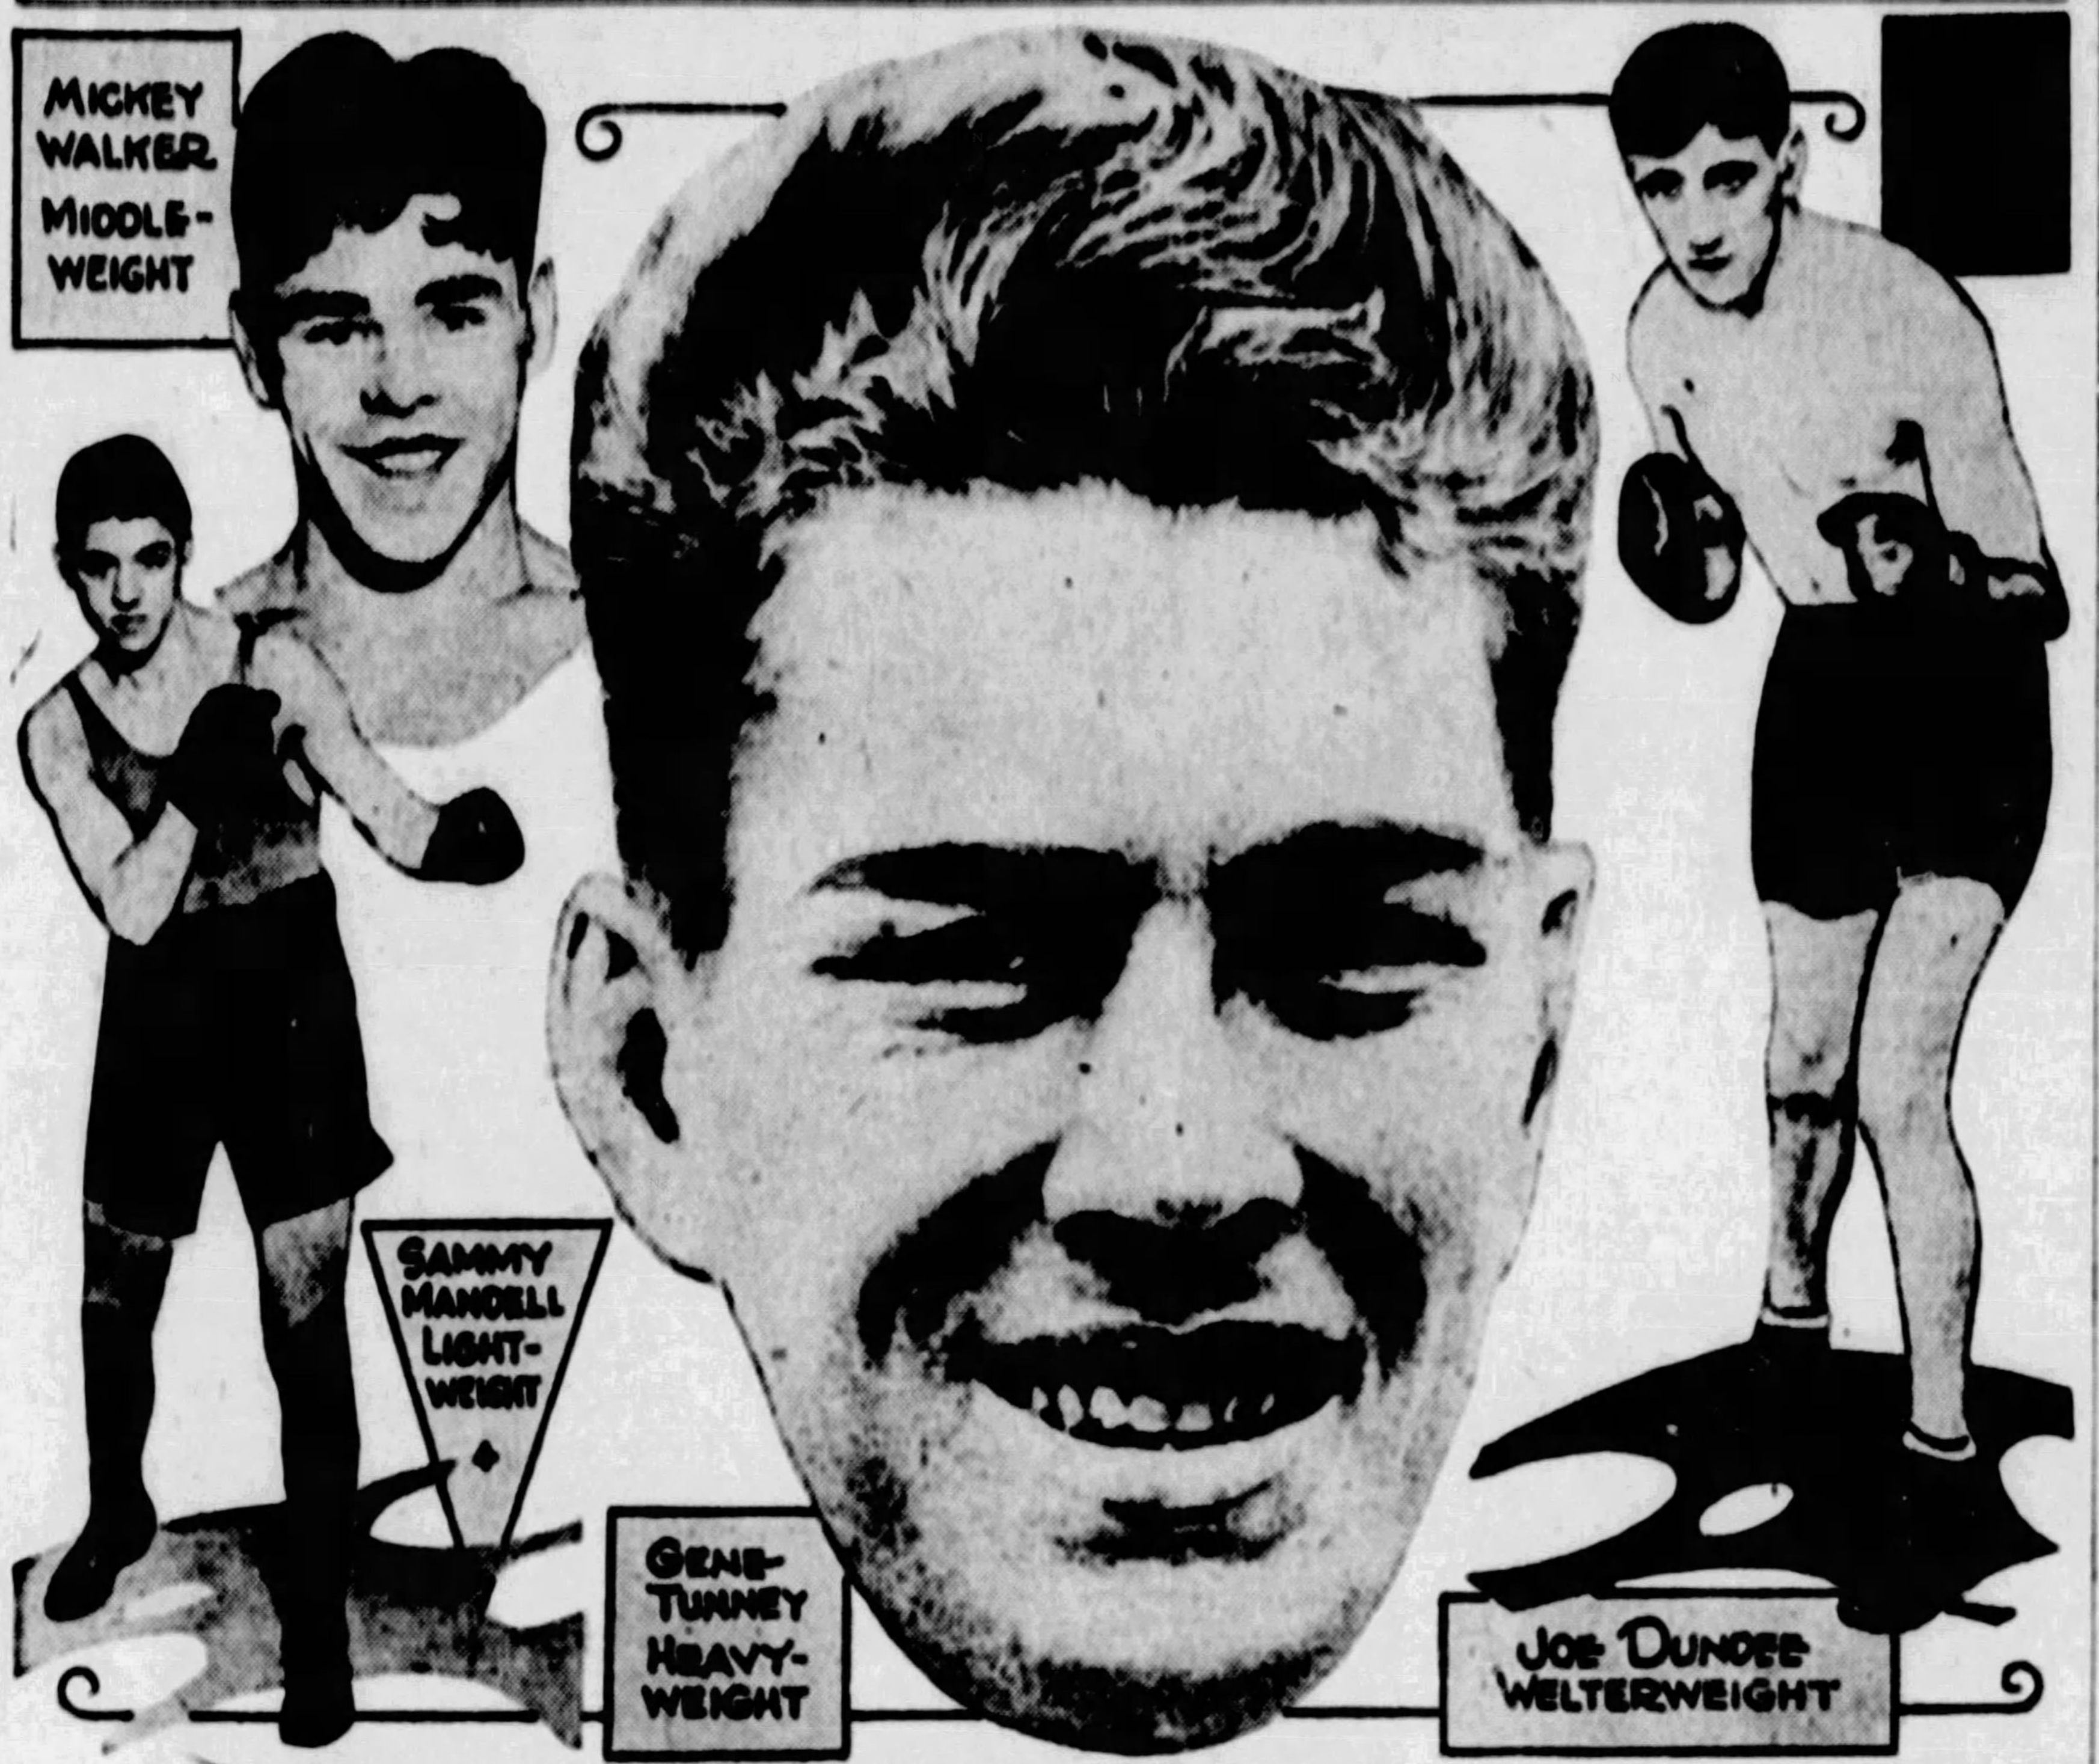
HONUS WAGNER LAUDS BAN JOHNSON

CHAMPIONS, ALL OF THEM!



NATIONAL COMMISSION SAYS SO

Not that is makes much difference, but the National Boxing Commission, at its annual convention at Toledo yesterday, included the above men in its list of recognized world champions. Others it recognized are: Bud Taylor, bantamweight; Benny Bass, featherweight, and Jimmy Slattery, light-heavyweight champions. The New York commission and most of the fans recognize Tommy Loughran as the real light-heavyweight titleholder. The flyweight title, recently resigned by Fidel LaBarba, was declared vacant.

BASEBALL CLEANSED THROUGH EFFORTS

FROM the lips of John Honus Wagner, former major league baseball star, speaking at the banquet of the Bellevue Board of Trade and Bellevue Athletic Association in honor of the Bellevue Baseball Club, champion of the Allegheny County League for the past season, in the Bellevue Borough Hall last night, came high tribute for B. Ban Johnson, retiring president of the American League, who passed out of the baseball picture with the surrender on Monday of his office to the directors of the circuit he founded and cradled to major league estate.

Wagner compared the old-time standards of baseball, in the days when everything went and it was impossible for wives and sweethearts to safely attend the games, because of the cussing and general unsavory atmosphere, with the clean conditions existing today, and credited Johnson with having brought about the reform with his iron rule beginning with the inception of the American League in 1902.

The attendance at the banquet numbered about 150, in spite of the inclement weather. In addition to Wagner, the speakers included Elder Marshall, Republican nominee for judge of Common Pleas Court of Allegheny county; Benjamin Moore, president of the Bellevue Board of Trade; J. A. DeHarr, president of the Bellevue Athletic Association, Burgess Longmore, Managr Cy Rheam of the baseball club; W. I. Vickerman, Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, and Ralph S. Davis, president of the Allegheny County League, who presented the trophies.

Dr. J. Freeman Guy, superintendent of the Bellevue Public Schools, was toastmaster and the Rev. James McGinnis said the invocation. The Bellevue Board of Trade's quartet, with Charley Couch at the piano, entertained.

KID KAPLAN KAYOED

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

IN OUTLINING trades for Hazen Cuyler recently, or since it developed that the chief aim of the Pittsburgh club is to obtain a capable second baseman in exchange for the departing outfielder, many fans hereabouts have expressed the hope that a deal would be possible whereby Hughey Critz of Cincinnati would be landed for the Pirates.

It is pretty safe to surmise, however, that no deal of that nature will be possible, and that any hope that may exist of seeing Critz in a Buccaneer uniform in 1928 will have to be given up.

When next season rolls around, Critz, in all probability, will again be seen holding down the keystone bag for the Reds.

There is no doubt, of course, that the Pittsburgh club would like to get Critz, and would be willing to make a deal for the little fellow, who is the most valuable second sacker in the National League with the exception of Rogers Hornsby and Frankie Frisch.

But it takes two to make a trade, and nothing but a negative shake of the head may be expected from the Cincinnati club in reply to any suggestion of a swap involving the clever guardian of the second sack.

WHEN a trade by Pittsburgh for Critz was suggested some time ago as a possibility of the off season, the opinion was expressed here that such a deal could not be put through for the reason that the Cincinnati club probably would figure it could not afford to part with Critz, the main cog in the infield machine.

From all that can be learned, the Red management is still determined not to part with Hughey, so you may take it for granted that there will be no trade of Cuyler for Critz, and that the new second sacker sought by Pittsburgh will be obtained from some other source.

However, mention of Cincinnati suggests that even though Critz is believed to be unobtainable, it may be possible for the Corsair chiefs to make a swap for another member of the same team.

It might not be a bad gamble to take a chance on the pitching arm of Pete Donohue, which was reported as "ailing" during the season, and as Pittsburgh has some attractive trading material apart from Cuyler, perhaps they could make a deal in that direction if the Cincinnati cabinet is willing to let Pete go.

WHO will succeed Dave Bancroft as manager of the Boston Nationals is still a question, but it seems a safe guess that one of those considered for the place by the old and new stockholders—the new ones include President Adams of the Boston Hockey Club—may now be stricken from the list of possibilities.

Wade Killefer, manager of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League, was sought as Bancroft's successor, as stated in The Sun-Telegraph at the time. He came East when the world series was being played and held a conference with the Boston owners, but the fact that Wade has returned to his home in California and is reported as getting busy with the affairs of his Seattle club for next season would appear to indicate that the Hub berth or the terms did not appeal to him, and that he has dropped ne-

"LUCKY stiff!"

That was the message Chalky Williamson, former Pitt football star and coach, and Alex Stevenson, longtime Pitt line coach and scout, contemplated sending to their old friend, Glenn (Pop) Warner, former Pitt head coach, at Palo Alto, Cal., last Saturday when the news came in that Warner's Leland Stanford eleven had eked out a 13-13 tie with Southern California.

Williamson and Stevenson are ever loyal to the Old Man, and they never go to bed on Saturday night during the gridiron season without first learning the result of Pop's activities that afternoon and talking it over and perhaps sending him a word or two over the wire. They hound newspaper offices until the news of the game is received.

LAST Saturday they invaded the sports sanctum sanctorum of the Sun-Telegraph and got the news that Southern California was leading early and then again late in the battle and finally the word that Stanford had come on in the closing moments to tie the count. They were overcome with joy, but could not refrain from an impulse to send on a kidding message to Pop. Just what they finally sent I do not know, but it probably was along the lines of the "lucky stiff" wise crack mentioned above. Pop will understand any message they send in the spirit in which it is sent.

POP'S record to date this season is three victories, one defeat and one tie. He defeated Fresno State in his first game, 33-0, and the Olympic Club, 7-6, in the second. St. Mary's then downed the Trojans, 16-0, in a game marked by atrocious fumbling by Pop's men. Stanford came back with a 20-0 win over Nevada and the 13-13 tie with Southern California last Saturday followed.

The breaks went against Stanford from the start last Saturday. Wilton, Stanford halfback, fumbled on his own 31-yard line in the first period and a Southern California player picked up the ball and ran for a touchdown and the touchdown goal was kicked. In the second period, Stanford tied the score with a passing attack, one of the aerials, coupled with the run made by the receiver, being good for a 74-yard gain to the goal line.

The field judge caught Dick Hyland fouling a Southern California player after Drury had punted in the third quarter and gave the ball to Southern California on the nine-yard line and two plays netted the second touchdown for the opposition. The goal kick was blocked.

With only three minutes to play, Stanford launched another aerial offensive, which carried the ball to the 11-yard line. The ball was battered to the four-yard line and then forward-passed to a touchdown. With the score tied, Murphy failed to convert the extra point and Pop's charges had to be content, and even feel lucky, to get a tie.

EVERYBODY is comparing the great Pitt team of this year with the outstanding Panther machine of 1916, which has gone down in the records as the best in the local institution's history. I was talking the other day with one of the former Pitt stars who has been in close contact with both teams and asked him for a comparison. Here's what he said:

"This year's team does not have the great man-power of the 1916 team, but it does not suffer much in comparison. It has one great asset, which is a spirit of hustle. The 1916 team had the same fine quality, plus greater man-power. The teams run close in

Corsair Exodus Ends as Gooch, Smith Leave

Two Pirates were still in Pittsburgh today, but ere nightfall one of them will be bounding along in his famous "gulley jumper" in the general direction of Nashville, Tenn. Yes, Johnny Gooch is the athlete in question, and just as soon as the roads dry up a bit Earl Smith will rattle out of the city in a flivver, bound for his Ozarkian home.

Gooch remained over in town on account of the rather serious illness of his little son. A few days ago Mrs. Gooch and Little John departed for home by rail.

Pie Traynor, captain of the Pirates, was a passenger on the Fort Pitt Limited when that crack train pulled out of the Baltimore and Ohio Station last night. Pie was en route for Chicago, where he will spend today before going into the fastnesses of the Wisconsin woods. Pie's locale for the next two months is about 400 miles northwest of Chicago.

M'LARNIN STOPS RIVAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Jimmy McLarnin, blonde and good-looking, belted his way into recognition among the lightweights of the world last night when he knocked out Louis (Kid) Kaplan in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round contest. Sammy Mandell, the champion, who sat at the ringside while the pair were settling the argument over which one would get the title shot that has been promised someone, was looking very thoughtful, at the close.

McLarnin, knocked down himself, with a shower of left hooks in the first round, down again in the second from the same cause, arose both times and kept on going.

In the midst of a rally in the fourth, McLarnin half knocked, half wrestled the Kid to the floor. For the balance of the round he whaled the Kid in fine style.

Right off the bat, and right on Kaplan's jaw, things happened in the fifth, Jimmy walking right out of his

Motor Sq. Program Complete

The most attractive card of the season so far was completed today by Matchmaker Johnny Ray for the boxing show to be held in Motor Square Garden next Monday night.

The bill will consist of four eight-round bouts, as follows:

Phil Goldstein vs. Tommy Crowley, local lightweight rivals, main bout.

Teddy Esterbrook of Niles, O., vs. Young Saylor of Charleroi, light-middleweights, semi-final.

Tug Phillips of Fayette City vs. Nich Susnell of Rochester, Pa., welterweights.

Monte Cirko of Oakland vs. U. S. Carpentier of New Kensington, featherweights, opening bout.

The Goldstein-Crowley bout is the long-awaited return battle between the pair of mixers who thrilled the fans in the same ring last Christmas afternoon, when they were fighting in the final elimination for the local featherweight title.

Saylor last Monday night whipped Lin Jordan of Johnstown decisively

GOTHAM SURE VETERAN WILL GET BOSTON JOB

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Though Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston National Baseball club, denied yesterday that Tris Speaker, veteran American League outfielder, would manage the Braves next season, succeeding Davy Bancroft, recently sold to Brooklyn, it was rumored here that the Grey Eagle was almost certain to get the post.

Judge Fuchs said that he had a number of men under consideration for the post and that there would be no decision forthcoming from his office before the end of two weeks time. Fuchs also stated that he had not entered into a correspondence or conversation with any of the men in view.

Speaker, who was released by the Washington American League club at the close of the past season, has also been mentioned as a managerial possibility in Cleveland, where he served in that capacity a year ago. Speaker was not considered an extraordinarily successful boss while in charge of the Indians.

Thhe most prevalent rumor going the rounds here has Speaker first in line for the job with the Braves and scheduled to play centerfield regularly for the Beaneaters next season. Old Silver Top still is a hitter, despite his 20 years in baseball. Last season with the Senators he hit .326 with 170 hits—42 doubles, five triples, two home runs and nine stolen bases.

Speaker cost the Redsox $500 when they purchased him from Little Rock of the Southern Laegue in 1908. He played eight seasons with the Redsox before he was sold to Cleveland, where he played until last season. He piloted the Indians to their only world championship in 1920.

"UNSIGNED"—MRS. SPEAKER

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19.—(UP.)—Tris Speaker, member of the Washington Baseball Club and former manager of the Cleveland Indians, has not signed to manage the Boston Braves, Mrs. Tris Speaker, his wife, told the United Press today.

Speaker left Chicago yesterday to spend a month hunting in the Wyoming hills. Mrs. Speaker, who was with him up to the time he left, said he had stated his intention of forgetting about baseball until he returned.

"I'm sure he has not signed to manage any team," Mrs. Speaker asserted. "If he had I would probably have been the first one to be informed."

GRIFFITH ADDS A WORD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. — (AP.) — Rumors continued to fly fast today that Tris Speaker would not play with Washington next season, but all of them met the same denial from President Griffith. The latest one, that Speaker would manage the Boston Braves, was said by the local club head to be without foundation since no waivers had been asked on the veteran and no offers had voluntarily been made for his services.

CHICAGO SIX-DAY BIKE GRIND STARTS SATURDAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—The Coliseum, which was used during the last fortnight for a food show, a radio show and for boxing matches, was being transformed today into a place where the world's crack bicyclists can start their six-day grind Saturday night. Carpenters began building the track a few minutes after the last fight spectator had left the building last night.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

MR. ROCKNE of Notre Dame has 10 backfield men. A curious man asked Mr. Rockne which were his first four. He replied he had no first four, that all were regulars to be used as he felt necessary for victory. This is not difficult to believe if you have ever seen Mr. Rockne's legions pouring onto the field of play. Like the Chinese magician who unrolls an incredible string of flags from the small palms of his hands, Mr. Rockne seems to have an endless string of capable men awaiting eagerly the call to action.

Havey Boyle.

Against the Navy, Mr. Rockne selected a team that met Mr. Ingram's eleven not so wisely and in a short space of time Notre Dame was trailing by six points. A wave of the Rocknerian wand and from the bench poured and streamed a line of players that made spectators dizzy. Endlessly, it seemed, jersies were being ripped off impatient backs, which moved to and fro, rubbing eager hands, awaiting the second when they were to rush in to retrieve those six points scored by the Navy.

Presently this information came: Voedisch for Hurburt, Miller for Ransavage, Smith for Cannan, Frederichs for Moynihan, Leppig for Bond, Polskey for McGrath, Walsh for Benda, Riley for Warmsley, Dahman for Chevigney, Wynes for Collins, Flannagan for Niemic.

SHREWD psychology all this which works most of the time, this spectacular change of personnel which keeps awe the opposition and which rouses the new men to greater deeds, thrust as they are into an emergency.

Why don't other coaches follow this Rocknerian system? Because they don't have the numerical strength, in the first place, and secondly because there is a pretty wide gulf between first and second string men at most schools than there is a

Alabama Finally Loses

AFTER two years of undefeated campaigning among the best college elevens of the south and west, the great University of Alabama football team met defeat last Saturday when Georgia Tech squelched 'Bama 13-0, and took the lead in the race for the southern championship of the 1927 season.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

BEREFT of left fielders during the past season, the National League, strange to say, had a plenitude of first-rate center fielders. Not one of the fly-chasers who ranged the left wing for the eight clubs can be classed with Fred Clarke, George Burns and Jimmy Sheckard; yet the middle pasture sported a host of ball hawks who would not suffer by comparison if they played alongside of Clarke, Burns or Sheckard.

CONSIDERING the centerfield situation first, just gaze at the array of stars who galloped gracefully after lofts and liners in this wide area. Eddie Roush, Arnold Statz, Lloyd Waner, Hazen Cuyler, Max Carey, Jimmy Welsh, Hack Wilson, Taylor Douthit, Fred Leach and Ethan Allen. Every man mentioned in this galaxy is superior to the ordinary fly-chaser. True, Carey switched to rightfield early in the season, but when Max moved over toward the rightfield line he made room for one of the swiftest and surest ball hawks that has come to the league in 15 years—Jigger Stats.

ROUSH did not have an especially good year, but he still is one of the star centerfielders of the game. Lloyd Waner, like Statz, is one in a thousand, while Cuyler, in some respects is the best centerfielder in the league. Ki is as swift as the swiftest, he is just as sure when he gets to a ball and he has the best gun of the lot. Jimmy Welsh, in my opinion, is right up with Statz, Sprout Waner and Cuyler; the Boston star is a sprinter, he can play the batters well and his arm is a corker; indeed, it is doubtful whether Cuyler can outthrow this slim performer.

HACK WILSON'S powerful physique, his home run bat and general skill on the offensive appears to becloud his fine defensive ability. Did you ever see Hack fail on a hard chance, or did you ever see him blunder in a play? The muscular [illegible] is fleet of foot and he can throw. Taylor Douthit is another smart center fielder who has ability along all lines, but Douthit skidded badly in hitting this year and lost prestige. Fred Leach showed National League fandom some clever doings in the middle pasture. Leach slumped at the plate, but spurted sufficiently to reach the .300 class. Ethan Allen, the University of Cincinnati boy, who made a name for himself as he played centerfield for the Reds, looked the part of a star on defense and he batted close to .300. Allen is a big, rangy kid with lots of speed.

at Motor Square, making a great showing, while Esterbrook won over Bobby Richardson in last week's show at McKeesport.

Susnell and Phillips are two of the best young welterweights in this section.

Cirko is the most promising of the new local featherweights, while Carpentier has been a factor in that division hereabouts for several seasons and has been a boxer of main bout and semi-final rating.

Rudy Ceder, Tarentum welterweight, meets Bucky Lawless in a 16-round bout at Erie Friday night of next week.

Chuck Zeinack, 160-pound football player and boxer, of Glassport, and George Pavlick, of Johnstown, have been matched for the second bout of the boxing card at McKeesport tomorrow night, and Marty McHale, of McKeesport, and Nick Zinna, of Jeannette, 135 pounders, will mix in the opener. Sig Keppen and Joey LaGrey will box the main bout of 10 rounds and the semi-final will be between Steve O'Malley, of Bellaire, and Jack Banty, of McKeesport.

Tommy Crowley is to meet Benny Gershe, of Cleveland, in a return bout at Cleveland, November 2.

George Camp and Butch Myers, heavyweights, will box the main bout of a smoker to be staged by the Italian Civic Club of the North Side in its clubrooms, 908 Federal street, November 3. Stanley Phillips and Dixie Delmar will meet in the semi-final.

Harry Blitman boxes Johnny Sheppard of Boston at Philadelphia tonight.

Mickey Doyle, Scranton featherweight, who recently knocked out Carl Tremaine and then was stopped by Benny Bass, has retired from the ring.

Georgie Ross of Carnegie, brother of Tony Ross, was knocked out in the first round of a bout at Indianapolis last night.

Pitt, Thiel Dangerous

By JESS CARVER.

PITT is taking to the air for the first time almost, in history, in its ground gaining and offensive play this fall. Carnegie Tech, with no really capable ball carrier, is depending more and more on Harpster's passing. Duquesne is using an aerial attack to a great extent and Thiel, whose eleven invades Pittsburgh for the third time this year Friday for a Conference game with Duquesne, has a well conceived and clearly handled passing attack.

With all these teams shooting 'em high and far, or high and short, grid followers of the city are due for a week-end of thrills. There are probably more thrills to a good open game of football, with a lot of clever passing, than there are at a good fight.

Passes, according to keen students of the game, and also according to those who have made football what it is today, should be high ones, well above the height of the receiver's face. The pass caught about the knees or about the waist, upsets the runner too often to be really offensive. Low passes are as passe as the tackle who awaits the coming of the play when on the defensive.

The problem confronting Tech and Duquesne, generally credited with being the underdogs this week, lies in their being able to break up the passing attacks of Pitt and Thiel. Of the two, the task ahead of Tech is perhaps the hardest. Pitt's attack is better screened than Thiel's, and while there is only one man on the Thiel team who needs to be feared, Berkman, Pitt has three, all able to hurl a pass and hurl it well.

TECH'S TASK HUGE

In stopping, or attempting to stop Pitt on Saturday, Tech must also stop what is generally conceded to be one of the strongest running attacks in the East, led by the incomparable Welch, and augmented by Jim Hagan and Charlie Edwards. Dick Booth seldom essays to run the ends, but what he does to the center of the line and to the tackles is just too bad.

By the same token, the task of Pitt on the defensive will not be a light one by any means. The Tartans will invade the Stadilm with a raft of tricky plays, most of which will have for their pivoting points, the clever Harpster, and the hard hitting and hard running Letzelter.

Of course, we do not know just what Steffen will show in the way of new plays, but it's a good bet that he has a few tricks in his poke that will cause Sutherland many an uneasy moment.

Coach Jock, though isn't going into the game without a few aces up his sleeve. He has one or two plays in hiding that he can use if necessary, plays of such daring that they will seem totally foreign to a Pitt team.

Coach Layden of Duquesne, and his genial assistant, John Eric Weibel, didn't take their charges out into the rain and mud yesterday, but kept them in the gym, and indulged in a long blackboard session. Coach Layden estimates that if the combined thicknesses of the Duke players' skulls were laid end to end, the total would be three times the size of the French war debt.

According to Duquesne men, had the Dukes' aerial game been "on" against Bethany, the Bluffmen would have won by three touchdowns. If they are able to get going this week, even against the strong Lutherans, it may happen that the Dukes will find themselves in second place in the Conference Sunday.

Dr. Holleran and his Lutherans are scheduled to arrive in town early Friday morning and will be quartered on the Bluff until game time.

On the same day, both Pitt and Tech will probably hie themselves to the sticks, where they'll put in a good afternoon's work and a good night's rest before the city championship game on Saturday.

ALTERS BUCKEYE ATTACK

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—(INS.)—Coach Wilce of Ohio State has altered his offensive system to a three-man running backfield. Grim, Marek and Huston ran the ends and tackles, while Ohsner charged the center of the line. Heretofore Wilce has relied on a two-man running backfield. The varsity scrimmaged for an hour on defensive plans for the Michigan game.

WILL JUDGE FOX HOUNDS TODAY

Dog fanciers from all parts of the country took part in the first day bench show of the Western Pennsylvania Hunting Dogs Association's show at Sauers' Hall, Imperial, yesterday when several of the bench classes were judged.

Beginning today at 2 o'clock, when the fox hounds will be judged in the field trials, and concluding Saturday with field trial in all classes, the show which has 100 show dogs and more than 150 field dogs entered, will move along through the fox hounds, beagles, pointers, setters and spaniels classes.

The inclement weather of yesterday confined the exhibit to the bench classes and, according to the judges, some of the best dogs in the country are among the entries.

Several outstanding dogs won their awards in the bench exhibit, among them entries by Dr. Gustav Berg, the Pittsburgh baseball club physician; Joseph G. Darby, Dr. Paul Franklin and other well-known exhibitors.

With the transfering of the show to Gould's farm near Imperial, today it is anticipated that thousands of dog fanciers will be in attendance for the sporting angle of the show.

SCOTTY BURKE, O'DONNELL COP GOLF TITLES

By VERNON A. SWARTSPAGER.

Braving a gale-like rain-storm that kept them shivering while icy rain swirled about them, two champions worked hard for and deservingly captured their respective golf crowns on local links yesterday.

Perhaps the hero of the day was J. Scott Burke of the Fox Chapel Golf Club, who retained his club championship by defeating George H. Flynn, 1 up, in a 19-hole engagement over the Aspinwall club's layout. Both players steeled their nerves to the elements, and Burke outlasted his opponent, Yale champion last year, in one of the fiercest conflicts ever to ensue over Fox Chapel's links. We credit Burke as the hero, although Jimmy O'Donnell falls only a little short of the honor.

Jimmy O'Donnell of Edgewood, president of the Caddie-masters' Association of Western Pennsylvania, only played 14 holes to quickly eliminate John Johnson of New Castle, 4 and 3, in the final round of the caddie-masters' championship yesterday at the Edgewood Country Club. Five more holes of close competition and he would have been eligible for co-hero honors.

The games he has not attended were one with Harvard, two with Rutgers, one with Army, one with Georgetown, one with Pitt and last week's tilt with Tech.

corner to upset the Kid with that crushing right.

The Kid was up at nine and stumbled through the round. Throughout the next two rounds Kaplan, game as the next one, kept to his task, but in the eighth the trouble began anew.

One shower of rights and lefts put Kaplan down and he was up at three. He was in very bad shape, but kept rushing McLarnin, instead of away from him. That's the kind of a fighter he is.

It was inevitable that Kaplan couldn't go very far in that barrage of rights and lefts, and he didn't. He went no farther than the floor, and though he was trying to get up at 10, it was too late.

gotiations with the bosses of the Braves.

No official statement has been made in connection with the report that John McGraw might assume the Boston managership and leave Rogers Hornsby in charge of the Giants.

SINCE the conclusion of the world series, during which the pitcher in question was used in two of the four games played, Pittsburgh fans have been discussing Wiley Moore's famous "sinker" and trying to figure out how he throws it. They don't know whether it is a drop curve or a fadeaway, otherwise known as a screw ball.

Probably they will be surprised to learn that it is neither of these. On the contrary it is Moore's natural fast-ball delivery. That's why it is surprising and why it must be placed in the freakish class. There is no other like it in either of the major leagues at present.

THE oddity of Moore's sinker lies in the fact that he gets the sinking result with a fast ball. As you know, of course, a ball is made to curve ordinarily by throwing it with such a motion that it will rotate in the direction in which the pitcher desires to make it curve.

The fact that the ball is rotating naturally causes it to overcome the air resistance on that side and when this resistance is overcome the sphere curves.

NATURALLY it would appear to follow that a fast ball would go upward. This for the reason that most pitchers delivering their fast ball throw it overhand, with the result that when it leaves their fingers it is given an upward rotating motion and after traveling a certain distance it rises. This is what is meant when you hear a ball being referred to as having a "hop" on it. When a hurler whose forte is a fast ball loses that "hop" his days in the majors are numbered, as he cannot cope successfully with the big league hitters when he is no longer able to make his fast ball jump.

BUT Moore's fast ball is different in the fact that whereas other fast ball pitchers have a hop on their deliveries, Moore's hard one drops instead of jumping. An Eastern baseball man who has studied Wilky's work closely, says that it is all in the way he throws it.

Where the majority of hurlers aim to keep a fast ball high and impart to it an upward rotation the New York flinger shoots the ball in low and by a peculiar motion gives it a downward rotation.

Moore is the only pitcher in the big leagues today who throws a fast ball that it a real sinker. "Deacon" Phillippe used to baffle opposing batsmen with a swift sinker, and about the only other hurler in the modern majors who made a success of the sinking fast ball was Ernie Shore, one-time Redsox star.

Foreign Combines Hit U. S.; Industry, Workers Warned.

By B. C. FORBES

EXPECT greater foreign competition. It is advisable that workers and employers learn what is happening—forewarned should help us to be forearmed. Employment, wages, industry, business profits, all of us would be affected were the tactics of other countries seriously to hurt either our home or our foreign trade.

What is going on?

GERMANY has just succeeded in bringing Britain and France into a powerful chemical combination, a combination designed to enable Germany to recover domination throughout the world of that most vital basic industry.

The president of America's own chemical foundation, Francis P. Garvan, formerly alien property custodian, takes this somewhat panicky view of Germany's action:

"Is there an American whose soul is so dead as not to thrill at such a threat and menace as this combine makes against the safety and independence of our national defense, our national health and our national industrial progress?

"What was our position in 1914? That position can come again unless all the American people unite against this combine threatening their peace and their prosperity."

EUROPEANS, not long ago, formed an international steel combine for the purpose of putting up stiffer competition against our own towering steel industry.

The British plan to control the rubber industry so as to compel the United States, the all-important consuming nation, to pay prices satisfactory to growers is familiar to all.

The attitude of various foreign countries towards the United States in the matter of tariffs was well illustrated recently by the extremely drastic new tariff duties levied on imports from this country. That other nations will attempt to hit back at our tariff is everywhere taken for granted.

In other parts of the world national steps have been taken aimed at this country, especially in the direction of forcing us to pay artificially high prices for products we must import on a heavy scale.

THE attitude of foreign nations towards America reminds one of school days, when a number of small boys would form a gang to get after the big bad boy of the school. This whole development is readily understandable, human nature being what it is.

We cannot hope to avoid it.

We must prepare ourselves to meet it.

IN my judgment no German-led chemical combine will succeed in smothering our own youthful but virile, enterprising, wide-awake chemical industry. Nor is there acute danger that America's steel makers will be licked to a frazzle. Washington can be depended upon to play the tariff game as capably as any foreign government. Even the rubber control scheme has failed to work to the satisfaction of its promoters.

BUT warfare means extra effort and exertion. Neither capital nor labor must adopt smug complacency. Employers must bestir themselves to achieve greater efficiency, to prosecute research most diligently, to master the intricacies of world trade.

As for our workers, read this, just issued by the very capable National Industrial Conference Board:

"If paid in gold, a bricklayer in Paris would have to work nearly 10 times as many hours to earn an ounce of the precious metal as a Philadelphia bricklayer; in London, England, nearly 28 hours for every 8 hours worked by the Philadelphia man, and, in Berlin, Germany, more than 40 hours.

"In the printing trade, hand compositors in Paris have to work more than 40 hours to every 8 hours worked in Philadelphia to earn an equal amount in gold; the London compositor has to put in just about two days to every one day, and the Berlin compositor more than 30 hours for every 8 hours worked by the Philadelphia man."

TO continue to enjoy the relatively high wages in this country, our workers naturally will have to earn them, if we are to compete successfully against our eager foreign competitors.

STOCKS REACT AS MONEY DROPS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP.)—Renewal of selling pressure against today's stock market resulted in another wide selling movement which carried prices down 2 to 7 points. The reaction, which took place in the face of a lowering of the call money rate from 4 to 3½ per cent, was not associated with any development in the day's news, but apparently represented a further correction of a weakened technical position.

Prices opened fairly firm, but the rally was unimpressive, bear traders taking advantage of the uneasiness which had developed as a result of the previous sharp decline, launched a series of selling attacks against some of the popular industrials, which eventually unsettled the general list. Allied Chemical was hammered down nearly 7 points to 146⅝, Dupont broke 6 to 228¼ and Commercial Solvents dropped 5½ to 168, selling of these issues undoubtedly being influenced by the formation of a huge European chemical trust, and by the falling off in Commercial Solvents earnings in the third quarter, compared with the same quarter last year.

Steel trade reviews are mixed, Iron Age detecting indications that a turn for the better was imminent, while the American metal market reports conditions have taken a definite turn for the worse. Republic Steel's third-quarter earnings, made public today, were only about one-third of those of the corresponding period last year. United States Steel common fell to 142¾ on the reaction.

Woolworth, General Electric, United Cast Iron Pipe, R. H. Macy, Mack Trucks, General Motors and Hudson all sold off 4 or more points, but recoveries of 1 to 2 points from the low levels took place early in the afternoon.

Rails yielded with the industrials, although the losses were not as large. Delaware and Hudson, Jersey Central, Chesapeake and Ohio and Louisville and Nashville were the hardest hit.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 1 point, most months being lower under further liquidation and southern selling. Better demand around 20.50c for December, was supposed to include some trade buying and the market steadied up after initial selling had run its course. December working up to 20.54c before the end of the first hour. March rallied to 20.75c or back to yesterday's closing quotation. Early weather reports were regarded by some traders as indicating that temperatures were too low for the development of late cotton, but hardly low enough to cause serious damage. Rather conflicting views also were expressed as to the showing of the weekly report of the weather bureau. Private cables reported trade calling and local buying, together with covering in Liverpool on reports of frost in the South.

The market was easier late in the morning under continued southern selling and liquidation, which appeared to be promoted by the failure of bullish features in weather and crop news to bring in more general buying. December contracts eased off to 20.38c and March to 20.52c, making net declines of about 20 to 25 points. The market was within 2 or 3 points of the lowest at midday.

Gillette Sales Increase.

European sales of Gillette Safety Razor Company show a large increase and both domestic and export business this year will be largest in its history, K. C. Gillette, head of the company, said on his return from a year's sojourn in Europe. The company would earn close to $7 a share in 1927, he asserted.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Burns Passes B Dividend.

Directors of Burns Bros. omitted the dividend of 50 cents a share on the class "B" common stock, but authorized the disbursement of $2 on the class "A" common. An extra dividend of 50 cents quarterly previously had been paid on the "A" common. The regular quarterly of $1.75 on the preferred was declared. The company's reports for quarter ended September 30, net income as $205,810, against $561,116 in the June quarter, and $799,313 in the third quarter of 1926. Directors have called for redemption on February 1, 1928, the entire outstanding prior preference stock at $110 plus accrued dividend.

Stanley Company Earnings.

Net income of the Stanley Company of America, after deductions for interest and taxes totaled approximately $3,700,000 for the first nine months of 1927, according to a statement presented to the executive committee. The earnings were considerably in excess of dividend requirements for the full year, which, at the rate of $1 a share, will approximate $2,176,000. The report showed that the company had no bank indebtedness and that at no time in its history had it been in better financial condition. Quick assets as of October 1, 1927, were $7,567,000, as compared with current liabilities of $748,000.

A. P. I. Oil Figures.

U. S. daily average crude oil output for week ended October 15 totaled 2,484,150 barrels, a decrease of 21,450 barrels from the preceding week, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company reports for September quarter consolidated net income was $233,352 after depreciation and Federal taxes equal to $2.51 a share on 93,119 shares outstanding, as against $271,142 or $2.77 a share on 101,415 shares in the September, 1926 quarter. Nine months net was $668,411, against $719,494 in the 1926 period.

Gasoline Stocks Dwindling.

While the petroleum industry is in a blue funk by reason of the enormous volume of crude production it has been called upon to take during the past several months, the following digest of gasoline consumption from the weekly letter of Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co., specialists in Standard Oil securities, is significant of the country's great requirements: "A review of the figures of the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Mines in its August report shows a decline of over 4,000,000 barrels in stocks of refined products of which gasoline accounted for 3,614,000 barrels. On August 31 gasoline stocks amounted to 33,455,000 barrels as compared with 38,069,000 barrels on July 31 and a peak of 42,416,000 barrels on March 31. Gasoline stocks at the end of August were less than at any time during the current year and with the exception of September, 1926, were the lowest in volume since December 31, 1924. At the August rate of demand there was only one month's supply of gasoline on hand, the lowest in days' supply in five years. The increase in domestic consumption and exports was directly responsible for diminished stocks as the August refinery output of gasoline continued about the same as July when the new record production of over 28,000,000 barrels or an average of 941,000 barrels daily was established. Domestic gasoline consumption and exports exceeded 1,000,000 barrels daily in the month of May for the first time and the total daily consumption has averaged over 1,000,000 barrels daily in June, July and August, the average consumption of August establishing a peak at 1,096,000 barrels daily of which 941,000 barrels was domestic consumption and 155,000 barrels represented exports."

Refinery Stocks Decrease.

Oil stocks at refineries showed net decrease of 419,000 barrels in September based on the American Petroleum Institute's summary covering approximately 95 per cent of operating capacity east of California. Gasoline alone was drawn on for 2,257,000 barrels.

General Electric Earnings.

General Electric Company for September quarter reports net income of $11,342,982 after charges and taxes, equal, after dividends on special stock, to $1.48 a share on 7,211,461 common shares issued, against $12,115,431, or $1.59 a share, in the June quarter and 11,494,743, or $1.53 a share, in the September, 1926, quarter. Nine months net was $35,192,314, or $4.61 on the common, against $31,765,671, or $4.17 a share in the 1926 period.

Columbia Gas and Electric.

Application has been made to the Ohio Public Service Commission for a pre-approval of the acquisition by Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation of gas properties valued at several million dollars owned by The Ohio Public Service Company and Toledo Edison Company, both subsidiaries of Cities Service Corporation. The extensive electric facilities and service rendered by Ohio Public Service and Toledo Edison will not be affected by transfer of the properties in question.

Commonwealth Edison.

Net income of Commonwealth Edison Company for quarter ended September 30 last, after all charges was $2,257,511, equivalent to $2.04 a share on the 1,105,924 shares of capital stock outstanding, compared with net of $2,142,141, or $2.19 a share for the September, 1926, quarter. Net income for 12 months totaled $11,405,292, equal to $2.12 a share on $10,600,000 capital stock outstanding, against $11,799,011, or $2.07 a share on $97,743,100 capital stock in the previous 12 months.

Trumbull Shows Loss.

Trumbull Steel Company for quarter ended September 30 reports net loss of $162,143, as compared with net income of $545,129 in the September, 1926, quarter.

Hardware Trade Satisfactory.

With the movement of fall and winter merchandise getting into full swing, the hardware business is considered to be in a satisfactory condition throughout the country, according to Hardware Age. The factors in business seem to be fairly well balanced. The absence of inventory inflation leaves the fundamental industrial situation sound, and most concerns are in a healthy financial position. The present ease of bank credit should operate as a stimulus to business. The construction industry and the agricultural outlook are both encouraging. There is no definite indication of any sharp change in business conditions in the hardware trade at present. Prices generally are steady and collections fair.

Four Open Hearths Resume.

Four open hearth furnaces in the Cambria works of the Bethlehem Steel Company at Johnstown, Pa., have resumed operations.

Big Drop at Seminole.

Crude oil production of the Seminole area for 24 hours ended 7 a. m., October 18, was 418,365 barrels or a decrease of 2,615 barrels from the preceding day.

Lambert Pharmacal.

Lambert Pharmacal Company in the quarter ended September 30 earned $1,149,226 as against $765,354 in the same period last year.

Exchange Honors Mustin.

Directors of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange broke all precedent yesterday when they voted to extend the courtesies of the floor to William I. Mustin, former president of the institution. This is the first time in the history of the exchange that such privilege has been granted to anyone not holding membership. Mr. Mustin relinquished his seat some years ago following his four-year term as president. In a letter to Mr. Mustin informing him of the directors' action, Shirley P. Austin, president of the exchange, said: "It is my pleasant duty to officially advise you that the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange at their last meeting voted unanimously to extend to you the courtesies of the floor of the exchange. This unprecedented action is a most fitting recognition of the great services you rendered as former president and member, and I voice the feeling of all of us in wishing you all luck and happiness and that you may long be with us."

Tire Shipments Lower.

For the second time this year and the second month in succession, shipments of automobile casings—balloons, cords, fabrics, solids and cushions—fell in August below last year. Shipments for the month totaled 4,547,144 casings, a decrease of 270,421 casings, or 5.2 per cent, under August, 1926, deliveries. Casing shipments of 4,327,328 in July fell off 272,900, or 5.6 per cent, under the corresponding month of last year. August balloon shipments totaled 2,411,790 casings, an increase of 241,127 casings, or 11.1 per cent, over August, 1926.

Mullins Body.

Profit of Mullins Body Corporation, for quarter ended September 30, 1927, was $201,332 after expenses and interest, but before Federal taxes, compared with profit of $51,472 in third quarter of 1926. Outstanding stocks consist of 9,465 shares (par $100) of 8 per cent preferred and 100,000 no par shares of common. For first nine months of 1927, profit before Federal taxes amounted to $522,712 against $233,200 in first nine months of previous year.

Illinois Central Loadings.

Illinois Central Railroad handled 191,194 cars of revenue freight in first 14 days of October, against 186,943 in same period of 1926.

Paige Detroit Motors.

Stockholders of Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company have approved the increase in authorized common stock to 2,000,000 no par shares from 1,500,000. Proposal to offer 300,000 shares of no par common to common and second preferred stockholders on a pro rata basis at $1 a share was also approved. Rights to subscribe will be available to stock of record October 21, and expiration date on subscription privilege is November 11.

Certainteed Products.

The Certainteed Products Company September quarter net income after Federal taxes and preferred dividends, equalled $1.96 a share on the common against $2.14 in previous quarter and $1.79 in the 1926 quarter. For nine months net equalled $4.83 on common against $4.61 in 1926.

Commercial Solvents.

Commercial Solvents Corporation net income for the September quarter equalled $2 a share compared with $2.17 in previous quarter and $2.19 in September quarter, 1926. For nine months net equalled $7.19 a share against $5.55 in 1926.

International Cement.

International Cement Corporation net income for the September quarter after all charges and taxes equalled, after preferred dividends, $1.59 a share on the common against $1.72 a share in previous quarter and $2.14 in the September, 1926, quarter. For nine months net equalled $4.94 on common against $4.75 in 1926.

Foamite Goes to American La France.

Directors of Foamite Childs Corporation, of which MacAndrews and Forbes are reported to own a majority stock interest, have authorized sale of the company to the American La France Fire Engine Company for $2,400,000 in the preferred and common stocks of the latter company.

D. L. & W. Asks Bond Approval.

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad has asked authority to guarantee $9,371,000 of Morris and Essex Railroad first mortgage 3½ per cent gold bonds to be sold at not less than 93½ per cent. Proceeds are to be used to reimburse the road's treasury for expenditures made on additions and betterments.

Gillette Optimistic.

Returning to this country after a year spent abroad, King C. Gillette, head of the Gillette Razor Company, stated that the company's European sales are showing large increase and that both domestic and export business will be the largest in its history. Earnings this year will be close to $7 a share, according to Mr. Gillette.

LONE STAR GAS MOVES HIGHER; STEADY BUYING

Local Market Quiet Prices Narrow

Stocks got away to a slow start on the Pittsburgh Exchange today, with only a few issues appearing on the board during the first hour and prices showing practically no change from the levels prevailing on the close Tuesday. The absence of trading interest was due in a large measure to the changed sentiment on the New York market, where the downward movement appeared to be halted and the main list was washing back and forth restlessly.

Lone Star Gas was the only stock in which traders were willing to make commitments at the start. Several trades were recorded at 49¾, unchanged from yesterday's general price level. Witherow Steel showed an upward tendency as small lots came out at 10¼ to 10⅝. National Fireproofing preferred sold again at 20, but only a few shares were handled.

Standard Sanitary showed practically no change from yesterday's quotations, but the volume of trading in the issue was much lighter than in the preceding session. Westinghouse Air Brake was handled to the extent of a few shares at slightly lower prices, reflecting the downward movement in New York.

Lone Star Gas moved up to 50 later in the session and seemed oblivious to the general unsettlement on the "big board." However, the oil stocks in most instances disregarded the break in the industrial list, holding firmly at the levels prevailing the past few days.

American Window Glass Machine common fell back five points today after holding firm yesterday in the face of a seven-point drop in the preferred stock. Earnings report of American Window Glass Company for year ended August 26, showing net loss of $381,250 against net income of $420,710 for the previous year was a factor in the drop.

TURN IN STEEL BUSINESS IS INDICATED

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Iron Age tomorrow will say: Two developments of the week are taken to indicate that a turn in the steel market is imminent. One is a rather pronounced movement of miscellaneous ordering of all products, and the other is a heavy leaning toward weakness in prices with a virtual confusion in this respect in strip steel and pipe, the result more of competition among makers than of the pressure from buyers.

There are instances of specifications and new buying so far this month being 10 per cent in volume ahead of the corresponding period of September and in the case of companies serving railroads only a limited way. Discounting expansion in automobile production in November or December it remains that a railroad car buying movement not yet in evidence, is depended on to start an active revival.

Both of the Iron Age composite prices made new lows this week. That for pig iron declining from $18.09 to $17.84 a ton and that for finished steel from 2.331 to 2.307 cents a pound. Not since 1916 has pig iron been so low.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Strong rallies followed early new breaks today in the season's low price record for wheat, corn and oats. Late aggressive commission house buying lifted the corn market in the last hour to above yesterday's finish. Earlier weakness of grain was apparently altogether independent of stock market downturns today and was ascribed largely to ideal weather for threshing of wheat and for curing of corn.

For the past several years we have set aside the last THREE DAYS of the THIRD WEEK in OCTOBER to sell seasonable wanted merchandise at CUT PRICES. This ANNUAL CUT PRICE EVENT was inaugurated as a DEMONSTRATION of FRANK & SEDER SUPREME values. And so appreciative was the public of the opportunity to supply their FALL and WINTER needs in the heart of the season at SENSATIONAL SAVINGS that capacity business is the rule of these three days.

Because of the unseasonable weather which created an enormous accumulation of surplus stocks in the New York markets, we were able to close any number of purchases at CUT PRICES—something heretofore unknown in the month of October. The result is that we are in better position than ever before to feature VALUES for the NEXT THREE DAYS that will bring the greatest crowds that ever attended a sale in Pittsburgh. Sale begins Thursday and continues Friday and Saturday, October 21, 22 and 23.

PLEASE NOTE

While we have large quantities of all goods advertised, we cannot guarantee they will last three days. And we cannot promise to fill mail or phone orders. To avoid possible disappointments we advise you to come tomorrow.

COURT WON'T TIE PENNINGTON

An effort to make unique use of an injunction in Federal Court failed yesterday when counsel for Peter G. Walter, druggist, of 6?8 East Ohio street, was refused an injunction to restrain Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington from continuing the revocation of Walter's permit to sell spiritnous liquors for medical purposes. A plea for a mandatory injunction ordering the restoration of the permit pending final review of alleged misuses made of it by Walter, was also refused. Saturday was set as the date of final review.

Walter's permit was revoked last June following alleged irregularity in the dispensation of medicinal spirituous liquors.

EVICTED MINERS MOVE GOODS

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Oct. 19.—Families of 24 union miners have been moved from the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Company houses in Rossiter to quarters in Symerstown, as the result of eviction notices served by the company. Notices have been served on 108 other families who, it is said, will be moved in a few days by the United Mine Workers.

The Rossiter mines resumed several weeks ago on an open shop basis and there has been no trouble. Miners have been imported.

Tony Ross, organizer for the district, reported that 28 men were employed in the mine as against over 60 last week. The company reports that the output of the mine is increasing daily.

BOY, RACING AUTO, SLIPS UNDER WHEELS; HURT

Andrew Allen, 13, Negro, 1312 Montier street, Wilkinsburg, racing with an auto truck, slipped and fell under the rear wheels, while en route to school in North avenue, near Coal street, Wilkinsburg, yesterday. Henry Basil, 19, of 532 Karl street, driver of the truck, did not know of the accident until pedestrians stopped him. He took the boy to Columbia Hospital, where it was said Allen suffered internal injuries. Basil furnished $1,000 bond.

Scheme to Dispel Winter Proves Failure

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Tides may be harnessed, rain clouds dissipated by electrically charged dust from airplanes, and other tricks played with the elements, but when winter claims the land, it's winter, and nothing can be made of it.

Recently Prof. Henry J. Cox, veteran senior meteorologist of the Chicago Weather Bureau, was consulted about a plan of erecting gigantic fans at properly spaced intervals from the winter-warm Gulf of Mexico to Chicago, to be set whirling and pulling up the warm air to the cold North at the first onslaught of winter.

"No," Prof. Cox exploded. "Can't you see that even if you did suck the hot air up North, the cold air would rush South in the layer above, and all you would be doing would be circulating cold air. You'd freeze everything."

A patent was not applied for.

AIDED WOUNDED JAILER; WINS PAROLE

As a reward for his assistance to wounded jail guards during the escape of Paul Jaworski and John Vasbinder, murderers, last August, when he, also, might have escaped through the open doors of the jail, James Brown, 40, a physician's assistant, of Campbell county, Virginia, was released from jail late yesterday on a parole for 14 months remaining of a two-year sentence.

He was sentenced January 20 last by Judge John A. Evans for passing three forged checks, aggregating $80, on McKeesport merchants. He was intoxicated at the time, friends said, and it was his first sentence.

His medical training made him useful in the jail and he was made a trusty. At the time of the delivery he was employed in the operating room adjoining the office.

His attorney, N. J. Lippard, in requesting the parole of Judge Evans, stated Brown gave first aid to Harry Reiger and James Hanlon, shot by the escaping murderers, and twisted a tourniquet about the arm of Reiger to stem the blood spurting from a severed artery.

HOTEL SESSIONS OPEN FRIDAY

The Pennsylvania State Hotel Association's annual convention opens a two-day session here Friday. Headquarters will be in the new Roosevelt Hotel.

Mayor Charles H. Kline will welcome the delegates and will preside at the opening session. Attorney Charles B. Prichard will be toastmaster at a banquet in the William Penn Hotel Friday night.

Other speakers will include Councilman Daniel Winters, County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, Thomas B. Greene, president of the American Hotels Association, and Horace L. Wiggins, retiring president of the organization. A business session Saturday morning and luncheons in Webster Hall and the Hotel Schenley will wind up the day's activities.

LAND PURCHASE HELD LEGAL

The Homestead borough school board did not abuse its authority in spending $28,500 for a plot of land in Mifflin township to be used as a playground and athletic field, according to an opinion handed down yesterday by Judge Frank I. Gelmar, who dismisses the bill of equity filed by three taxpayers of the borough and the costs were placed on the plaintiffs. The suit was brought by Anna Irwin Miller, Samuel Hall and William Tunstall, Homestead taxpayers, who had asked for a restraining order to forbid the consummation of the purchase on the grounds that the price was excessive, that the land is outside the borough and in an inaccessible location.

W. VA. MAN HELD ON MANN ACT

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—James A. Warble, Martinsburg, W. Va., farmhand, who gained the aid of the Bronx Lions Club with a story of poverty, was turned over to the United States marshal today on a charge of violating the Mann act. Mrs. Myrtle Rogers Dunlap, said to be the wife of a neighbor of Warble, who accompanied him to New York, was held on a vagrancy charge until the disposition of three children, who came with them, is decided by the Bronx Children's Court.

PITTSBURGHER ESCAPES WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 19.—A. Davenport, a Pittsburgh salesman, narrowly escaped death when a passenger train demolished an automobile in which he was riding. The engine of the train struck the rear end of the automobile as Davenport drove onto a crossing. He suffered bruises and lacerations.

TWO WOMEN NAMED ON GUMBERT SCHOOL BOARD

Mrs. Mildred Anderson, William H. McNaugher and Mrs. Harriet Goldman yesterday were appointed members of the board of managers of the Gumbert Industrial School for Girls by Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Common Pleas Court.

Cal's Hobby Horse Has Stable Mate

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—President Coolidge's famous electrical hobby horse has a stable mate.

A new type of electrical vibrator, producing the same results as the hobby horse, but with less assault upon the "rider," has been established in the White House, it was learned today. The vibrator is "fed" from the same electric light plug that nourished "Electra," the hobby for the past year.

The mechanical steed, it was learned, has been covered with a blanket and rests quietly, while the shiny new vibrator hums with life and energy. The latter is used by encircling the anatomy with a wide elastic band, attached to a camshaft, which rotates rapidly. The effect upon the "rider" is the same as a long ride on "Electra."

So the President, it is said, can take his riding standing up.

NEWSPAPER ADS WIN PRAISE OF PHONE CHIEF

The Bell Telephone Company is a firm believer in newspaper advertising, it was brought out in an interview with President Leonard H. Kinnard. It is through the advertising columns of the local papers, he asserted, that the general public is made acquainted with rapid advances in the telephonic art.

"If it were not for the fact that the telephone company advertised its remarkable innovations and developments in the newspapers, the public would never realize the tremendous changes taking place," he said.

So many things are going on at the same time in so many places and so many elements enter into the work, he said, that it would be impossible for the public to actually learn what was happening if the accomplishments were not summarized and announced through advertisements.

"Comparatively speaking," Mr. Kinnard continued, "few people in the United States have occasion to call points in Great Britain, Mexico or Cuba, but they know that the service is available in case they want to use it."

GIVE PLANTS AT SETTLEMENT

Dozens of geranium plants, donated by friends of the Brashear Settlement, Holt street, South Side, will be donated tomorrow, at the regular weekly meeting of the Colored Women's Community Club of the Settlement, at 7:30 p. m. In the club are 25 members. The presentation will be made by Mrs. John Lewis, one of the volunteer workers of the settlement.

A demonstration in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick also will be given during the evening by Miss Nova Negley of the Nursing Department of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. John M. Phillips of Carrick is president of the Settlement House.

MEXICAN FLOOD DEATHS REPORTED TREMENDOUS

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 19.—Reports of heavy loss of life in floods sweeping the Grijalva River were received here but could not be confirmed. The floods are described as the most severe in 30 years, Macindas and small towns being completely submerged. Severe suffering among the hundreds of flood refugees is reported in dispatches reaching here.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

OINTMENT WORTH $100 A JAR

TO MAN WHO SUFFERED CONSTANTLY FOR FIVE YEARS

Healed leg entirely

Spokane, Wash., March 21:—"While working in a stone quarry, I slipped and cut my leg and blood poisoning set in. The doctor stopped this, but my leg refused to heal. It became a running sore and hurt me so I could hardly do my work. I wore bandages constantly for five years, using several remedies without success. One day a friend recommended Resinol Ointment and after I had used ten jars of it my leg was entirely healed. This ointment is worth $100 a jar to me, and I will never be without it in my house again."—(Signed) W. P. Bower, Box 593.

Resinol Ointment should be in every home. It's invaluable for cuts, burns, blisters, chafing, etc., as well as more serious skin disorders. All druggists sell the Resinol products.

SHOTS and PASSES

by Julius Levin

ALBERT M. THOMAS, president of the Pittsburgh Bankers' League, is receiving applications for berths in this year's loop. The Bankers' League as in past years will operate at the Fifth Avenue High School, games being scheduled for Tuesday and Friday nights throughout the basketball campaign. All of last year's members, as well as any new applicants, are asked to send their applications to Albert M. Thomas, Mellon National Bank, before October 25.

JOHNNY BECKMAN, former star of the New York Celtics, and last season in charge of the Baltimore club of the American League, will head Detroit's entry in the professional circuit this winter. The Baltimore franchise has been transferred to the Michigan city. Tillie Voss will be one of the mainstays of the Detroit quintet, having been obtained last season in a trade which sent Stretch Meehan, Chickie Passon and Harry Riconda to Washington. This deal was engineered at the annual league meeting held in Cleveland during the world series between the Celtics and Rosenblums.

AL KELLETT, former Central League star, will be back with Philadelphia in the American League. The lanky center for a time was a holdout, but finally came to terms with Manager Jules Aronson, owner of the Quaker City pros. Kellett made a big hit against the Morrys at Duquesne University last winter and he should prove a star in the Carr circuit this season.

THE Babcock Dairy team, champions of Northwestern Ohio, is planning an invasion of the Greater Pittsburgh district this winter and is eager to arrange games with some of the leading quintets in this vicinity. The team is composed of collegiate stars of the Toledo district. Teams interested in booking this attraction should write Manager L. L. Suppick, 2240 Franklin avenue, Toledo, O.

Grid "Upset" Record Likely To Be Broken

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—College football is putting on its flip-flops earlier than usual this year.

Where the "dope" usually is strong enough to weather most of October's shocks, it has already been knocked up against the ropes by a series of form somersaults. It will be a topsy-turvy season, as bewildering to keep up with as the rule changes, if November unfolds anything like the upsets that October already has ushered in.

The climax battles are yet to come but the carnage so far finds defeat escaped by only one of the eight major teams that finished the 1926 campaign unbeaten.

Lafayette, the only eastern team neither conquered nor tied in 1926, is the only survivor of the unbeaten brigade and even this team has one tie marked against its record so far this season. The Maroon juggernauts ran into unexpected opposition from West Virginia last Saturday and barely escaped with a 7-7 score. Lafayette may stumble this week against an old rival, Washington and Jefferson, to complete the downfall of last season's pace-setters.

Alabama and Stanford, intersectional rivals who fought to a tie in last New Year's Day post-season battle after mopping up all rivals previously, met swift and sudden downfall this season. Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado swept over Alabama last week, handing the Crimson Tide its first defeat in three years. Little St. Mary's College toppled Stanford rather unceremoniously, 16 to 0.

In turn St. Mary's was trimmed by California, whose Golden Bears appear to be staging a comeback and bidding for the Pacific coast conference title they held for so many years under the guidance of the late Andy Smith.

The Navy, Brown and Boston College, undefeated along the eastern front last season, all have bitten the dust so far. Notre Dame humbled the Midshipmen; Pennsylvania, then Yale bowled over Brown's "Iron Men," while both Duke and Geneva plucked the feathers of Boston College's eagles.

Out in the wide open spaces, University of Utah and Southern Methodist both finished the 1926 campaign undefeated, but both also have taken the "long count" from early season foes this year. Utah, Rocky Mountain Conference champions, fell before Northwestern's powerful team. Southern Methodist's Mustangs, titleholders in the Southwestern Conference, lost to Centenary, a small but powerful Louisiana eleven, a fortnight ago.

Gaston Figures In Senators, Browns Swap

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—An off-season trade which will send Earl McNeely, utility outfielder, and Richard Coffman, 20-year-old pitcher obtained from Chattanooga to the St. Louis Browns in exchange for Milton Gaston, pitcher, was announced today by Clark Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club.

Gaston, a right-hander, who is 30, started his professional career with the Yankees in 1924, being sent to the Browns the following year in a trade which sent Urban Shocker and Joe Giard to the New York club. With St. Louis this year, Gaston had a record of 13 wins and 17 losses.

McNeely cost the Senators $50,000, being purchased in 1924 from Sacramento. Coffman was farmed to the Jersey City club at the start of the 1927 campaign, later rejoined the Senators and was sent to Birmingham under option.

Hoyt, Lyons Best Hurlers

By BILL SLOCUM,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Choosing an all-star team of American League players on their performances of 1927 is a task that might be considered both easy and difficult. It would be easy to point to the aggregation Miller Huggins led to such spectacular heights and select the New York Yankees.

It is difficult when one begins to move around from club to club for the best possible talent, because there is plenty from which the choices must be made.

In the team outlined below, there are some players who have stood out so strongly during the season that their selection will be conceded without dispute. There are others whose place on an all-star team will be reason for argument and dispute.

Waite Hoyt, of the Yankees, and Ted Lyons, of the White Sox, are named as the two pitchers because their work through the year was of consistently high class, each showing ability to win a great number of games without help and pitching well in many of the games which were finished by others.

HOYT BEST HURLER

Hoyt was the most successful pitcher of the year in his league, and Lyons won more than 20 games for a second division club, not to mention some well-pitched games which he lost.

Behind the bat, Mickey Cochrane, of the Athletics, gets the call, with Muddy Ruel and Luke Sewell pressing him closely for the place. Cochrane is chosen because he is the most dangerous hitter. He has no more style and skill behind the bat than the two others mentioned.

At first base, there is no argument. Lou Gehrig wins the honor as far as from here to China. Sisler, Dykes, Judge, Clancy, Neun and Burns hit well and fielded up to expectations, but none batted like Gehrig and none excelled him on defense. He was the outstanding first baseman of his league.

Gehrig made 116 hits for extra bases, including 48 home runs, and set a new record for driving in runs.

Tony Lazzeri gets the second base assignment because he combines fielding skill second to none and a punch that no other second baseman showed during the season. Gehringer, of the Detroit club, one of the younger infield group, had a wonderful year in the field and at bat, but he was not as steady on defense as Lazzeri, nor was his batting as strong.

At shortstop, Joe Sewell gets a call for all-around value and not for defensive skill alone. Reeves, of the Senators, appears to be the best defensive shortstop in the league, but a very weak hitter. Sewell is a smart player and easily the most dangerous hitter of all American League shortstops.

HALE AT THIRD

Third base brings up some artists for consideration and the vote goes to Sammy Hale, of the Mackmen, who can play the bag about as well as any rival and is a bigger hitter than any of them. Dugan still excells all other third basemen in making plays on slow rollers, but he is not as lively on hard drives to either side as he was in 1922 and 1924.

Bluege, of Washington, is perhaps the best defensive third baseman, with Warner, of Detroit, and Hale and Kamm close behind, but these three, as well as Dugan, trail Hale as a hitter.

Harry Hailmann stands out far ahead of all outfielders, barring Ruth, who is considered as a left fielder, but he plays this position in only three cities—New York, Washington and Cleveland. When the Yankees are in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago, Babe plays left field.

With Ruth out of the way Heilman and Cobb stand out well in front. The big Detroiter is better today than the one-time marvel, who has slipped considerably, but who still ranks high.

COMBS AT CENTER

In center field Combs is chosen over Al Simmons, though the latter outhit Combs. However, Combs kept his place all season, while Simmons was in about two-thirds of his team's games. Combs led his league in number of hits, hustled from opening day until he rushed in with the winning run that ended the world series, was a great lead-off man for a great club, and gave daily exhibitions of ground covering that defied improvement.

For left field, no contest. Baseball's super-star, Babe Ruth, stands alone among such noted sluggers as Fothergill, Goslin, Meusel, Falk, Bing Miller, Ken Williams, Wheat and Jamison. Ruth covers ground with the best, is the most accurate thrower of the lot, the most graceful flycatcher of his generation and for all-around value to a club, without a close rival.

GREENE COUNTY IZAAK WALTONS HOSTS AT SHOOT

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—Sportsmen from all sections of Greene county and many points in the Tri-State section gathered here today for a gun shoot and field day under auspices of the Izaak Walton League. The Greene county chapter of the Izaak Walton League is the largest chapter in Pennsylvania. Plans are being formulated to increase the membership to 1,000. The membership at the present time is between 600 and 700. Frank L. Hoover of Waynesburg is president of the local chapter and Glen Darrah of Carmichaels is the secretary.

ROCKS FACE LANE

Myles Lane, flashy Dartmouth halfback, who has gained a running start on most of his football scoring rivals by piling up 87 points in four games, probably won't find the touchdown path so pleasant from now on. On four successive Saturdays, starting this week, the Green encounters Harvard, Yale, Brown and Cornell.

SPORT LENS

Notre Dame, where the football tradition, and the name of Rockne, rallies around the Notre Dame shield a wealth of football talent.

ALTHOUGH there is many a boy on the Notre Dame team whose Irish ancestry is about as pure as Rockne's, who is a Swede, by common consent and general usage the Notre Dame boys have come to be known as the Fighting Irish. What thinks the chief pedagogue at Notre Dame of this nickname, which after a fashion, might be considered as a reflection by sensitive souls? The head man says that since the name came from without and not from within, that is to say, it is a name applied to Notre Dame by admirers, there can be no sound objection to the dashing sobriquet.

FLANNAGAN of Notre Dame is a fact which reads a little like fiction. No author of a football novel could pick a much more alluring title. Yet there is a Flannagah who is great and who plays on the Notre Dame team.

Mr. Thomas Beer, a novelist of great proportions, observed in "The Mauve Decade" that the tradition of a red-haired Irishman always being in the van of the fighting, was a pretty myth concocted by imaginative war correspondents and others, but Flannagan of Notre Dame, a great figure, would at least be the exception to Mr. Beer's rule.

Off Again Flannagan is his name and someone said he was a great runner because anyone with that name, born in Texas, really had to be a great runner.

NOTRE DAME is not to come here this season and more's the pity. They offer a show that thrills jaded eyes. It is worth the price of admission alone to see the second batch of regulars ripping off their jerseys to replace the boys who start the game. Rockne not only has an eye for football fundamentals and great judgment of football talent, but also a flair for the dramatic.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC OPEN GOLF MATCH SHORTENED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(INS.)—The Middle Atlantic open golf championship, scheduled to start here tomorrow, has been shortened and will be played on Friday and Saturday, it was announced today.

Thirty-six holes will be played each day. Three days of rain caused the shift in plans. Some of the country's leading professionals will play.

Warner System In Conference

THE Warner system is having its first real introduction into the Western Conference this year. Dick Hanley, youthful coach at Northwestern University of Evanston, Ill., is a devoted disciple of the great Pop and is enjoying a great deal of success with the Old Fox's plays. He beat Ohio State with them last week.

BANQUET GIVEN FOR PLAYERS

More than 225 persons attended a joint banquet last night of the Crafton Volunteer Fire Company and the Crafton Businessmen's Association held at Chartiers Heights Country Club, as a testimonial to the borough officials of Crafton and the 84 members of the Crafton-Ingram Baseball League.

A loving cup was presented to St. Philip's Roman Catholic Church team, which won the league championship. The presentation was made by State Senator Frank J. Harris. Dennis A. Harris was toastmaster.

The speakers included Judge Richard W. Martin, who spoke on "Civic Duties"; President Daniel Winters, of City Council; J. H. Hershberger, president of the Crafton-Ingram Church League; W. H. Metz, Crafton councilman; F. J. Huffman, president of the Crafton Public School board; R. V. Babcock, County Commissioner; William B. McKechnie, former manager of the Pirates; M. D. Moore, president of the Crafton Volunteer fire department; J. T. Craig, president of the Crafton Businessmen's Association; "Rosie" Rowswell, humorist; W. S. Diggs, burgess of Thornburg; Honus Wagner, former Pirate shortstop; the Rev. A. W. Caldwell, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church of Crafton, and D. T. Jones, Crafton business man.

To-night at 8:30 on WCAE

TONIGHT you will hear another Duo Art Recital, the third of an unusual series broadcast by the Aeolian Company. Eminent soloists will assist.

In addition to the regular program you will hear an announcement of great interest outlining a plan which will enable you to take part in these Duo-Art Recitals.

Be sure to tune in tonight.

The New RCA Loudspeaker 100-A

"Unbelievably realistic," say the musical critics

WHEN musical critics first hear the new RCA Loudspeaker 100-A reproducing the voices of great artists and the music of famous orchestras they are amazed at the realism and fidelity of tone.

Refinements of acoustical design and construction, worked out in the research laboratories of RCA, Westinghouse and General Electric, have produced an instrument of remarkable performance over the entire musical range.

Ask any RCA Authorized Dealer to demonstrate RCA Loudspeaker 100-A. Compare its mellow tones with other speakers. Note the remarkable difference made by its true reproduction of voice and music.

One Dollar ACTUALLY Buys A GOOD USED CAR
Not One Dollar Down—But One Dollar Pays for the Car Complete

This is our first clearance sale. It will long be remembered. We will GUARANTEE to sell automobiles cheaper at this sale than they have ever been sold in the history of the country.

Each and every until will represent TREMENDOUS VALUE.

In this sale are cars of all standard makes. The prices might seem ridiculous, but we are determined to move this entire stock (at once).

To sell all cars at far below our cost.

All cars have been reduced to the lowest level.

We will not sell automobiles at this sale to automobile dealers.

We will sell only one car to each buyer. We will not sell any of these cars to people in our employ.

Our cars will range in prices from $1, $10, $25, $50, $100, $200, $300, $400 and up. Cars all in good, serviceable condition. All standard makes. The terms of sale are cash for all cars up to $50; on other cars 40% in cash, balance in reasonable monthly or weekly payments.

If you need a truck for your business, buy it here.

BUGS BAER Says

THE football season is loose again and every embattled sophomore considers it his duty to beat the falling autumn leaves to the hard ground.

The game has changed a lot since the days when Yale and Harvard allowed their hair and finger nails to grow long for the important game of the years.

The juniors still bite and scratch in exclusive scrimmages and man's inhumanity to tackle makes counted thousands less mournful. But the contests have lost much of their old collegiate mayhem and ethical slugging.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The old flying wedge composed of a short ton of beef on the hoof has been outlawed by horn-rimmed legislation. When this wedge got into motion it flattened all opposition and was heavy enough to convert Big Bill Edwards, William H. Taft and Fatty Arbuckle into a bas-relief.

It acquired its locomotion from feet and elbows and was abolished because colleges were losing their bright students faster than the dumb ones matriculated.

The flying tackle was another beautiful method of staging a head-on collision without the use of railroad engines. The tackler always knocked himself cold and took the other man with him as a witness.

Although all the players were padded like a maniac's cell, football got so healthy and dangerous that the university heads decided to chop down on intercollegiate reprisals.

The boys now play a nice game of huddles and forward passes. The huddles seem to be the most important end of the contest. The boys gather round like a gang of kittens surrounding a bowl of goldfish. Nobody seems to know what goes on in a huddle.

The forward pass has also taken much of the warlike aroma out of football. The two elevens look like ironworkers throwing hot rivets at each other.

When an oldtimer got hold of a football he ran with it. When a modern player gets hold of a ball he throws it to somebody who will take the blame.

This is a very intelligent system because the man with the ball is the turkey who gets picked by eleven inspectors. But football has certainly changed from the old days when the referee carried a sledge hammer to enable him to knock the ball out of an unconscious player's hands.

At TWENTY
To make love is VITAL,
But a YOUNG man who Is ARDENT
Is not always
DISCRIMINATING.
Therefore, the CHIEF thing
Is not WHO, but HOW MANY!
At THIRTY to make love is STILL necessary,
But there are OTHER
Burning things in
A man's life, such as AMBITION, FAME and SUCCESS. So the QUESTION then is—WHEN?
At FORTY to Make love is merely a PASTIME.
At forty a man THINKS
He KNOWS what he wants,
So when he feels ATTRACTED he
Ceases to ask—WHY?
At FIFTY the question
That concerns MOST men is NOT where, when or why,
But WHO?
And though ALL men
Make love ALL their lives,
FEW, it seems, ever ask Themselves HOW.

Mayor to Be Commended For 10-Year Finance Plan

Pittsburgh is looking ahead ten years financially. Mayor Kline, commendably, has named a committee of business men who will suggest a financial plan suitable to take care of such improvements as may be embraced in a physical plan covering a decade.

The Mayor, with promptitude that must be approved by all, acted on the suggestion of the Pittsburgh Bureau of Governmental Research, a private organization formed to study Pittsburgh's needs. The Mayor's committee includes H. C. McEldowney and the following members of the Research Bureau: C. D. Armstrong, A. E. Braun, J. F. Casey, George S. Davison and Howard Heinz.

As significant of the path to be followed in preparing for future needs of the city in a monetary way, the following is quoted from what might be termed the ''constitution'' or general policy which will govern the committee:

> ''A complete single budget should be adopted to include not only expenses for operation and maintenance of current services, but also capital expenditures; balanced by a detailed statement of the source of revenue in each case; and rigidly adhered to for the period for which drawn.''

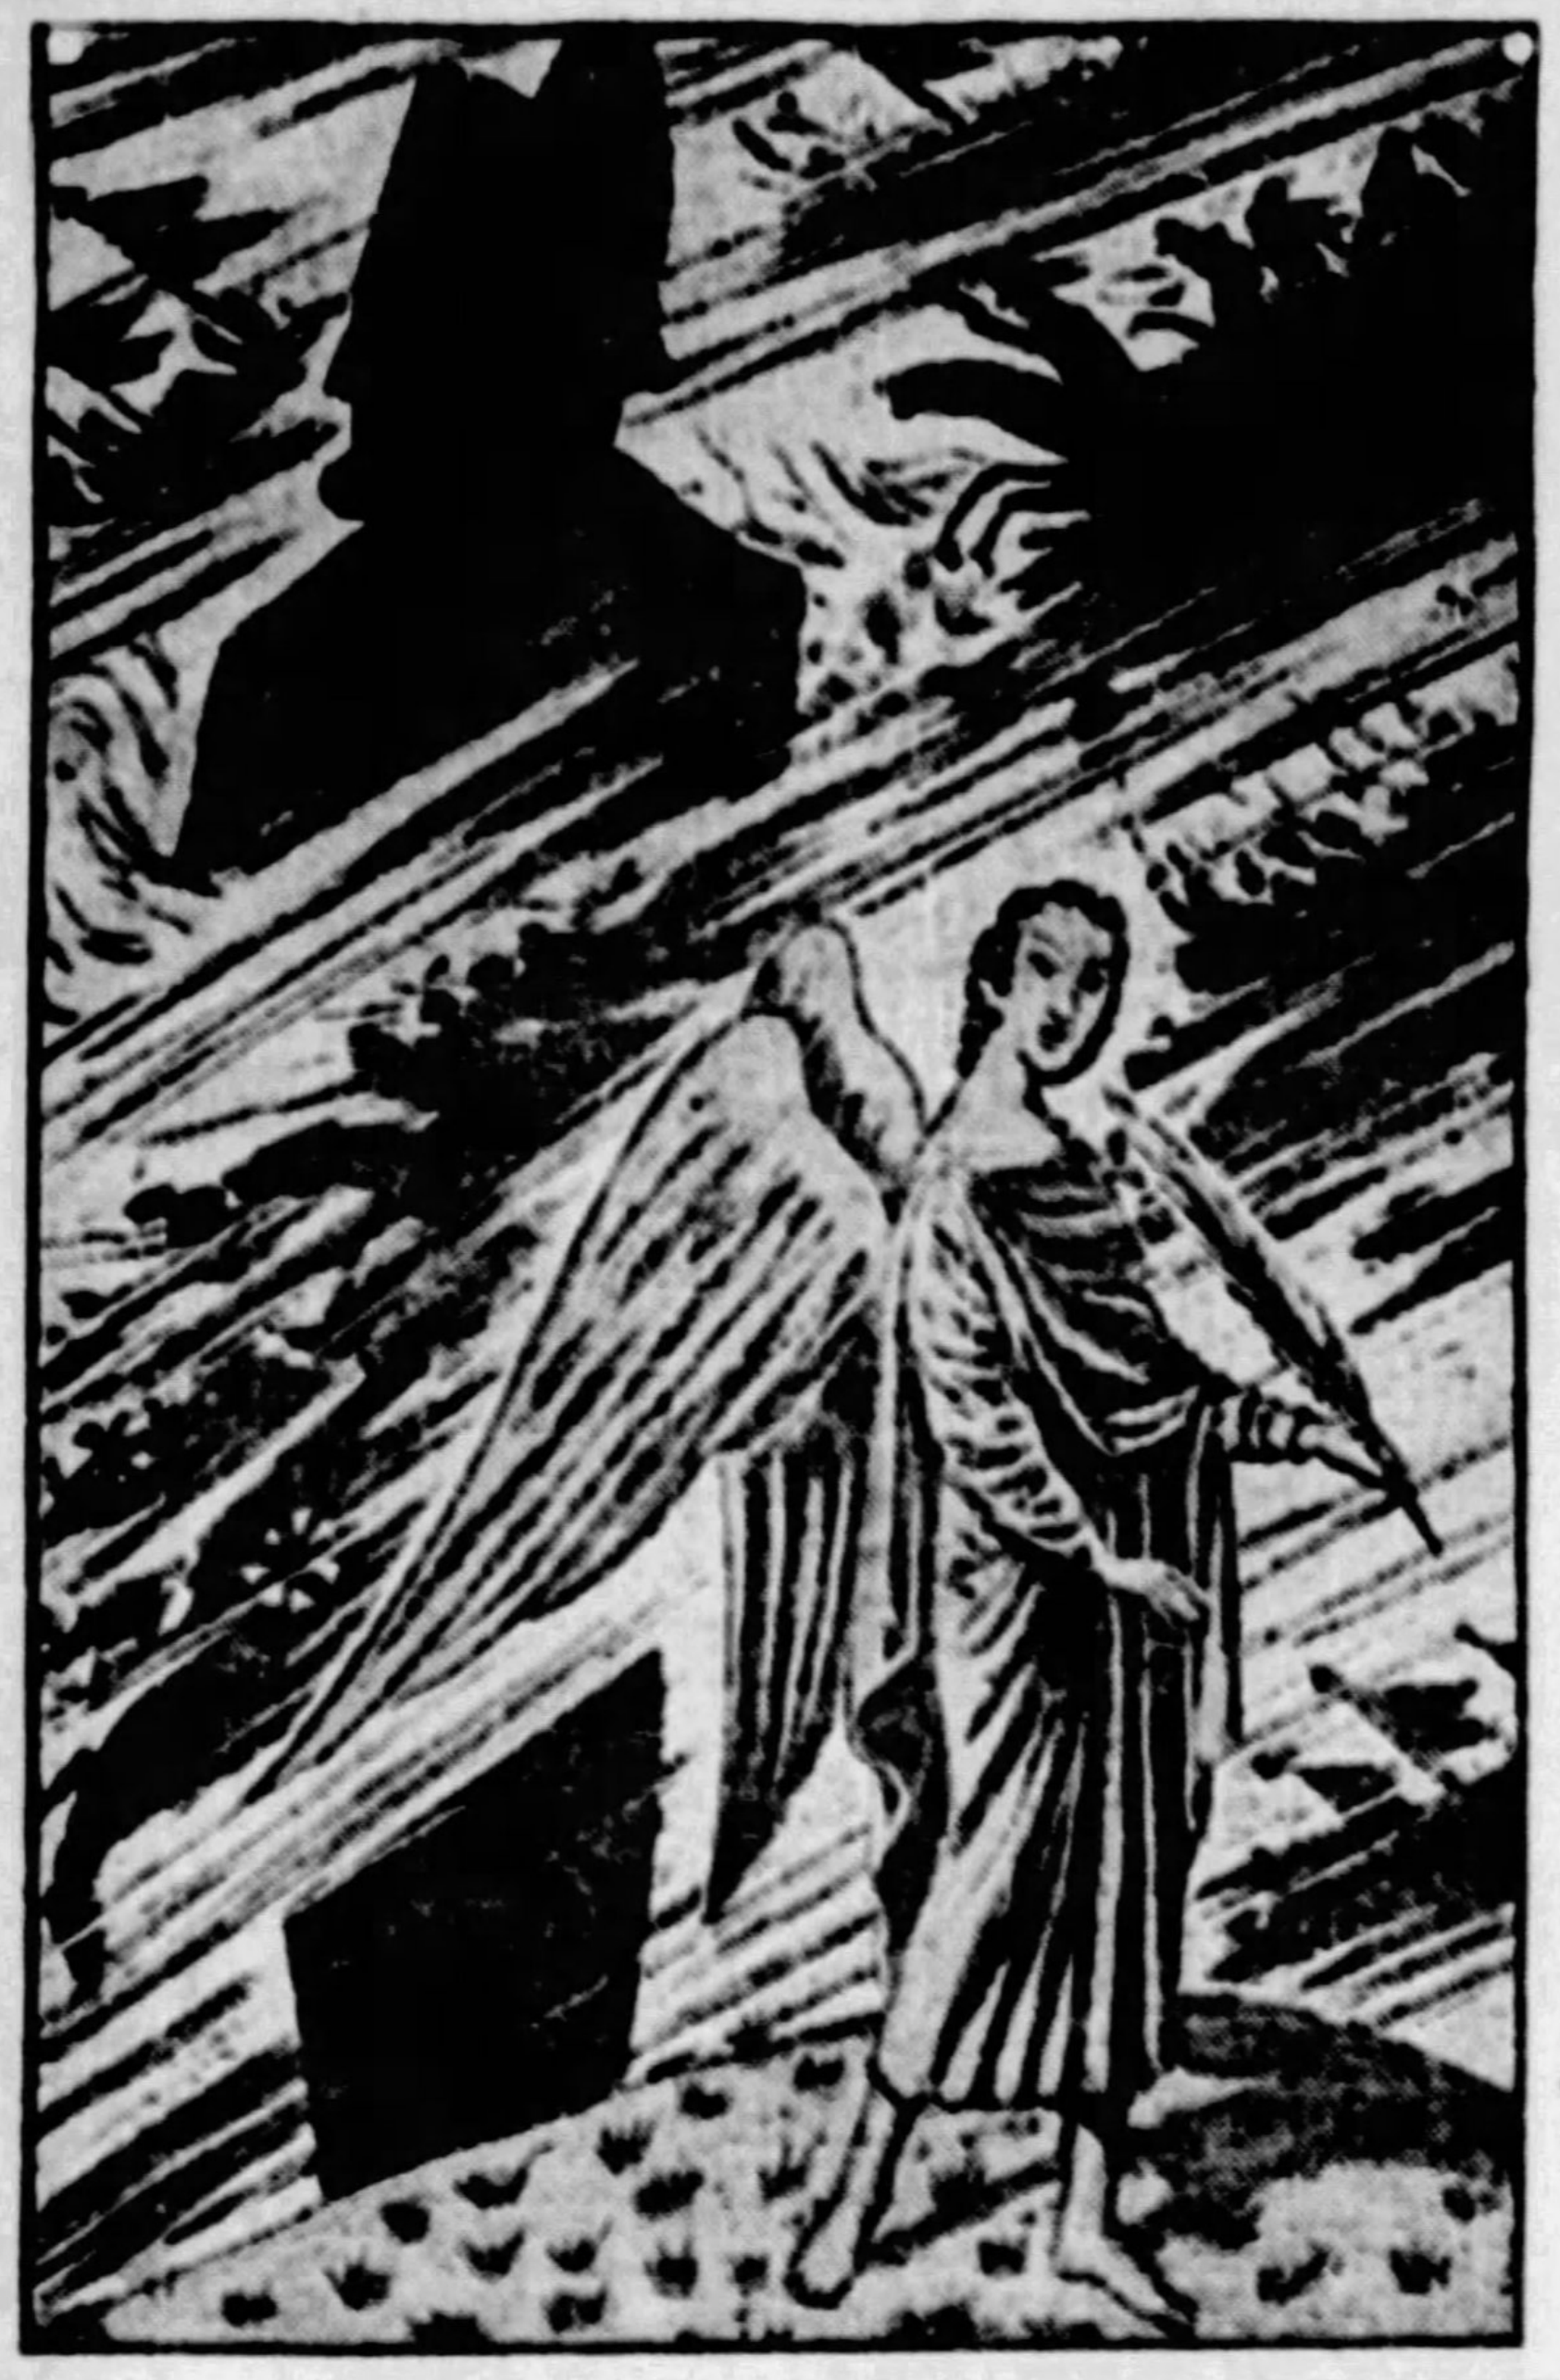
Adherence to that policy will give the city a clear, definite prospect, with the limits known and understood, instead of a hazy one in which the future is obscured not only by its unknown and unknowable possibilities but by lack of preparation to take care of what is known. Preparedness is as necessary in peace as in war. The Mayor's committee is an urgently needed agency for preparedness.

Governments, especially municipal governments, seldom are moneywise. Changing administrations, admittedly a safeguard politically, are expensive economically. Yet the price we have to pay for political security can be lessened by a wise plan such as is now so well begun. Hence, the appointment of a committee, such as has been named by the Mayor, one in which every member is a man who has the confidence of the public, can be looked upon as a distinct step forward.

Our city again lives up to its slogan—Pittsburgh Promotes Progress.

Poor Little Peace Angel

She Will Have Her Inning, Some Day.



SOME DAY THE ANGEL WILL WIN

This picture, from a German paper Simplicissimus, carries these words: ''Peace: Despite the dreadful war shadows of the past, the State of Europe may yet be united in the bonds of friendship.''

The Angel of Peace has rather gloomy surroundings here. The black shadow of Napoleon the Conqueror, the rushing hordes of armed men darken the sky, and poor Peace can hardly find her way.

Nevertheless, HOPE is the strongest power on earth, and human imagination is the greatest builder. What men hope for ardently, they will get. And nothing that they can imagine is impossible.

Blake, poet and painter of imagination, died penniless, buying a pencil to continue his work with his last shilling, just before he died, said truly: ''All things exist in the human imagination; imagination is the real and eternal world.'' He imagined that the world would one day recognize his power. It does NOW.

The imagining of yesterday is the reality of today. The flying machine and submarine were in man's imagination before [illegible] o the clouds or went below the water.

[illegible] re dark days for peace now, when every intelligent [illegible] anything worth protecting should be ready for war. But peace will come to the earth in time.

Our descendants, perhaps one hundred, perhaps a thousand years hence, will look back on war and wholesale murder as we look back on cannibalism, and legalized torture of witnesses.

And the better day is hastened by those that HOPE AND BELIEVE.

Habit That Is Stupid

George Eastman, leader in the movement to get the calendar changed into thirteen months of twenty-eight days each, so that fixed holidays will come always on the same day of the week, has received indorsement from more than 500 prominent American business men.

They see that such a plan would promote regularity of business. And since this is pre-eminently a business nation, that in itself is a good reason.

Only habit holds us to the observance of a clumsy calendar, just as only habit—and a bad habit at that—holds us against adopting the convenient and sensible metric system.

Such habits are hard to break, but if the business judgment of [illegible] the break will come.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Another Universe Visible

DURING early November the greatest of the "island universities" hangs, a wisp of faint fire in the sky, near the zenith, over the United States. Anybody can see it with the naked eye, looking like a fuzzy speck among the stars. A small telescope shows it in the shape of a slightly luminous spindle. Photographed with a large telescope it appears as a wonderful system of concentric nebulous rings, of a long oval outline, broken into condensed masses, or stretched out in irregular bands, with an immense oblong mass of greater brightness in the common center of the rings.

Careful study has demonstrated that what looks like rings are, in fact, spirals streaming away in gradually widening curves from the central mass of the nebula, all in one plane, like wheel spokes. The oblong shape of the nebula is evidently due to its plane lying at a slope instead of square to our line of sight.

The spectrum of this nebula shows that, though it looks like a gaseous cloud it must, in reality, be composed of millions of stars, and since its distance has been proved to be far greater than that of the remotest known parts of what we call the starry universe, the conclusion has been drawn that it must be another universe than ours, seen dimly shining in the depths of space, so far away that the light of its stars is blended into a uniform glow, and takes a million years to reach us. With very powerful photographing telescopes swarms of the component stars of the Andromeda nebula are shown in its outer portions. In the denser parts the stars are so numerous that no "resolution" is possible with existing instruments.

From the data now at hand it is possible to calculate the size of this great "island universe." Its diameter proves to be about 270 quadrillions of miles. (A quadrillion is a billion times a million). But, enormous as this size appears, it is much less than that of our universe, so that we can look as patronizingly as human nature may demand upon that other universe of smaller dimensions.

But even from our stupendous distance we can detect some of the great events occurring in that other universe. For instance, new stars have been seen breaking forth in it just as they do in our stellar system, and the spectra of such stars have been studied and their course has been watched during their brief periods of visibility, for they, like our new stars, are evidently the product of collisions or violent explosions. Also it is possible for our astronomers to watch the variations and record the periods of variable stars in the Andromeda nebula and other similar nebulae, which like it are probably outlying universes. The fact is that everything—perhaps life itself—goes on in these far-off independent systems according to the same laws that are obeyed by our stars. In short, they are all of one make, though very various in many details.

Take a look at that other universe glimmering in the outing, for whose inhabitants its strange glowing spirals probably appear much as our Milky Way does to us. They must see us, for ours is the greater system, and if they see us they wonder about things here as inhabitants of smaller towns wonder about the scenes of a great capital. If you have no more powerful optical instrument, use your opera-glass or prism binocular, and as you look think.

A day for toil, an hour for sport,

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

The Jelly Fish

DO you hesitate to give an opinion because you know it will not be favored by the one asking for your point of view?

In order to be popular and seem agreeable, do you countenance certain actions in your friends, or do you weakly object?

Rather than have an argument, you let others over-ride your opinions and desires.

Then digest this surprise—those with whom you agree so often consider you a human jelly fish!

They admit, to a certain extent, that they enjoy having you support them in what they do and say, but in really important matters, they would not ask your opinion. They would not want it.

You wonder why you are so seldom consulted when advice is needed, and why certain men and women are always appealed to for their opinions.

Perhaps it is because you are so afraid of adverse criticism that you are never strong and fearless in your statements.

Tales That Are Told

Tenderness

"YES, my daughter has a heart of gold."

"Really?"

"Yes, when I have a lot of washing or other hard work, the dear child shuts herself in her room—it hurts her to see me work."—Nebelspalter, Zurich.

She Would Find It!

JINKS was always complaining of his wife's memory.

"She can never remember anything," he said. "It's awful."

"My wife was just as bad," said Brown, "till I found a capital recipe."

"What was it?" asked Jinks, eagerly.

"Why," said Brown, "whenever there's anything particular I want her to remember, I write it on a slip of paper and keep it in my trousers pocket."—London Answers.

Other Way Around

THE card in the window bore the printed legend, "Boots Repaired," so in went the small boy.

He put a pair of men's boots on the counter and said:

"Father says will you mend them. And can we have 'em back on Tuesday?"

"What's to be done to them?" inquired the repairer.

"Soled and heeled and stretch 'em," answered the boy.

"Stretched, eh? Where do they pinch him?"

"They dont, was the laconic reply. "He pinched them."

Know Thyself

THIS is about diet. There is truth in the saying "One man's meat is another man's poison." Very few of us eat intelligently. While we are young the body "gets away" with it, even though it may grumble once in a while. But, past 40, the accumulated result of years of bad habits begins to make itself felt. And then the body does not "get away" with it quite so easily.

The secret of diet lies in knowing your own body. Good doctors understand the laws and theories of diet but, unless they have had a patient under their observation for a long time, they cannot understand all the idiosyncrasies of his body. That is what he must find out for himself.

There is no article of food or drink that is good for all people at all times. There are hundreds of ways of preparing bread. You must find the way that is best for you. Some people ought never eat bread. Most American bread is pretty bad. The better it tastes, as a rule, the more trouble it gives to the stomach. Many people love the taste of hot bread. To eat it, however, is an insult to the digestive organs.

Ice-cold milk, drunk with a meal, can frequently do more harm than a Scotch high-ball. Milk should never be drunk ice-cold, should never be drunk by adults with meat and should never be drunk at all unless you are sure that your system assimilates it properly, without strain on the liver.

The slogan "an apple a day" is the sheerest nonsense. Some people can digest apples and some cannot. Many people suffer from gastric hyperacidity. The malic acid in apples aggravates this complaint.

It is the same with oranges and grapefruit. They can do considerable mischief when eaten by the wrong people at the wrong time.

Doctors, as a rule, advise you to eat all fruit cooked instead of raw. This is usually a good rule but it does not mean that everybody should eat cooked fruit. Some people are better off if they never touch fruits; the sugars and acids which they contain may be obtained in other ways.

The amount of meat and the kind of meat we should eat ought to depend upon our digestive capacity, the amount of exercise we take, the condition of the kidneys and the amount of what is commonly called "uric acid" in the system.

To eat properly, there is no need of becoming a hypochondriac. It is not necessary to study carbohydrates, proteids, starches, etc., and look up the nutritive value of each dish before you eat it. Sometimes a dish without any nutritive value may be good for you. Especially if you're hankering for it.

The thing to do is to find out how your own body reacts to the different kinds of food and the different ways of cooking and then pick out the diet that is best for you. A similar diet may kill your neighbor, but that is his lookout.

New York Day by Day
O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Dog stealing has become a highly specialized form of robbery in the metropolis. Hazards are so slight and profits so great many skilled thieves have deserted other branches of their trade.

It is difficult to convict a dog thief. He resorts to the natural alibi that the stolen dog followed him along the street or, becoming lost, strayed to his quarters. Judges, however, give them stiff jolts when evidence convinces them of guilt.

Most fine dogs are stolen in shopping centers or at the public markets. The thieves generally work in pairs. One secures attention of the chauffeur while his companion makes away with the animal. In some instances dogs have been chloroformed into a stupor.

They are easily disposed of for cash at numerous dog stores where proprietors in most instances buy them innocently enough. It is said a pair of clever dog thieves have been able to split more than a thousand a week from their spoils.

Many thieves merely hold the dogs and watch "Lost" columns of newspapers. A genuine dog lover is always willing to offer a handsome reward—and no questions asked—for the return of the pet. The police dog is the most difficult to purloin.

He has been trained to obey one master and outside interference will likely result in a vicious attack. A law is being urged to make dog thievery punishable upon conviction with a minimum 10-year term. In instances it causes anguish almost comparable to kidnaping.

A celebrated actress—and it may not be a press yarn—employs a private detective to watch her Fifty-seventh street apartment to frustrate dog thieves. Her dog has been stolen three times and each time was restored for the $1,000 reward.

It is reported the most promising drama of the year has been built around the life of a midget. It is considered air tight and actor proof, but it is essential that a midget take the stellar role. Two producers have balked at this requisite. They do not think a midget would appeal to the ladies. Someone should discover a midget "fixation."

Etiquette of motion picture studios bans smoking by visitors while a scene is being shot. One neglectful gentleman recently broke the rule. The star clapped his hands for cameras to cease grinding and delivered a stinging rebuke. The cigaret smoker happened to be backer of the picture and the star may not know it, but he will shortly be "at liberty."

Indeed, temperament doesn't click any more in any of the amusement arts. A leading lady went babbling hysterically to her dressing room recently and completely upset a rehearsal. The next day she received this curt dismissal with the customary two weeks' notice: "We are expressing the same sympathy with your nerves you have expressed with our time and money."

There are few stage stars coddled today. Jobs are too scarce and talented applicants too numerous—and the result has been improvement in acting. No audience cares to see a player lead his or her private emotional life in public. The screen still has a number who must be "babied"—but from reports it will not be long until that is just a memory.

The Fly Swatter

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Everything is aviation nowadays. New air ports are being constructed, new aviation lines laid out and the air is full of the hum of wings. Since Lindbergh flew across the Atlantic many lives have been lost in trying to imitate him. We are in for an era of aviation.

The commonest aviator, however, known to most of us is the house fly. Attention has recently been called to this lively and efficient pest.

He is the cause of many diseases. He flits from the muck heap in the stable yard to the baby's face, and goes from the garbage pail to the dinner table. He is commonest of all microbe carriers. Since we have discovered that microbes are the cause of most of the diseases, our attitude toward the house fly has changed. From being regarded as a harmless pest he has come to be looked upon as a most dangerous menace.

And now announcement is made in the press that the discoverer of the fly swatter is one William Laser, of Chequamegon, Wisconsin. He is an unknown and modest hero, but really one of the benefactors of the human race.

He never capitalized his genius, and anybody with invention enough to put a piece of screen on the end of a stick can make a fly swatter.

The fecundity of flies is well known. Birth control is not among their virtues. They will deposit some 20 clusters of eggs with 120 in each cluster and then go around and hunt out a bald head to sit on while the eggs hatch. In two weeks the young are ready for their active career. As a reproducer the fly is a humdinger.

When Nicholas Murray Butler announced that there has been no great men for the last 2,000 years we like to think of Bill Laser, who is still living and occasionally fishing on Chequamegon Bay. He has never made an appearance on the vaudeville stage, nor has he been given a pension by the government, but he has contributed about as much to the satisfaction of the human race as any man we know.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Through Struggle

IF sun were ever shining across a smiling earth; if life knew no repining, but only joy and mirth; if springtime flowers ever beside the brooklet played and daisies vanished never from happy hill and glade; if dream ships fair came sailing to port on every tide; if bliss were never failing, would men be satisfied? How strange man's secret nature, that inner self which grows to finer, fuller stature through combat with its foes! For not by laughter only can gladness be attained, some hours must still be lonely before true peace is gained. Some goals must still be luring through vistas reaching far ere joy gleams out, enduring in brightness as a star. The soul leaps up to greet them, the needs that wait each day; strength waxes still to meet them, the struggles on the way.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

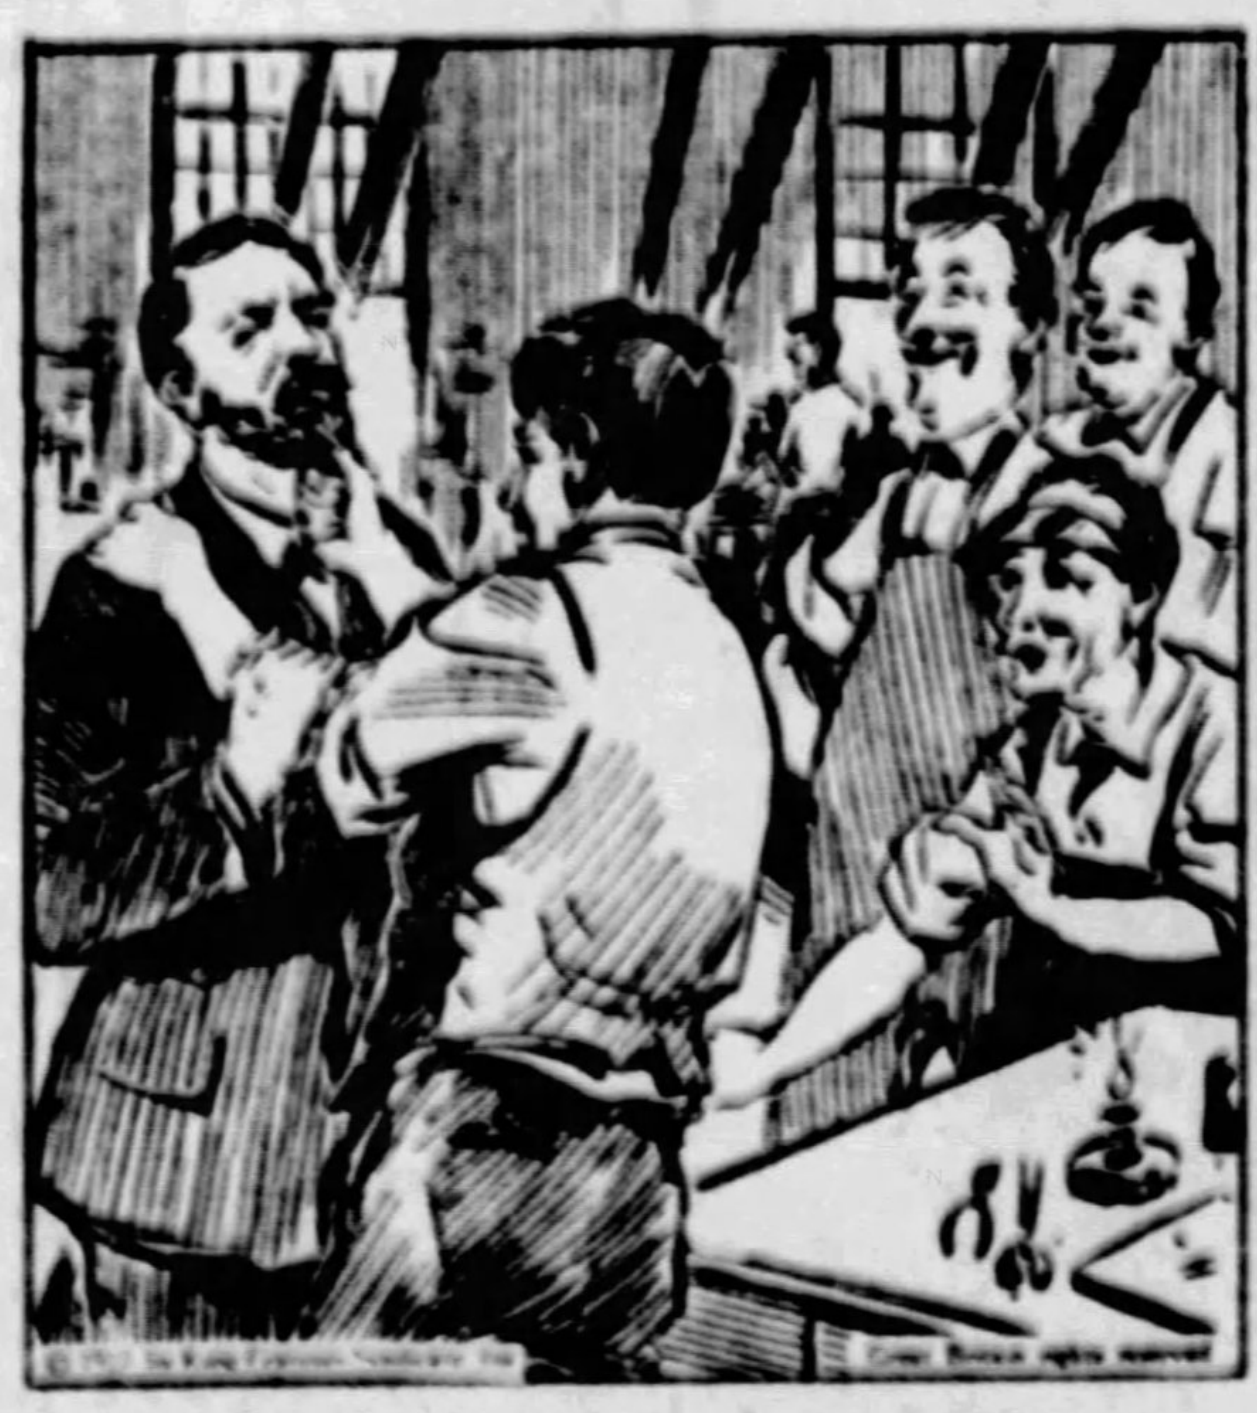
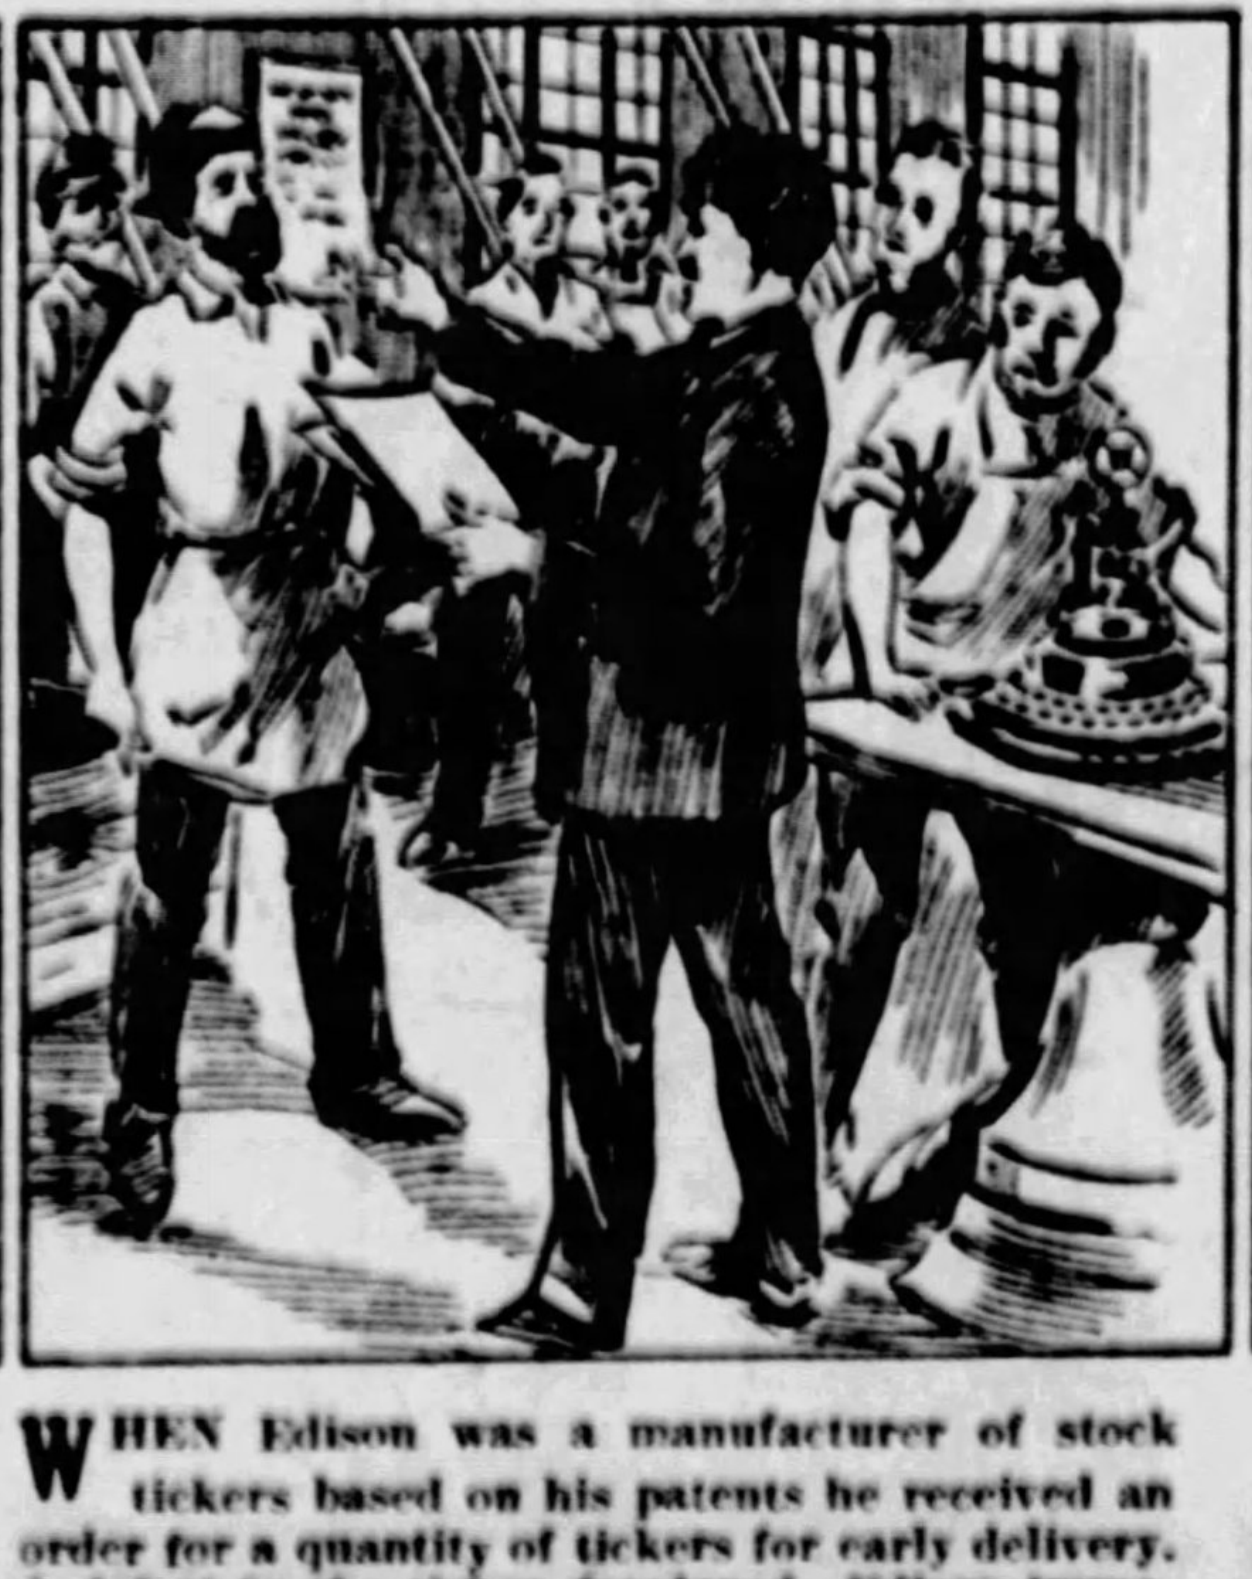
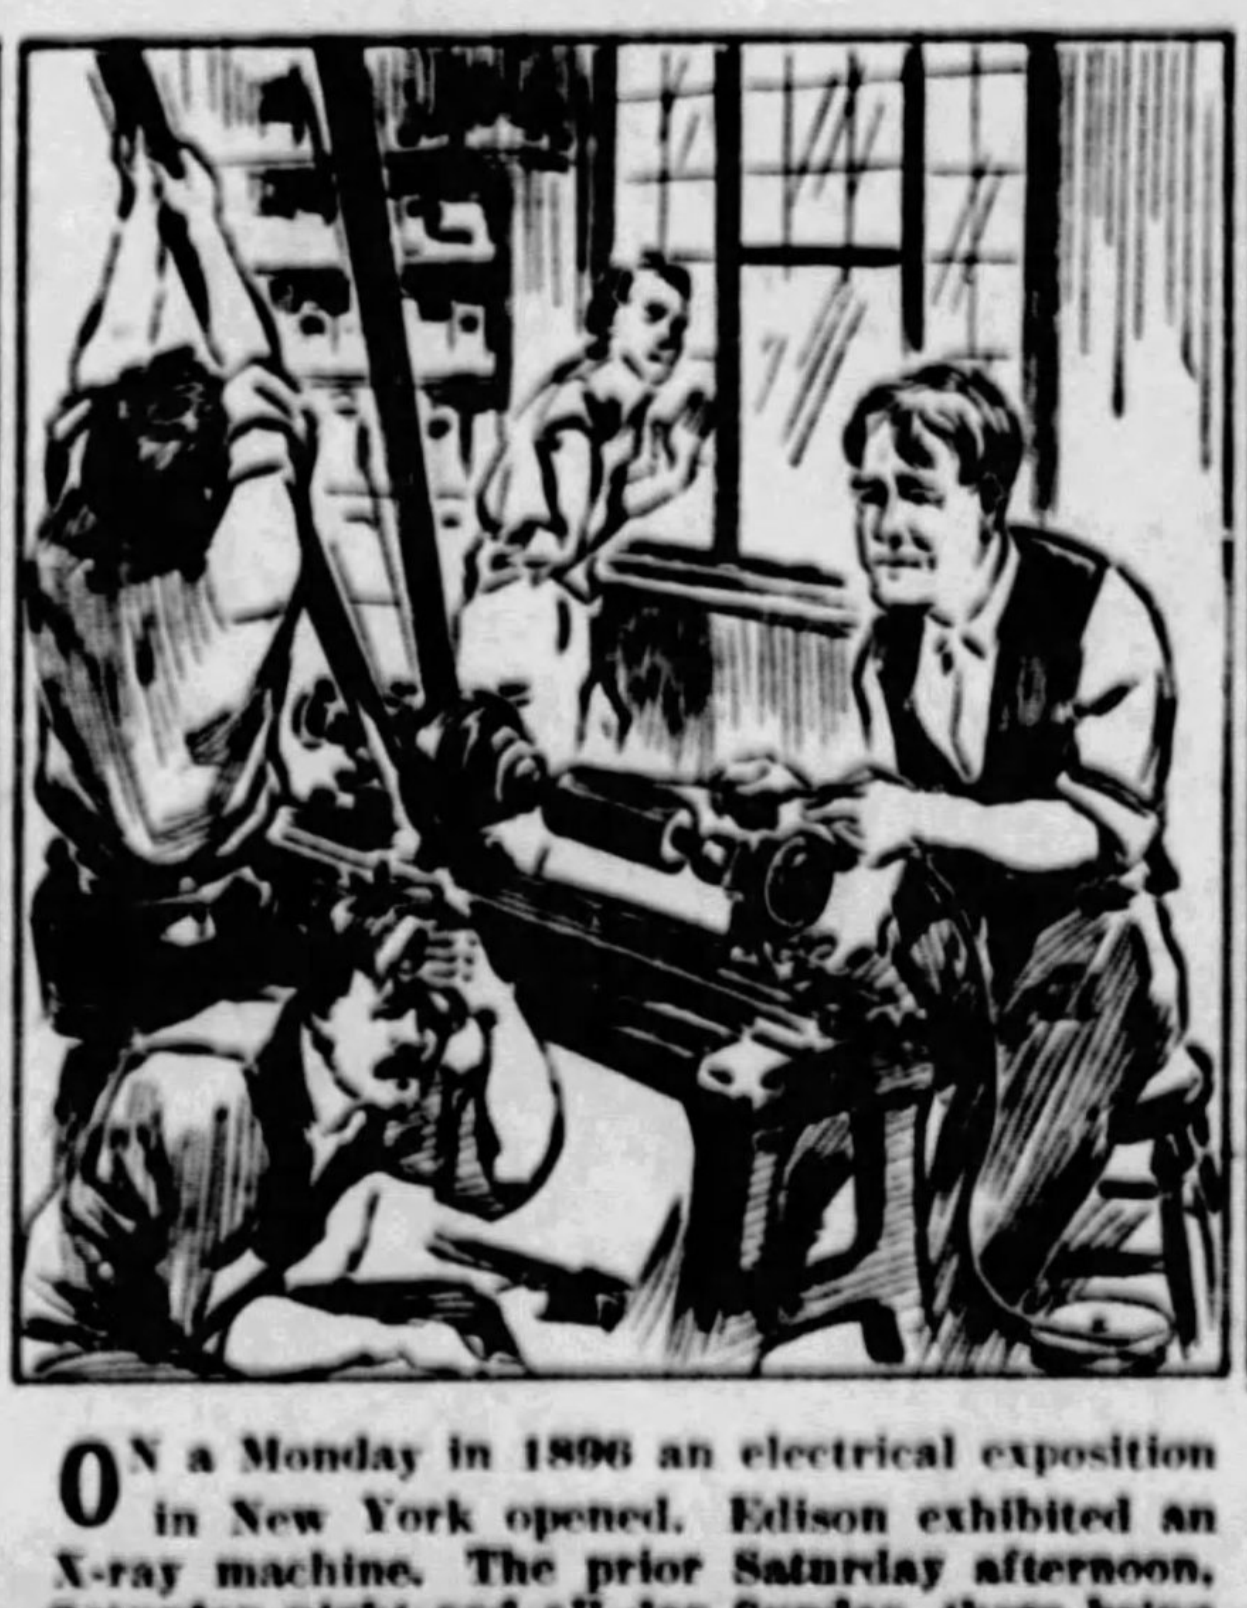
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



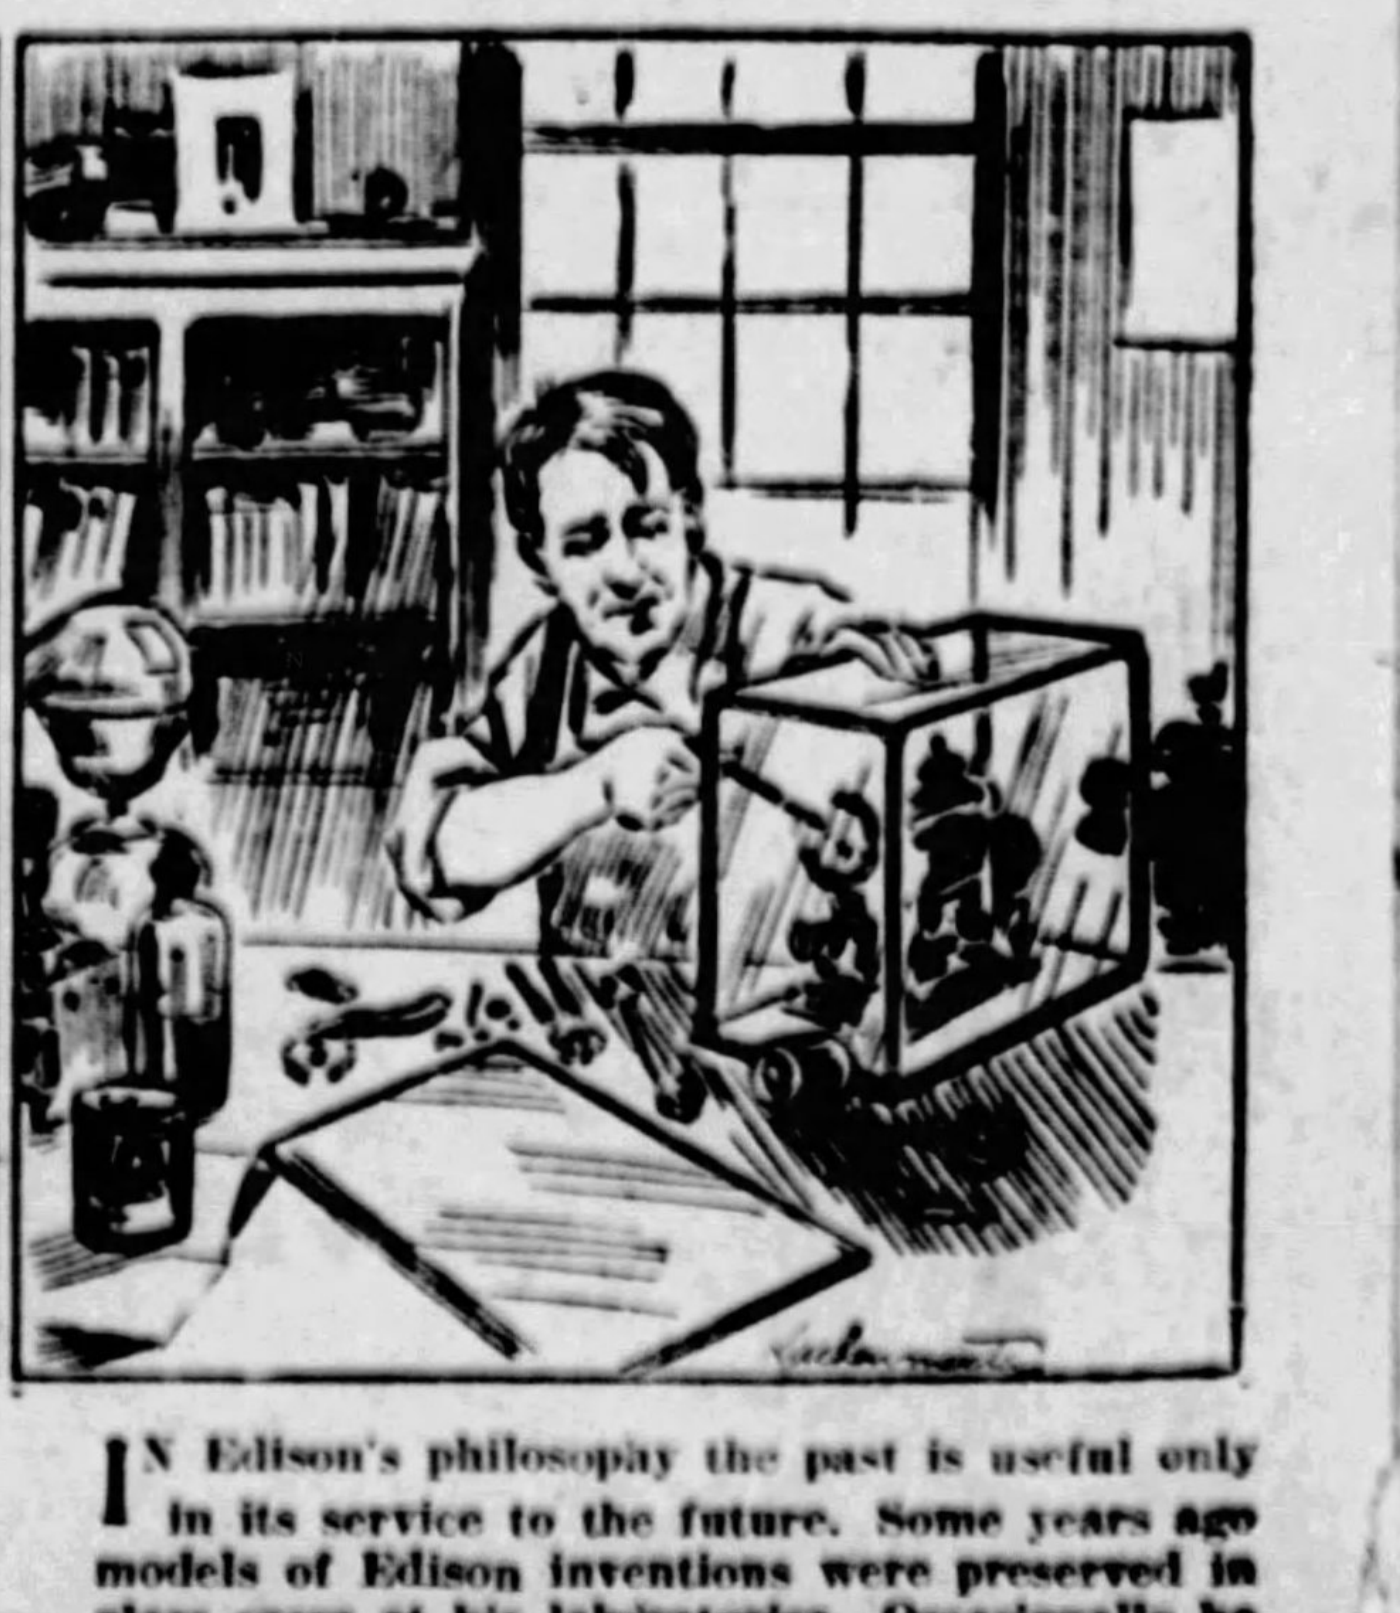
IN his search for a better filament for his incandescent lamp Edison tried every fibrous material he could think of. He even carbonized hairs from the red beard of Mackenzie, the station agent whose child he had saved when a boy. Mackenzie's laugh was the loudest when these carbons showed strong auburn rays.



WHEN Edison was a manufacturer of stock tickers based on his patents he received an order for a quantity of tickers for early delivery. A defect in the ticker developed. Edison immediately stopped production, locked the doors and announced, "We'll stay here until the defect is corrected." The workers stayed.



ON a Monday in 1896 an electrical exposition in New York opened. Edison exhibited an X-ray machine. The prior Saturday afternoon, Saturday night and all day Sunday, there being no power, he and his assistants operated by hand a power-lathe to rewind the induction coil, which had become short-circuited.



IN Edison's philosophy the past is useful only in its service to the future. Some years ago models of Edison inventions were preserved in glass cases at his laboratories. Occasionally he would take various parts for use in new models, until the entire exhibit was dismantled.
